Beware of a silent dog and still water.

It is not easy to straighten in the oak the crook that grew in the sapling.

There is many a good wife who cannot dance or sing well.

You will never have a friend if you must have one without a failing.

"That's the end of my tail," as the tadpole said when he turned into a bull-frog.

"Sammy, why don't your mother mend that rip in your trousers?" "Oh, she's gone to the sewing circle, to make clothes for poor children!"

At what time of life may a man be said to belong to the vegetable kingdom? When experience has made him sage.

A Yankee editor says: "The march of civilization is onward—onward—like the slow but intrepid tread of a jackass towards a peck of oats."

If you wish to attract attention, go into church some Sunday, after the services have begun, in a pair of new squeaking boots and parade up the broad aisle.

"You bachelors ought to be taxed," said a lady to a resolute evader of the nose matrimonial. "I agree with you perfectly, ma'am," was the reply, "bachelorism certainly is a luxury."

Why is a man making love to a married woman like a sheriff levying on the wrong man's goods? Because he's the victim of "a misplaced attachment."

The man who "held an office," got tired, and let go for the purpose of resting himself a short time, when the office got away, and has not been heard from since.

Rogers, the poet, mentioned that the best note he ever received was from an American lady, who, being asked to breakfast with him, wrote, "Won't I?" Certainly it was expressive brevity.

A SOURCE OF SMILES.—Dr. Franklin having noticed that a certain mechanic, who worked near his office, was always happy and smiling, ventured to ask him for the secret of his constant cheerfulness.

"No secret, Doctor," he replied. "I have got one of the best wives, and when I go to work, she always has a kind word of encouragement for me; and when I go home she meets me with a smile and a kiss, and the tea is sure to be ready; and she has done so many little things through the day to please me that I cannot find it in my heart to speak an unkind word to anybody."

A pious minister, after lecturing a ragged Sunday School class in a most edifying manner, proposed to close the exercises by singing "Jordan," meaning the hymn, "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand." The worthy man was horrified by hearing the whole school immediately strike up, "Jordan am a hard road to travel, I believe."

An emigrant being hard up for a dinner, stole a pig. He was caught in the act, taken before a magistrate and called upon for his defence, when he thus delivered himself. "Oh mon Dieu! I steal ze pig? No sar, I never! Ah! you shall see! I tell ze pig, vill he go viz me? He says, "Qui, qui?" and zen I take him. Is zat vot you call steal ze pig, ven he go viz his own consent?"

The century plant for many years in the possession of the late Stephen Van Rensselaer, of Albany, and for the last twenty-three years belonging to Henry Van Rensselaer, is now in full blossom, on exhibition at Ogdensburg, for the benefit of the Young Men's Association. Height 30 feet; circumference of trunk 10 feet; breadth of leaf at the trunk, average, 1 foot; length of leaf, 4 feet, number of leaves 100; the number of blossoms, about 10,000. The entire stem 20 feet long, has grown since the last days of March.

HAVE SOMETHING TO DO.—The secret of all success in life, of all greatness, nay, of all happiness, is to live for a purpose. There are many persons always busy, who yet have no great purpose in view. They fritter away their energies on a hundred things, never accomplishing anything, because never giving their undivided attention to any one thing. They are like butterflies, that fit from spot to spot, never gaining wealth; while the ant, who strictly keeps to a certain circuit round her hole, gradually lays up stores for winter comfort. Such persons are doomed to be dissatisfied in the end, if they are not sooner; for they will find in the race of life, they have been passed by all who have a purpose. It is not only the positive drones, therefore, but the busy idler, that makes a blunder of life for want of purpose.

NOVELTY—what we recover, from oblivion. We can fish little out of the river of Lethe that has not first been thrown into it.

Cigar ashes will be found an invaluable remedy for the bite of the mosquito and other insects. Wet the ashes and rub them on the part, and the stinging sensation will be extracted immediately. The reason of this is that ashes contain alkali, which neutralize the acid of the poison.

THE THREE FORCES.—There are two kinds of weapons. We have Paixhan guns, Minie rifles, and Sharpe's rifles; but there is one thing that shoots further than all these. It is a shot from the type battery. It goes around the world; it circles cities and threads plains; it winds its way through woods; it rattles in the rigging of the ship on the most distant seas; it is never spent when aimed high, but ricochetts, striking with fresh force every form of evil, dishonor, and oppression.—Fry.

DO GOOD.—Thousands of men breathe, move and live—pass off the stage of life, and are heard of no more. Why? They did not a particle of good in the world; and none were blessed by them, nor did they point to them as the instruments of their redemption; not a word they spoke could be recalled, and they were not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. Will you thus live and die, O man immortal? Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storm of time can never destroy. Write your name in kindness, love and mercy, on the hearts of thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten. No, your name, your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind, as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as the stars of Heaven.—Dr. Chalmers.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.—The griddle on which cakes are baked, should never be touched with grease. Firstly, because it imparts a rancid taste to the cakes. Secondly, if a cooking stove is used, it fills the whole house with a smell of burnt grease, betraying what we are going to have for breakfast. Wash the griddle with hot soap suds, scour it with dry sand, and when heated for use, rub it well with a spoonful of fine salt and a coarse cloth; it will then be ready to receive the cakes. After each cake is removed, the salt rubbing must be repeated. Try it, and you will ever follow the advice of an old housekeeper.

CAT IN A HAT BAG.—Some time ago in the town of C. about thirteen miles distant, the postmaster made up the mail a few minutes previous to the departure of the stage, and left upon the table a little lock-up. In her perambulations, the postmaster's pet cat discovered the open mail bag and entered in search of prey. The stage arrived, all in a hurry, the mail was hastily closed, crack went the whip, and around went the wheels. The postmaster searched in vain for his cat: some cruel boy must have killed it. At night the daily mail returned; quite an anxious crowd of faces were waiting to ask "any letter for our folks?" In due time the lock was turned, and strap removed. Out came the cat, amid the loud laughs of the crowd, and on her neck a label was found tied, post marked D—, and underneath was written the word "mis-carried."

IT IS A TERRIBLE THOUGHT to remember that nothing can be forgotten. I have somewhere read that not an oath is uttered that does not vibrate through all time, in the wide-spreading currents of sound—not a prayer lipsed that its record is not also to be found stamped on the laws of nature by the indelible seal of the Almighty's will.

A WORD TO LITTLE GIRLS.—Who is lovely? it is that little girl who drops sweet words, kind remarks, and pleasant smiles, as she passes along—who has a kind word of sympathy for every girl or boy she meets in trouble, and a kind hand to help her companions out of difficulty—who never scowls, never contends, never teases her mates, nor seeks in any way to diminish, but always to increase their happiness. Would it please you to pick up a string of pearls, drops of gold, diamonds and precious stones, as you pass along the streets? But these are the true pearls and precious stones which can never be lost—Take the hand of the friendless, smile on the sad and dejected. Sympathize with those in trouble. Strive everywhere to diffuse around you sun shine and joy.

IF YOU DO THIS, you will be loved. Dr. Doddridge one day asked his little girl why it was that everybody loved her. "I know not," she replied, "unless it be that I love everybody." This is the true secret of being beloved. "He that hath friends," says Solomon, "must show himself friendly." Love begets love. If you love others, they cannot help loving you. So, then, do not put on a scowl, and fretfully complain that nobody loves you, or that such or such a one does not like you. If nobody loves you it is your own fault. Either you do not make you self lovely by a sweet winning temper, and kind winning ways, or you do not love those of whom you complain.—Anecdotes of Girls.

A PERMANENT HOME.—"To have a home which a man has himself reared or purchased—a home which has improved or beautified—a home, indeed, which, with honest pride and natural love, he calls his own—is an additional security for any man's virtue. Such a home he leaves with regret to it he gladly returns. There he finds innocent and satisfying pleasures. There his wife and little ones are happy and safe; and there all his best affections take root and grow. To such a pair, as time advances, this abode of their early and middle life, whence they have, perhaps, all departed, becomes constantly more dear; for it is now a scene of precious memories—the undisturbed shelter of their declining years. And what varied experience of prosperity, or sorrow, can ever efface the good impression made by such a home of the tender heart of childhood? To the tempted youth, to the wanderer from virtue, to the sad victim of misfortune, such a remembrance has often proved a strengthening monitor, or a healing balm. Nor can this kindly influence wholly fail, so long as the dear objects of that familiar scene retain a place in memory, connected, as they inseparably are, with the thoughts of a father's counsels, a mother's tenderness, a sister's privity, and a brother's love."

MASONIC BURIAL AT SEA.—The New Orleans Picayune gives the following touching description of the burial at sea of Mr. Joseph Waterman, who died on the steamer Empire City.

"The sun was about sinking beneath the wave, when the body was placed in charge of such of the Fraternity as were on board, to be buried by them, with the last rites peculiar to the institution.

"The remains, which had been covered by the United States flag, where laid upon a plank at the stern of the steamer, and as the ship's bell began to toll at intervals, the brethren formed a circle around the corpse, which he had received the appointment of beautifully delivered by Past Master J. E. Elliott, of New York, who presided as Master upon this occasion. The ceremony, beautifully impressive on all times, was remarkably so upon this occasion; and when the Worshipful Brother pronounced the words: 'We therefore commit the body of our departed brother to the great deep; his memory shall remain engraven upon the tablets of our hearts, while his spirit shall return unto God who gave it,' a single plume was heard, and the deceased had gone to his last, long home, accompanied by the last fond words of his last true brother 'from the office of Fraternity who formed the broken chain upon the quarter-deck of the steamer.'

HONEY-BEES.—Previous to the acquisition of California by the Americans, the honey-bee was, we believe, a stranger to its climate and its flowers. They existed in great numbers as far West as Texas, and perhaps still farther; but in this land of flowers those little architects, "the busy bee," did not "gather honey all the day from every opening flower." Since then enterprise has introduced them at great expense and trouble.

...one, who traversed the State making colonies of minerals and plants, and supporting himself by collecting the seeds of the beautiful wild flowers for sale, was the first, we think, who made the trial of bringing hives of bees from the East by sea and over the Isthmus, shortly before his untimely death by the explosion of the ill-fated Jenny Lind. How, or whether his bees flourished we do not know; but at any rate, they are now an inhabitant of California. We saw the results of their busy industry yesterday, in the Washington Market. There were the great fids of comb, the cells full of honey, white and clear, at two dollars a pound. Another lot, the color of amber, "the tears of the gods"—colored from having been manufactured by the bees from the flowers of buckwheat, at one dollar and a half per pound. At that price we did not think the honey could taste very sweet, and we did not taste it. Yet, doubtless that price is low enough when its scarcity is considered, and also that the owner of the manufacturers paid one hundred dollars for the hive. Everything is worth what it will fetch in market. It is doubtful if bees will succeed well, or be profitable in this country, because there is so little winter that the bees do not hibernate, but eat during the whole year, while besides, the flowers continue only during a portion of the year.—Alla.

RULES FOR STUDY.—The other evening Professor Davis, the eminent mathematician, in conversation with a young friend of his upon the importance of system in studying, as well as in everything else, took a piece of paper, and wrote off for him the following important rules:—

1. Learn one thing at a time.
2. Learn that thing well.
3. Learn its connections, as far as possible, with all other things.
4. Believe that to know everything of something, is better than to know something of everything.
