THE ENTHUSIASM IN TOWN he Reception of the News-An Im mense Jabilee - The Whole Town Turns Gui-An Indescribable Babel of Noise-The Arrival of the Excursionists-The Big Bonfire on Gym.

Lot-Scenes and Incidents. A big crowd gathered before the Southern New England Telephone company's building on Court street a little before 7 o'clock t watch the bulletins of the race announced from the telephone headquarters. To those in the crowd who were unable to get nea snough to read the bulletins, the result at the end of each mile was made known by means of flags hoisted upon the flag pole on the roof of the building. Once only the Harvard colors were raised half way up the flag-staff, and several Harvard men in the erowd cheered; but the blue fisg soon took its place and the bystanders had the laugh on the Harvard men, who cheered too soon. Almost the minute the news of Yale's victory came the din and noise about town began, and thereafter until midnight there was a small edition of pandemonium, or as an old lady on Chapel street expressed it, "It seemed as if the old boy was let loose," Chapel street from State street to the colleges was allowed the colleges was the college was allowed to the colleges was allowed to the colleg alive with people, and with the crowds of people and snapping of crackers, the blow-ing of innumerable tin horns and displays of fireworks, the 4th of July was almost discounted. Everybody was happy displays of freworks, the 4th of July was almost discounted. Everybody was asppy over Yale's victory and scores upon scores of the young ladies promenading on Chapel street in the throngs wore the Yale blue in some pretty device or other. Enthusiasm was everywhere displayed, and Yale blue was displayed at many of the stores, and many youngeters stood with blue flags in favorable places for viewing the procession. Everybody was on tiptoe to welcome home the winning crew and see the big pow wow and the triumphal procession. The lateness of the hour when the trains arrived from New London had thinned out the crowds considerably; nevertheless 5,000 people at least were gathered on Chapel street when the procession arrived which was at half-past 11. Brilliant displays of fire were made along the route of the procession, viz.: from the depot up Stats, to Chapel, to High, to the Tra. Hot. Noticeably fine was the display from the Quinnipiac club building, where also a band discoursed music and a mammoth. where also a band dissoursed music and a mammoth American flag was displayed; and at Captain Gessner's Apothecaries Hall, which was a depot for red fire supplies for the night, and at the Republican League building, which was brilliantly lighted up and filled with ladies and gentlemen viewing the scene. The procession was led by carriages in which were gentlemen with ladies bearing aloft the Yale blue and little brooms; and behind them came a dense throng of boys, students and townspeople throng of boys, students and townspeople and the American band, while the noise from a myriad of toot horns in the procession was deafening. But the crew—the winning crew—were not there. They had not arrived. When the procession reached Gym lota huge bonfire was blazing upon it, casting a lurid glare in the sky over the big elms and old buildings of Yale. As the town clocks struck midnight the crowds began to disperse homeward, but still the big bonfire blazed heavenward. An interesting scene at midnight was a group in a retired spot on the college campus. One of the group was an elderly refined lady, and she with two young ladies were listening with intense eagerness while a young Yalensian fired with the enthusiasm of the victory was telling the eager listeners how the Yale crew rowed, and a myriad of toot horns in the procession was special train about half-past one this morning. They were met at the depot by a large number of Yalensians and others and we accorded a royal reception. The crew mounted a tally-ho coach and with hundreds of happy followers amid giaring colored lights and numberless Roman candles were escorted up State street through Chapel street to the campus. The procession was headed by the Second regiment band. At the campus an other throng awaited them with tin horns fireworks and cannon crackers.

At last the race was over, the heroes hom-

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE. Chicage Puts Up a Strong Game and Aided by Boston's Listless Playing Defeats the Leaders Easily. CHICAGO, June 28.—Boston made consider able more errors than runs to-day and with their inability to hit Tener at the right time lost the game. The Chicagos began in the second to guage Clarkson's delivery and continued to do so at the proper time for run getting. Boston played very loosely throughout and was never able to get within winning distance. Chicago put life into their play at every turn, something they have failed to do of late. Burns and Bastian fielded their po-sitions finely. Farrell's running catch of Clarkson's foul fly in the third was deserving of all the applause it elicited. Attendance

Philadelphia Shut Out. PITTIBURG, June 28 .- It was a fine exhibit tion of ball playing at Recreation Park today. Galvin was invincible. Casey pitched a great game up to the ninth inning, when the home club earned their three runs on as many hits and a sacrifice. Pop Smith covered himself with glory at short, making two extraordinarily fine stops and throws to first base. Dunlap let nothing escape him at sec-ond. The only error of the day was an ex-cusable muff of a foul fly by Mulvey. The
