though he perfectly understood what they were talking about, and giving his sides a shake laid himself down at his master's feet with an expression in his large eyes that said plainer than words—'No, nothing shall part us.'

ELOQUENT PASSAGE.—The following beautiful passage is from a lecture on "The Philosophy of Life," delivered by Mr. Winter, at Cambridge, Mass.:

For the greatest human intellects there is no exemption from the common doom. I have sometimes thought how sad, yet how sublime, must have been the emotions of that man, whose privilege it was to stand by the coffin of Shakspeare, and gaze on that sweet and noble face, when death had called out all the strange beauty which never lives till then. It was worth a life time to have stood there one minute—to have laid your hand on that broad brow, and started at the cold chill; and, so pausing, to have called up in memory all the magnificent creations of his genius, and worshipped him there in the silence and the gloom:

But he is dead and gone;

At his head a grass-screen turf.

CAPT. ROBERT BROWN—My dear Sir: I used your Bomb Lances in taking a whale, north, the rast season, which made 250 bbls. of oil. We never could have taken him without said lances, as our beats could not get near enough to use the com hand lance.

Yours Respectfully,

Life consists not of a series of illustrations, actions, or elegant enjoyments; the greater part of our time passes in compliance with necessities, in the performance of daily duties, in the removal of small inconvenies in the removal of small in ance of daily duties, in the removal of small inconveniences, in the procurement of petty pleasures; and we are well or ill at ease, as the main stream of life glides on smoothly, or is ruffled by small obstacles and frequent interruption. The true state of every nation is the state of common life. The manners of the people are not to be found in the schools of learning, or the palaces of greatness, where the national character is obscure or obliterated by travel or instruction, by philosophy or vanity; nor is public happiness to be estimated, by the assemblies of the gay or the banquets of the rich. The great mass of nations is neither rich nor gay: they whose aggregate constitutes the people are found in the streets and in the villages, in the shops and the farms; and from them, collectively considered, must the measure of general prosperity be taken. As they approach to delicacy, a nation is refined; as their conveniences are multiplied, a nation, at lenet a commercial nation, must be denominated wealthy.

Other testmonials can be seen by calling on the undersigned, agents, who have the Guns, Bomb Lauces and Harpoons for sale.

A GEM FROM JOHNSON.—The following passage from Dr. Johnson's "Journey to the Hebrides," is a beautiful rendering of a truth which cannot be too often rehearsed in the public ear:—

CAPT. ROBERT BROWN—Dear Sir: I take this opportunity to inform you that I used your Bombs on the voyage in the ship from Dr. Johnson's "Journey to the Hebrides," is a Herald, and found them effective in taking whales, and would recommend them to all whalemen, and especially around the ice. I also used the harpoon and got most of the whales by your forms and expression. Guns and apparatus.
