Coal Oil.

Since the first developments which were made by experimental analysis showing that the Coal of the Breckinridge Company contains a large amount of oil suitable for illuminating and lubricating purposes, we have watched with great interest the progress of these experiments as of truly national importance, as giving a new impulse to the development of the mineral resources of the country, and as establishing the fact that we have within ourselves an inexhaustible supply of light, to be obtained with far less the expense, and labor, and danger, than the animal oil now in use. The whale, upon which we now depend for oil, is rapidly being driven by the energy of our fishermen into inaccessible seas, and will before many years, at the present rate of destruction, entirely disappear. By the discovery of the presence of & true illuminating and lubricating fluid residing in certain descriptions of coal, we have become independent of such a misfortune, and the whole whaling fleet might be laid up to rot, and we should still have light. The production of oil from coal is not a new discovery, but the discovery of coal beds in this country of a character to yield a sufficient amount of oil to pay the expense of extraction, has but recently been made. In Scotland the Boghead Coal has for several years been solely used for distillation, being far too valuable for fuel. The oil from this coal is used upon the English and French Railroads, and the demand is always in excess of the supply. Railroad managers prefer it to the best sperm oil. In Nova Scotia there is another deposit of coal at the Prince Albert Mine which also yields a good quality of oil; and these, with the exception of the Breckinridge, are the only localities yet known where the coal yields a sufficient quantity of oil to pay the expense of manufacturing. Since the experiments of the Breckinridge Co. where made with such a successful result the whole country has been explored for oil-bearing coals, but thus far the experiments have resulted in disappointment. No coal has been yet found which could be made to yield much more than one-half the results of the Breckenridge, and of course could not come into competition with it.

When the announcement was first made of the developments in regard to the value of this coal for distillation, the statements were ridiculed as incredible; but the practical working result has, if anything, exceeded the anticipations excited by the preliminary experiments. The products of the oil are purer, and the quantity larger. The purposes to which they can be applied are also more numerous. We have taken up this matter at this time to show the public what has been the progress of this Company during the last six months, and what may be expected for the future. These results are of manifest public importance, as marking the advance of a new branch of industry, and an entirely new development of the mineral wealth of our country. When the experiments with this coal had fully satisfied the parties engaged in them of its great value as an oil producer, a Company was at once formed, under the management of the Messrs. Cairns, who made a contract for a series of years with the Breckinridge Coal Company for a supply of their coal, and commenced putting up works for manufacturing oil at Cloveport, Ky., the shipping port on the Ohio River of the Coal ENGLISH AND AMERICAN PAPERS Company. As the works approached completion, and as the great value of the Breckinridge Coal for oil purposes became more thoroughly established, it was thought to be the best policy for both parties to consolidate the Coal and Oil Companies, which were accordingly done. Extensive fire-proof works have been erected at an expenditure of $60,000, capable of containing thirty retorts, with the necessary tanks, stills, &c., for refining the crude oil. Of these, twelve retorts have been in operation for some months, and the remaining eighteen are ready. The operations of the Company have been very much embarrassed by the unusually low stage of water in the Ohio River, which, by entirely suspending navigation, has detained the additional stills of the Company at Louisville, and prevented the shipments of oil. The Company have now on hand 45,000 gallons crude oil and 5,000 gallons of refined, and are manufacturing at the rate of 6,000 gallons per week. The accumulation of crude oil is occasioned by the want of the stills detained at Louisville by low water. When these stills arrive, and the remaining eighteen retorts are brought into use, the product of the Company will be 15,000 gallons crude or 13,000 gallons refined oil per week. This would give 780,000 gallons or 19,500 barrels per annum. The substances obtained by the distillation of each tun of this coal are, burning and lubricating oils, benzole, naphtha, parafine and a residium of asphaltum. The coke left after the operation is used for fuel under the retorts and stills, and is ample for that purpose. Every tun of coal produces 90 gallons of crude, or 70 gallons of refined oil. The burning oil is used in lamps for all illuminating purposes. Its merits are cheapness, brilliancy and entire absence of danger of explosion, which makes the use of camphene so hazardous. Its illuminating power and duration of combustion are equal to the best sperm, while it costs only half as much. The lubricating product has been tested upon machinery and found to be equal to sperm for that purpose. As it can be sold at about one-half the price, the saving to railroads, machine shops, &c., must be very great. The benzole is used for the manufacture of gas in portable gas machines. These are much used in isolated buildings and in the country where gas companies are not yet an institution. The naphtha is used for various purposes, and is valuable as a solvent for India-rubber and gutta percha. The parafine is a product exactly resembling wax, and is used for making candles. The amount obtained of this product is some 2,000 lbs from 100 tuns of coal. This substance has been found very valuable in the tressing of tanned skins-putting on the fine face and softness which characterize the French-

At present, on account of the impossibility of shipping the products on the Ohio River, the Company are not prepared to supply the public, excepting in small quantities; but as soon as the river is at a boating stage-and the water is now rising-they will be receiving 6,000 or 8,000 gallons per week. one year, and also, as a premium, one year's subscription to the | Specimens of all the products can be seen at the office of the Company, No. 98 Broadway.

As an explication of the national importance of this enterprise, we have made a computation of its comparative results with those of the whaling fleet, by which it will be seen that the product is enormous in view of the capital, number of men and time employed. In 1855 there were engaged in the whale fishery 635 vessels, of all sizes, with an aggregate of about 200,-000 tuns, and employing in all departments some 15,-000 men and $10,000,000 capital. The product of the fishery was 72,640 barrels sperm and 184,915 barrels right whale oil. The average time employed to produce this result was 42 months for the sperm whalers, and 30 months for the right whalers, making a general average of 36 months. The sperm oil sold at an average of $1 77 2-10 per gallon, and the whale at 71 3-10. At these prices the aggregate sales of the entire product realized in round numbers ten and a half millions of dolllars. The present product of the Breckinridge works is, with 30 men, say 675,000 gallons annually. The same number of men and the same amount of capital as the whale fishery requires, employed in the production of oil from Breckinridge coal, would produce in twelve months the enormous amount of $275,000,000, instead of $10,500,000, as above. The whalebone in one case, and the products other than oil in the other, are omitted from the calculation. Of course this comparison is only made as a curiosity, for its wonderful results. No one supposes that whale fishing will be abandoned as long as whales can be found in the remotest portions of the great deep to reward the courage and enterprise of DATES' TRAVELS IN THE SANDWICH our hardy whalers. But we look to the Breckinridge Oil Company as a valuable auxiliary to supply the vacuum caused by the annually decreasing number of whales killed, and to keep down the prices of illuminating and lubricating oils within the means of laboring and mechanical classes. And in this light we take a warm interest in its success, and desire to aid it by all the means in our power .- N. Y. Tribune.
