The Ship Long Due.

You're gazing with a troubled eye Across the ocean blue; You say you're looking for a ship Now many long weeks due.

American postage stamps.

- Well met, my friend. I wait my white I, too, have anxions fears:
- But, ah! my vessel has been due
- For many, many years.
- I sent the pretty venture out 'In youth's sweet long ago;
- Her pennon boasted rainbow hues, Her sails were white as snow.
- With not a flaw from steam to stern,
- And not a spot or stain,
- She bore herself right gallantly Upon the peaceful main.
- Well freighted with my rosy hopes, Of which there was no lack,
- I hade her bring me precious fruit
- In lien, when she came back.
- But I have waited now, my friend, So many Winters through,
- I think I scarce should know again My bark and fairy crew.
- And yet our ships may yet come in
- When we expect them least, Well laden with a cargo fine On which our souls may feast;
- Yet should they fall to reach us here, There is a harbor where
- They may cast anchor yet, my friend, A port screne and fair.

VARIETY.

A subscriber to a southwestern paper died recently, leaving four years' subscription unpaid. The editor appeared at the grave and deposited on the coffin a palm-leaf fan, a linen coat, and a thermometer.

Now there abideth these things, which every man can do better than any one else-Poke a fire. Put on his own hat. Edit a newspaper. Tell a story-after the other man has begun it. Examine a railway time table,-Hawkeye.

A little girl the other day told the schoolmistress there was sickness in her house, and was sent home to learn the name of the disease. Next morning after roll call she bashfully advanced and said; "Please, Miss, ma says we have a little baby at our house; but you needn't be afraid, for it ain't catching."

A Yorkshire trainer lately revealed his method of meeting a conjugal storm. His plan, he said. was to keep silence and nod his acquiescence to everything, no matter what was said by his spouse. "Yes," remarked one of his friends, DRS. F. H. ENDERS, & J. H. BEMISS, OFFICE. WAILURU, MAUL. but then she has it all her own way." "Just so," replied the Tyke, with satisfaction; " and nothing annoys her so much. There is nothing women hate like a walk-over.

Mark Twain contributed $25 towards defraying the expenses of the battle-flag celebration at Hartford, but took it out of the money that he intended to spend for a pew in a church. The following is his defence of that course: "There is nothing nobler than for religion to support patriotism, and nothing wiser than for both to uphold and encourage domestic economy; therefore I subtract this sum from the pew rent.

Old Mr. Harris, of Dubuque, called on his friend of former years, General Grant, at Galena, and, taking two cigars from a roll of paper, said: "General, you gave me one of these cigars whenyou were a General of the army, and I resolved not to smoke it until you should be made President. The second you gave me in your first term, and I resolved not to smoke it until you were again President. Now I want another cigar.' The eighr was given without a word.

Mr. Buxron is a brewer and a Liberal candidate of Essex. Mrs. Buxton is benevolent and advocates temperance. The other day, says Truth, she addressed an audience of workingmen on the waste of money and loss of time hy drinking and smoking, but her peroration was AGENT TO TAKE ACKNOWLEDGMENTS TO interrupted by a ludicrous incident which was the more unpleasant as it left her with no dignified or adequate retort. " Ah, missus!" shouted one of the hearers, " where 'ud you be if us didn't drink ? It's all along of us drinking as the Buxtons be so fine: you'd be wass off without it, now, wouldn't you?" A PROVIDENT citizen before leaving town for a trip with his family affixed inside his hall door a placard couched as follows: "To burglars or those intending to burgle-All my plated jewelry and other valuables are in the Safe Deposit Company's vaults. The trunks and cupboards contain nothing but second-hand clothing and similar matters too bulky to remove, on which you would realize comparatively little. The keys are Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats 'surnishing Goods, Ladies' and in the left-hand top drawer of the side board if you doubt my word. You will also find there a certified check to bearer for $10, which will remunerate you for your loss of time and disappointment. Please wipe your feet on the mat and don't spill any candle-grease on the carpets."

As the matrimonial season is approaching with frightful velocity, we reprint, for the benefit of thoughtless girls, Mr. Tennyson's little gem en-titled " After a year;"

The young wife grabbed the griddle cakes From their place on the glowing stove ; And her thoughts went back a twelvemonth since, When Augustus was telling his love.

. How he vowed that Earth had never held A treasure so rare as his pet :

And that after the weiding he'd toil for her As never a man telled yet. "But that was a year ago," she said

As the griddle cakes fell on a plate; "And now the ornery, stump-nosed cuss

Won't get up to put coal on the grate." Whisteing is not a lofty nor yet a useful although it is a universal accomplishment. Though you practise a hundred years, and though you whistle never so whistley, yet the commonest switch-engine that ever scared a human being deaf can beat you at it. The great and good were never great whistlers. George Washington never sat in a friend's office, with his feet on the window-sill, whistling "Grandfather's Clock" against the edge of a card. Strive to emulate George Washington, and although you may never be first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of your countrymen, yet fame will not forget you if they can write upon your tombetone that you never whistled your countrymen into convulsions of intemperate but fruitless profanity. The Virginia City Chronicle says: A saloonkeeper went down to the train last night to overhaul a man who owed him $16. He announced his intention of wiping the platform with the man if he once got hold of him. He found the man, and the two had a talk about the debt. The creditor told a pitiful story about his bard luck, and said he had only just enough money to get to Elko. The saloon-keeper is a kind-hearted German, and, after hearing the story of the fellow's misfortunes, the tears stood in his eyes, and low's misfortunes, the tears stood in his eyes, and he remarked: "Mine Got, Pill, is dot so? Vell, MPORTERS AND COMMISSION MERhere's two toller and a half for you to get grub on the vay," and, thrusting the money in the man's hand, he pressed it with a warm grip and a tremulous "Good by, Pill," and went up town

On reaching the pavement he walked up the street and meeting a policeman repeated his request to be arrested, which was again refused. He became greatly enraged and exclaiming to the office. greatly enraged and, exclaiming to the officer, You wont arrest me, wont you!" struck him two heavy blows over the head with a heavy cane which he carried. The officer was partially stunned by the blow, but recovered and grasping his assailant marched him into the station, where the individual gave the historic name of John Jones. He was committed for the action of the Criminal Court for assaulting the jofficer, and a few hours Court for assaulting the joincer, and a few hours later was comfortably lodged in jail according to DEALERS & BOOK BINDERS.
