The total expenses of the common schools in Vermont in 1863 were $76,000. Population 215,726.

A district in Essex county, Massachusetts, has elected a pauper to the Legislature to save the community in which he dwelt the expense of his support. So says the New Bedford Standard.

The Bedouins, says the Levant Herald, have become so numerous and lawless of late in the Holy Land that it is unsafe to go even the shortest distance from Jerusalem. Jordan cannot be visited, having become "a hard road to travel."

PICKLED FEET FROM CHINA.—A tub of pickled feet (of Chinese women) has been received at the Hunterian Museum, London. They show the effect of the Chinese system of compression—in one case the outer toes are actually doubled under the sole making the foot only four and a half inches long, and other strange deformities are seen in all the specimens.

Fashion abroad is compelling the women to put on the appearance of men to such an extent that it will be difficult, by and by, to distinguish your sister from your brother in the street, or your mama from your papa. It is the mode now in Paris for ladies to wear high-topped boots and artificial moustaches, to smoke cigars and carry a cane.

"I don't see," said Mrs. Partington, as she came home from school and threw her books into one chair, and his jacket in another, and his cap on the floor, saying that he didn't get the medal, "I don't see dear, why you didn't get the medal, for certainly a more middle-aged boy I never knew. But so matter; when the adversary comes round again you will get it."

The emp and chest of Alexander Selkirk, the world-famed Robinson Crusoe of Defoe, has now become the property of a gentleman in London. These interesting relics have up to this time remained in the possession of Selkirk's descendants, in Largo, Fifeshire, where he was born. The cap was put upon a stalk and mounted with silver by Sir Walter Scott. It is made out of a coons nut, and rudely carved. The chest is very heavy, and is very curiously dovetailed.

CARICATURE.—The London Punch has been trying his hand at Henry Ward Beecher. Both pen and pencil have been excited in the poetry has more jingle than tangle in it. The drawing represents the British lion couchant, and the Brooklyn Pacificator with a cup of molasses, feeling the monarch of the forest with a spoon. Under the left leg of the lion tamer is a banner marked "brimstone." The cut has a sharper edge than the poetry.

EACH ONE A MISSIONARY.—It is said when Commodore Foote—whose loss the nation has lately called to mourn—was in Siam, he had upon one occasion the King on board of his vessel as a guest. Like a Christian man, as he was, he did not hesitate, in the royal presence, to ask a blessing, as the guests took their places at the table. "Why, that is just as the missionaries do," remarked the King, with some surprise. "Yes," answered the heroic sailor, "and I am a missionary."

The vessel's ram extends fifteen feet over the hull, composed of solid iron and wood, built in the strongest manner and sharp as a chisel at the end. It will now be about three months before the Dictator will be ready for service. Commodore John Rogers will command. The vessel in her entire proportions is a perfect success, fully coming up to the expectations of her constructors, and with ten and a half-inch iron armor, and with her powerful armament, will prove her right (as Captain Ericsson yesterday remarked) as being the best of the Dictator. Her consort, the Puritan, will not be ready for five months. She is of similar build and model.

THE NATIONAL ARMY AT SPRINGFIELD.—Since the war began the United States army at Springfield has received extensive additions. New buildings have been erected and old ones enlarged, and now about 2,000 men are employed in the various departments. The purchases of coal for the present quarter amount to upward of 8,000 tons, while the consumption of bar-iron during this quarter is estimated at 1,250,000 pounds. The consumption of guns in the arsenal now amounts of 133,000. The total is increased daily by about 900 pieces, although the manufacture of barrels averages nearly 1,000 a day, and is diminished by orders from the government at irregular intervals, the issues during the last fortnight amounting to 14,000, while the previous fortnight there were none. About 40,000, however, are kept boxed, subject to call at any time.

Cost of the British Museum.—Established about a hundred and ten years ago, the cost to the British nation has been $16,695,885, of which sum no less than $4,675,115 was absorbed in salaries, and $12,020,770 in the maintenance and extension of buildings. The whole sum expended on manuscripts, books, natural history, and other objects, was $2,200,650. A faithful record of the Astor Library expenditure would show a much greater proportion expended on books. The gifts to the British Museum have been of great value. In 1707, George II. presented it with the Royal Library, founded by Prince Henry, eldest son of James I.; in 1823, George IV. presented his father's collection of 120,000 volumes formed in Buckingham House, and many private persons have been proportionally, even still more liberal.

A MONSTER TURTLE.—There arrived at one of our wharves lately, the pilot-boat Sea Foam, having on board a monster turtle, weighing twelve hundred pounds. He was caught about ten miles from this port, after a conflict of ten hours. He would go down, remaining under water for some minutes, and then coming up, spout like a whale, and remain on the surface fifteen or twenty minutes, swimming about as fast as a boat is rowed. He was severely wounded in a vital part before being taken on board, but lived until Thursday morning. His back is black, the shell divided into five parts by ridges—the belly spotted with white. With his head a foot long, he measured seven feet from his nose to his tail, and girthed ten feet. He was two feet thick, and about five feet from side to side, being of a regular oval form; when his fore flippers were extended, they measured eight and a half feet to tip. Many old salts examined him, but not one ever saw the like for size in any part of the world. He was doubtless what is described in the books as the "Leathery Turtle."—Fortnightly Journal.

ONE OF THE MARVELS OF THE AGE.—What has become of it?—Some three years ago all Europe was agog. A leviathan steamship had been built which was to transport tens of thousands of human beings across the ocean in an unprecedentedly short space of time. Old Neptune was vanquished and John Bull was the individual who did the deed. Crowds flocked to the Thames river to see the huge steamer; new piers were built for her; income was offered up to the huge monster. In this country she created the same enthusiasm—caused the same inquiry now as "What has become of the Great Eastern?" A glance at our advertising columns will solve the mystery. There, under the head of "Auction Sales," you may ascertain the fact that on the 14th day of January next, the renowned paddle and screw steamship Great Eastern, 22,710 tons, 670 feet in length, 82 feet in breadth, and having four paddle engines of 1,000 horse and four screw engines of 1,600 horse power, will be sold at auction, by order of the mortgagees, at the sale-rooms of Messrs. Conard, Wilson & Co., Liverpool. What a comment upon the uncertainty of human events! Big ships, like great men, come to grief, it seems, and get knocked down. The lesson is replete with instruction.—Nev. Herald.
