A Gem.
We cut the following exquisite little gem from Blackwood's Magazine. It occurs in "Mr. Buttle's Review" of a book of poems, by Chas. G. Eastman:

She is lying,
With her lips apart;
She is dying,
Softly
Of a broken heart!

Whisper!
To her final rest.
Whisper!
Life is growing
Dim within her breast.

She is sleeping,
She has breathed her last.
Gently,
White you're weeping,
She to Heaven has past!

VARIETY.

Extravagance and Improvidence end at the prison door.
It is easier to build two chimneys than keep one in fuel.
A LOST ART.—The art of making large loaves, with the effluvia of habit, but of thinking—Goldsmith.
Stone bullets were used until the year 1514, when iron came into use. It was near the close of the sixteenth century before leaden bullets were generally adopted. Stone cannon balls are yet used in the East.
SOLITUDE.—The life of a solitary man will be certainly miserable, but not certainly devout.—Dr. Johnson.
SUPERFICIAL OBSERVERS.—They are all discoverers that think there is no land when they can see nothing but sea.—Bacon.
One should not dispute with a man, who, either through stupidity or shamelessness, denies plain and visible truths.—Locke.
Nothing can constitute good breeding that has not good nature for its foundation.
The labors of manhood, and the smiles of the pillow of age. To her we offer the warmest sentiments of gratitude and love.

"SUCH A GETTEN UP STAIRS."—The Scientific American says that a man in Orange county, New York, was found one night climbing the overshoot wheel in a falling mill. He was asked what he was doing. He said he was "trying to go up to bed, but some how or other these stairs won't hold still."
A few days since, a barber offered a reward of fifty dollars for the best receipt for "instantly removing superfluous hair." Among the answers was one forwarded by a gentleman in Kingston. We give it: "Undertake to kiss a woman against her will."
The phrase, "A Roland for an Oliver," signifies, giving an equivalent, the short history of which is this.—Roland and Oliver were two knights, famous in romance. The wonderful achievements of the one could only be equalled by those of the other. Hence the well-known phrase.
Daniel Daner, when he had £3,000 a year, used to beg a pinch of snuff from his friends, and when his box was full he carried it to a tallow candle. But his parsimonious ingenuity appears contemptible in comparison with that of the Russian miser, who learned to bark that he might avoid the expense of keeping a dog.
The attention of a little girl being called to a rose bush, on whose topmost stem the eldest rose was fading, but below and around which three beautiful crimson buds were just unfolding their charms, she artlessly exclaimed to her brother:—"See, Willie, these little buds have just awakened to kiss their mother before she dies."

TRUTH SIMPLY EXPRESSED.—It is not what people eat, but what they digest that makes them strong. It is not what they gain, but what they save, that makes them rich. It is not what they read, but what they remember, that makes them learned. It is not what they profess, but what they practice, that makes them righteous. These are very plain and important truths, too little heeded by gluttons, spendthrifts, bookworms and hypocrites.
"Mother," said a little girl, seven years old, "I could not understand our minister to-day, he said so many hard words. I wish he would preach so that little girls could understand him. Won't he, mother?" "Yes, I think so, if we ask him." "Soon after, her father saw her going to the minister's. "Where are you going, Emma?" said he. "An going over to Mr. —'s to ask him to preach smiler."

Recipe for dysentery which a Baltimore gentleman has never known to fail for twenty years. Take 17 grains rhubarb, 32 grains salt tartar, 48 grains precipitated chalk, 4 drops oil spearmint, 20 drops laudanum, 2 ounces soft water—put into a phial, and shake it well before using. Dose—for a child from one to four years old, one teaspoonful; for a grown person, one tablespoonful—to either, three or four times a day, each dose to be sweetened with loaf sugar, and kept in a cool place to prevent it from souring.
ANOTHER BLOW AT THE HOOPS.—A few days since, as a Roxbury friend, at the close of his labors of the day, was enjoying a comfortable ride home from his office in this city; in an omnibus partly filled with ladies, a gentleman upon the sidewalk signalled the driver to stop, and throwing open the door, sprang into the vehicle. His first step towards a seat, unfortunately influenced somewhat by the sudden motion of the coach, brought his right foot in contact with a lady's dress; and as, with a hasty expression, he strove to extricate it from the embraces of the hoop, he was suddenly plunged forward, and in a twinkling found his left foot in the same unfortunate connection with a hoop on the other side. This was more than our hero had bargained for. For a moment he seemed fairly nonplussed. "Good Heavens, madam!" said he, and then marvelously pulling the strap, he cried, "Stop, driver! stop! stop! stop! I thought I was getting into an omnibus; but I find it's a cooper's shop!"—Portfolio.

OUR HOMER.—Genius hath its triumph, fame its glories, wealth its splendor, success its bright rewards, but the heart only hath its home. Home only! What more needeth the heart? What more can it gain? A true home is more than the world—more than honor, and pride, and fortune—more than all earth can give—the light, the noonday sun may not yield, and yet the tiny flame of one pure beam of love enkindleth, and sympathy makes to burn forever.
Home! how more beautiful thou art! how like an untiring religion! a golden link between the soul and heaven! when the presence of a pure heart makes thee radiant, and the music of its affection floats like the chorals of unseen cherubim around thy tranquil hearth.
