SUPREME COURT.

IN PROBATE.

MONDAY, Sept. 12th, 1881—Before Mr. Justice McCully.

In re the estate of Kihewa (w), deceased. This was an application for letters of administration in favor of Apiki (k), Mr. Holokahiki appeared for the petitioner and for others interested in the estate. After evidence had been taken, the Court adjourned the hearing to Wednesday, in order that better securities might be procured.

In re the Will of Daniel Smith, deceased. This was an application for probate and for letters of administration to be granted to the widow of deceased. The executor under the Will having declined to act, and renouncing the executorship in open Court, an order was made in accordance with the petition.

THURSDAY, 14th—Before Mr. Justice Judd. In re the estate of Andre Machado. The administrator, Mr. A. J. Cartwright, presented his accounts, and was discharged. Mr. John Ribello was subsequently appointed as guardian of the persons of the minors Mary and John Ribello, who are heirs to the estate; and Mr. Cartwright, guardian of the property.

In re the estate of J. K. Kono, deceased. Accounts were presented by the administrator Mallohi, which were approved. Mallohi was appointed guardian of her son Kawa, one of the devisees under the will, and an order was made that his share of the property—a sum of $300—should be deposited in the Savings Bank by the Clerk of the Court.

WEDNESDAY, 13th—Before Mr. Justice McCully. In re the estate of Kihewa (w), deceased. Proper security being forthcoming, the Court appointed Apiki (k) administrator of the estate. In re the estate of Kalo (w) and Kalaina (k), late of Maloia, Kauai, Waialeale (w), the aunt of Kalo, had applied for letters of administration, and to be appointed guardian of the heir Kalaina. Objections to this application were lodged by Pua, the uncle on the father's side of the child Kalaina. Pua brought the child to the Court, where the little fellow slept very soundly in an arm-chair during the greater part of the hearing of the case, not being aroused even by the impassioned oratory of his uncle's counsel, Mr. J. L. Kaulukou. After hearing a number of the witnesses, the Court decided that Pua was the more suitable guardian for the child, and suggested that, as he resides in Kauai, he should appoint a responsible agent to look after the rents of the property in Honolulu, which consists of land and buildings near King-street, and is valued at $3,000. Mr. W. C. Jones was counsel for the petitioner Waialeale.

Is Eager. Lulu Chock et al. vs. Chung Wah et al. This is a suit for dissolution of a partnership and settlement of accounts between the parties. Mr. Hatch appeared for the petitioners. Mr. Russell appeared for one of the defendants, Chen E. Shin, and argued that the latter was not a partner at the time of the prayer for dissolution. The Court held that Chen E. Shin was a partner in the partnership, and that the suit should proceed. Mr. Russell was counsel for Chung Wah, and the further proceedings were ordered to stand over until that gentleman's return to Honolulu.

THURSDAY, 14th—Before Mr. Justice McCully. In re the estate of Kapolei. Application for letters of administration in favor of Mihahala (w), and Samuel Kaeo her husband. The petitioner is daughter of deceased's third husband, but Kapolei was not her mother. In view of the absence of the husband (father of petitioner), the Court continued the matter till 21st instant, to enable him to appear. Mr. Hatch appeared for petitioner.

In re the estate of J. H. Mahali (k). Letters of administration were granted to Kaulukou Mui, widow of deceased. Mr. W. L. Holokahiki appeared for the petitioner.

Is Anything Fit to Eat?
(From the New York Herald.)

From the objections that are made to one after another of the common articles of diet it would appear that there is among us a number of base persons who are conspiring to make trade for grave-diggers. There is not a single dish in common use but is soundly abused by some one; bread is said to be worthless because it lacks the gluten of the wheat, butter is said to be the cause of biliousness, salt thickens the blood and makes the user cross, milk softens the muscles and bones, beefsteak contains prussic acid, mutton is unfit to eat unless it has been kept so long that it is unfit to smell, pork means trichinae, fish thins the blood, tomatoes produce cancer, berries sour on the stomach, the coats of which are ruined by rhubarb stalks in pie or sauce; green beans produce boils, and the dreary list might be extended indefinitely. Between all these calamities and death by starvation there is not much choice, unless one prefers to prolong a miserable existence by using some of the alleged foods that are put up in bottles with attractive labels. Yet someone goes on eating all these things, and things and when any particular food product fails and another is substituted the health of the public does not seem to suffer by the change. If the people who buy family groceries will pay less attention to the quality of the food than to the quantity, and give more attention to the methods of cooking as well as make food more palatable and easy of digestion there need be very little fear of the nation going to the wall. The rough materials brought to the cook. It is the dry, tough steak, the lathery slices of fried ham, the underdone vegetables and overdone meats, the greasy pies and heavy cakes that play the mischief with digestion, health and temper.

Some twenty-five Chinese students arrived in San Francisco last month, and were registered at the Palace Hotel, preparatory to leaving for home on the next steamer. The San Francisco Chronicle says of them: "The Chinese Government at some young men, with a view of stimulating the young men in the Government schools to close application to study and of elevating the educational standard, resolved to offer as an incentive a series of competitive examinations. Those who showed the greatest proficiency were to be allowed to study abroad. The main subjects were English and Chinese literature. Gentlemenly department was also an indispensable factor. In this way the idea of sending Chinese students abroad was carried into practice, and continued until the present time. The cause of the withdrawal of these students was ascribed to the increased want in China of fiscal officers as well as skilled telegraphic operators who knew Chinese and English. Another reason was the desire of the Chinese Government to secure a military education for the young men, which was found impossible in this country. The students were dressed in American clothes, but laid much stress on the fact that this had been done out of deference to the country which had received them, and not because they had grown tired of their national dress. "Well," asked the reporter of one of them, "has not your sojourn here affected your former ideas as to customs at home?" "No," were the answer, "we are going to pay each other the same respect as we do to you." But place it as a matter of convenience I would rather assume the Oriental style. We have a brilliant prospect before us and cannot afford to risk anything by the loss of our country. But place it as a matter of convenience I would rather assume the Oriental style. We have a brilliant prospect before us and cannot afford to risk anything by the loss of our country. But place it as a matter of convenience I would rather assume the Oriental style. We have a brilliant prospect before us and cannot afford to risk anything by the loss of our country.

Two fashionable young men, who are regular attendants at Dr. Pentecost's Ebenezer chapel, on their way to church the other Sunday paused in front of Fritz's beer saloon, on the corner of Austin avenue, when one of them said: "Do you think it is wrong to go in and get a cold glass of beer before the church service begins?" "Are you going to pay each drop?" asked the other. "Not much; I am going to make Fritz hang it up on the slate with the rest." "It is that case we are doing a good deed. Fritz will never get his money, and that will be a lesson to the Dutchman. Let him see that it is wrong to sell beer on the Lord's day." Times Sittings.

HOM INFLUENCES.—Do not forget that children are far more sensitive and observant than they have the means to evince. They feel a slight more keenly, a realization of wrong more acutely, and a glowing sense of gratitude more ardently, than grown people ever do. The scenes of childhood are the memories of future years.
