If some one asked you to say frankly what you think is the purpose of your life on this planet, what would you answer? Not what you are living for, but the why of your living at all?

We can all easily say what we are living for—pleasure or money or fame or duty, or just because we have to. But what is the why of all this, as some would say? Why are we doing it?

To some of us, life is not a particularly pleasant experience. We would like to sidestep it if we could, or change our method of living it. But we are held inexorably to it. Why? We didn't choose coming here. And yet we are here. Why?

Each of us would probably answer differently. Each of us, if we have thought of the matter at all, have found an answer that suits ourselves.

Many who have given consideration to it say that the only reason for this life is growth; that existence here is for the purpose of development; and that if we develop and grow in the knowledge of eternal things, nothing else matters. Each individual must grow and develop. Nothing else counts for him, but the greater understanding of the realities of the universe, and that if to be useful or helpful or unselfish would interfere with this growth (though they do not seem to, but rather are a part of it), then must he put those things by and attend to this one matter of development. For it is the prime necessity of life, and must be accomplished one way or another.

This surely is an inspiring reason for life. For it means that we are getting ready for another stage of existence that is bigger and finer than this. And it should incite us to look carefully to this matter of growth and development.

But just how we shall bring about greater growth is a puzzle to some of us. How to get the larger vision is hard to see. One thing we know. It has to do with the eternal things, not with the man-made things of this sphere. And if we cannot at first tell just what to do to develop in the essential way, we can easily decide on some things not to do.

For one thing, the eternal side of us does not grow if we centre ourselves entirely on the making of money. If we are absorbed completely in money-getting, we have little time and less desire to cultivate the eternal and intangible in us. The material facts of this existence blot out all else. We never get beyond them. And when we pass out of this life our real self, the ego, is little ahead, in matters that count, of what it was when it came here.

We may be equally absorbed in social matters, or in a desire for fame. Or we may be working so hard for just a bread and butter existence, that we have no heart or enthusiasm to look beyond our daily grind.

But if growth or development is the purpose of our existence here, the sooner we accomplish this purpose, the sooner will we be ready for something better. For money-getting and social achievements and all such things, seem in the long run useless. But growth is worth while. So let us make ourselves ready for the better things. For development always gives pleasure. The more we realize we are capable of, the happier we are. And as we make ourselves more and more capable, as we grow to bigger and bigger things, the greater capacity for joy we give ourselves.

Even should we not accept this explanation, the subject is worth study. For there must be a reasonable explanation of why we are here, and one that has to do not only with time but eternity. And when we find the explanation, life takes on new zest.

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

At high noon today, at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Goodale on Wyllie street, the wedding of their daughter, Catherine and Lieut. Rawson Warren was solemnized in a setting of white and gold. The Rev. Henry Parker, officiated. The bride handsomely gowned in white was attended by Miss Laura Nott as maid of honor, and Lieut. Warren was supported by Lieut. T. H. Cunningham. The wedding was a very quiet one, only the members of the family being present.

Lieut. and Mrs. Warren will be at home to their friends after the second of July, at Schofield Barracks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Gertz of Alewa Heights announced the engagement of their daughter, Dolly May, to Albert H. Hodson, at a birthday party given Friday evening, June 14.

There has been a lull in affairs social among the younger set for the past few weeks due, perhaps, to the fact that so many of their number are preparing for graduation and the functions that immediately precede and follow this evening. Tonight, however, there will be a delightful break in this quiet, when the Misses Helen and Carrie McLean will be hostesses at a dance at their home in Nuuanu valley. The house will be decorated with ferns and pink La France roses. The invited guests include:

The Misses Dora and Juliette Atwater, Ruth Anderson, Ruth Soper, Hazel Buckland, Martha McSheaney, Pearl Robinson, Eloise Wichman, Margaret Restarick, Thelma Murphy, Marion Chaplin, Myrtle Schumann, Fanny Hoogs, Cordelia Gilman, Jessie Kennedy, Muriel Howatt, Marguerite Ashford, Alice Hoogs, Catherine Ashley, Geneva Phillips, Margaret Center, Betha Woods, Marguerite Wadman, Elizabeth Eames, Louise McCarthy, Pearl McCarthy, Daphne Damon, Pauline Schaefer, Carrie and Helen McLean, and the Messrs. Allan Renton, Oswald Stevens, Edward Kitta, Luther Hough, Jr., Arthur Hough, Dickson Nott, Blakeley Mc-

Stockler, William Harris, William Schumann, John O'Dowda, John Watt, Alexander Anderson, Kenneth Able, William Morgan, Harold Morgan, Harold Kerr, John Ashley, J. Galt, Carter Galt, Watson Ballentyne, Jack Guard, Reynold McGrew, Malcolm Tattie, Marston J. Campbell, Cyril Hoogs, George Murray, Clarence White, Oscar McCorriston, Vernon Tenney, Earle Buchanan, Harold Gear, Vincent Genova, Harold Kerr, Charles McWayne, Francis Eames, Wrenne Timberlake, William Ouderkirk and Geoffrey Podmore.

St. Clement's Church was the scene of a very pretty, though quiet wedding, at twelve o'clock today when Miss Doris Girdler and Mr. Leslie Clark were united in marriage by the Rev. P. G. Williams. The church was attractively decorated, with ferns, Spanish daisies and Easter lilies. The bride gowned in white marquisette over satin, trimmed with real lace and wearing a portrait hat entered the church leaning upon the arm of her father, Mr. Charles Girdler. Miss Miriam Clark, sister of the bridegroom acted as maid of honor. Miss Clark wore a gown of pale green silk mull. The bride carried a shower bouquet while the maid of honor carried white roses.

Mr. Clark was supported by Mr. Earl K. Ellsworth. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will make their home in Honolulu.

Mrs. Henry Waterhouse entertained at tea yesterday afternoon for the ladies of the Out Doors Circle. During the afternoon the chairmen of the committees in the various districts read reports of the work that has been accomplished since their appointment. ACTOINETTES WHO MAY SOME DAY BE SMILED UPON AS LEADING LADIES

Impressions of Society Reporter Gained Through Contact With The Juvenile Bostonians.

I had heard about the interviewed and the interviewer and whenever I read an Allan Dale article in a magazine my heart welled up with sympathy for the man on the job. But when I was given an assignment to see the Bostonians off the stage, and learn something about their daily life, I confess my feelings approached those of the guard in the dangerous ward. Usually, if not always, it is the leading lady to be interviewed and she is found in her dressing room reclining on a couch or comfortably resting in a Morris chair.

According to fixed rules the interviewed says in dulcet tones: "But, dear me, what shall I say?" In my quest I found not blame young women but sweet young girls who have not become hardened to the ways of stage life nor flattered by the sayings of "Johnnie." I aimed to select the stars but when I saw them, a collection of scintillating beauties, I concluded at once they are all stars and I must select those whose experience and years of service might entitle them to greater consideration at the hands of the press.

I went behind the scenes at the theater and found nothing that would interest the public. A half dozen of the youngsters were playing an exciting game of tag and when I asked to see the stars one little tot looked at me, threw back her shoulders, as her chest came forward, and replied in all seriousness, "Ladies' choice." If I had remembered that stars sit only on heavily upholstered couches (Continued on Page 7)

The house was decorated with ferns and huge bunches of hydrangeas artistically arranged. Eleven tables of Five Hundred made a pleasant diversion and everyone enjoyed every moment of the time. Delicious icecream and cake were served, also cooling punch. The first prize was won by Mrs. C. Castendyk, the second by Mrs. B. K. Baird and Mrs. Moline carried off the booby trophy.

Mrs. Sumner, mother of Mrs. E. E. Richards, was an arrival by the Wilhelmnia, for a stay of some length in Hilo.

A number of parents of students about to graduate from Punahou College expect to leave for Honolulu in the near future to be present at the commencement exercises. Among these are Mrs. E. N. Holmes and Mrs. R. T. Forrest.

Miss Harriet Hitchcock arrived home on the Wilhelmnia after a visit of several months on the mainland, greatly improved in health.

The family of C. J. Giddings are about to remove to the mainland to reside permanently.
