SMALLPOX REMEDIES—Sulphate of zinc, one grain; fox glove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two tablespoonful of water. When thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child smaller doses according to age. "I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man," wrote Edward Hine to the Liverpool Mercury, "if the worst case of smallpox cannot be cured in three days, simply by the use of cream of tartar. One ounce of cream of tartar dissolved in a pint of water, drunk at intervals when cold, is a certain never failing remedy. It has cured thousands; never leaves a mark; never causes blindness, and avoids a tedious lingering."

Obituary.
DIED—At his home in Wa-Keeney, on February 19, 1901, of consumption—T. R. Moore, of Trego county, Kansas.
T. R. Moore, the subject of this obituary was born February 27, 1857, at Mooresburg, Indiana. His father died when he was a boy. At the age of 17 he taught school in the winter and worked on the farm in the summer.
He came to Kansas in 1878 and located in Johnson county where he had relatives. He stayed there only a short time. In 1879 he took a year's course at the State Agricultural college at Manhattan sending most of his time studying telegraphy. In '80 he went to Smith county and took a homestead near the town of Gaylord. That being census year he was appointed one of the enumerators for Smith county. He taught school and improved his homestead. In 1882 he sold his homestead and located at Buffalo Park where he had charge of the railroad station. He also worked at Grinnell and River Bend, Col. In the spring of 1884 he came to Wa-Keeney as our station agent. While engaged as agent he purchased the Commercial house and later he quit the railroad. He was proprietor of the Commercial house until the great fire in the spring of '92 which swept away his property as well as that of many other business men of this city. Nothing daunted he commenced life again. From 1890 to 1893 he served as clerk in the land office. In 1893 he was elected county treasurer of Trego county. He was re-elected in 1896. Before the completion of his official duties he established a store in this city which engaged his attention until some months ago when failing health compelled him to take a vacation and endeavor to recuperate in the mountains of Colorado. His fatal malady had fastened upon him too strongly however, and he came home to wait patiently and courageously for the grim messenger.

The untimely demise of this most excellent citizen and public spirited gentleman has cast a pall of gloom over this community, and removed from our midst one of the kindest and best of men. Known by all, respected by all, his intimate acquaintances loved him dearly. His business reputation was the highest; his private life was beyond reproach. When he once bestowed his friendship upon a man, and his adoption tried, he grasped him to his soul with looks of steel. Of Tom Moore it might well be said that he had the undisputable evidence of all high character, unspotted integrity and honor unimpaired. Nothing groveling, low, or meanly selfish ever came near his head or his heart. In all his going out and coming in before us, for nearly twenty years, his daily life and character was without variability or shadow of turning.

The deceased leave a wife and three children, and a wide circle of relatives and acquaintances who will mourn the loss of a careful husband, an affectionate father, a high-minded citizen and a faithful friend. He was a member of the Masonic Order and of the Modern Woodmen and left a modest competence of property and $5,000 of life insurance.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Johnson, of Ellis, assisted by Rev. Gunckel, of this city, in the M. E. church, Thursday at 2 p. m. In the tranquil little cemetery southeast of this city, where the billowing prairie catches the last rays of the setting sun, and where the summer zephyrs and the winter winds will chant his requiem, peacefully sleep the mortal remains of our genial host, the efficient public servant, the enterprising merchant, the upright citizen, the loved and the mourned Tom Moore.

Ever since the first days of the so-called Farmer's Alliance movement in Kansas there has been a growing disposition on the part of our people to look with suspicion upon all alleged reform movements with brass band accompaniments. It is recalled that one Peffer broke the stillness of the prairie with his stentorian calls for reform and succeeded in landing himself in the United States senate; that Mrs. Lease filled the air with wails for the down-trodden and oppressed and put money in her purse; that Jerry Simpson wept briny tears of compassion for the poor and got rich; that Webb McNeill held up the insurance companies in the interest of the "dear people" and became—notorious. They also recall the fact that all these noisy reformers lived their allotted time and then passed into oblivion, and they expect a like fate to overtake their successors and imitators. The latest of these is a woman who has gained some notoriety as a smasher of joints. In due time she will join Peffer and Lease and Simpson and McNeill and the rest and become an unpleasant memory.—Gaylord Herald.

Loomiller Found Dead Near a Cemetery in Indiana
HAZLETON, Ind., Feb. 14.—The body of J. C. Loomiller was found near the cemetery here yesterday. Near by was found an empty revolver. Loomiller came from Oklahoma. He was wealthy. He was blind and went about with a long stick. It was thought he was murdered for the money he had with him.
H. E. Puette of Kansas City tells this story in connection with the death of J. C. Loomiller in the Star:
"About ten years ago I was visiting my brother, who was agent for the Union Mutual Insurance company at Quincy, Ill. Mr. Loomiller, who was a wealthy farmer at Liberty, Ind., came to his office with his wife and wanted to place $10,000 each on his and his wife's life. He wanted the policies drawn so that in case either died the other would get the money. My brother talked to me about the case and I ventured the opinion that one of the two intended to murder the other for the insurance. I pointed out that he had no interest in her as a risk and he was not a money getter, so that her interest in him was little. My brother wrote the insurance, however."

"A short time later Mr. Loomiller took out $10,000 more on each of them in different companies. Sure enough, a month later, Loomiller came running into the town and said he found his wife and little niece murdered in his house. When the neighbors got there they found the wife and girl literally hacked to pieces and a hatchet laid near them on the floor. Loomiller was indicted by the grand jury for the murder. His hands and clothing were bloody, but he explained that was because he had stumbled into the blood when he went into the house. He was nearly blind. The indictment rested for a long time and the case never came to trial. He collected the insurance and went to Guthrie. He became very rich and had holdings in Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma and Anthony, Kan.

Loomiller was about 55 years old, tall, with dark hair and mustache. The man who was found dead is certainly the same man I knew."
[Loomiller was a great chum of Abe Frakes and paid him several visits during his reign as chief mogul of the Deme-Pop crowd in this county. In the fall of '97 Frakes ran for commissioner and he imported Loomiller from Indiana to help him do his dirty work. Loomiller had the gall to stand up before God and his fellow man and swore that he was a resident of Trego county.]

Don't curse the blamed trusts and then the minute you get ten dollars ahead send an order to Montgomery Ward, Sears, Roebuck, etc., and help support one of the biggest trusts in the country. What if you do get your goods a little cheaper—that is what the trusts do. They crush competition by their contention. Every dollar sent to mail order houses is just that much toward building up trusts. Montgomery Ward is not a philanthropist in any sense of the word. He is a shrewd business man and by judicious advertising has built up a trust that bids fair to wreck majority of small towns. If you desire this send them your cash and get credit of your home merchants and denounce the trusts. Let your actions speak for you and preach what you practice.—Abilene Chronicle
