

A NEW PAPER.—Messrs. Ticknor & Fields, Boston, commenced the publication of a Weekly paper, on the 6th inst., entitled "Every Saturday, a Journal of Choice Reading," selected from foreign current literature, in which the cream of the best foreign periodicals will be reproduced for American readers.

TERMS: Single number, 10 cents; $5 per year. Monthly parts, 123 pages, handsomely bound, 50 cents, or $5 a year. Subscribers to the "Atlantic" or "Our Young Folks" can have "Every Saturday" at $4 a year.

GLEASON'S LITERARY COMPANION.—This truly excellent and beautiful Weekly, Gleason's Illustrated Literary Companion, for this week, and the new year, has been received. This number is finely illustrated with numerous and well executed engravings, and is the first number of a new volume, containing sixteen elegant pages, as open and fair as any reader's eye would desire to feast upon.

ANOTHER DAILY.—We find on our table the first number of the Daily Herald, Plattsburgh, N. T. It is small, but contains a large amount of energy and go-aheadiveness, and if the people of Plattsburgh and Cass County, wish this little Daily to grow into newspaper manhood, and become the size of a "bed-blanket," they must support it liberally.

"PROCRUSTINATING IS THE TRICK OF TIME."—By delaying, and forgetting to have a supply of Coe's Dyspepsia Cure in the house, ready for immediate use, you may have to suffer, for many hours, pain and distress in the stomach, which would be immediately cured if you already had on hand, ready for immediate use.

COE'S COUGH BALM may also always be relied on in cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, coughs, and all throat and all pulmonary complaints.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—FEMALE COMPLAINTS.—No other medicines of the day possess the property of restraining those inordinate flows incidental to the gentler sex, and which are the sad results of nervous debility or enfeebled constitution.

GREATEST ADDITION TO PHILOLOGY IN HALF A CENTURY.—The most important contribution to Philology, during the year 1866, was the publication of the illustrated edition of Webster's Quarto Unabridged Dictionary.

On Tuesday night, the 2d inst., a man living near Mt. Florence, Jefferson County, got into a quarrel with some returned soldiers, over an accusation made against him of running away from the draft.

Major J. A. Borbank, Indian Agent, arrived in Washington, on the evening of the 2d inst., accompanied by his eight "Big Indians."

THE KANSAS FARMER.—In another column will be found the advertisement of the Kansas Farmer. It is what it purports to be—a live Western journal—devoted to the interests of Kansas yeomanry, and no farmer should be without it.

TRIBUNE ALMANAC.—We have received this little book for 1866. It contains 96 pages, and is filled with valuable statistics, in both Astronomical and Political Departments.

ENLARGED.—The Lawrence Tribune comes to us enlarged and materially improved—being the second enlargement within two months.

A Report of the Geological Survey of Miami County, Kansas, by G. C. Swallow, State Geologist, and F. Hawn, Assistant, has been sent us. To it is attached a Sectional Map of Miami County. It contains a history of climate, soil, products, etc.

BOLD ROBBERY.—We learn by the Okaloosa Independent that the Jefferson County Treasury safe was blown open, on Wednesday night of last week, and robbed of its contents.

JEFF. DAVIS TO BE TRIED.—As soon as the necessary legislation is completed by Congress for the holding of a United States Court in Richmond, the trial of Jeff. will immediately commence.

The Burlington (Kansas) Patriot comes to us enlarged. It is now a neat, well printed, seven-column journal, and merits success.

Gen. Grant will occupy his new residence in Washington, about the 15th inst.

Hon. Henry Winter Davis. Our regular dispatches have heretofore announced the sudden death, on Saturday, the 30th ult., of him whose name stands at the head of this article, but a pressure upon our columns has heretofore prevented us from noticing in fitting and appropriate terms the passing away of one so distinguished as a scholar, orator, statesman and lawyer.

Thus has passed away one of Maryland's most gifted sons, leaving a moral and national reputation possessed by few of his age. He was scholarly to a degree of perfection seldom surpassed, soaring far above the common order of intellects.

While in Congress, in 1859, he avowed his entire independence of pro-slavery despotism by voting for Mr. Pennington, the Republican candidate for Speaker. The act drew down on him a storm of reproach and abuse.

Representing a Slave State and a Border State, he was, nevertheless, conspicuous in Congress for his uncompromising Radicalism, his early advocacy of Emancipation, of arming the negroes, and of every measure that looked to the establishment of a permanently free Union.

He was born in 1817, at Annapolis, Maryland, graduated at Hampton Sidney College, was bred a lawyer and a Whig, entered Congress in 1855, was re-elected, was chosen again to the XXXVIIIth Congress, 1863 to 1865, and served during those years as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Death of Governor Corwin. Hon. Thomas Corwin died in Washington, on Monday afternoon, December 18th. His decease will not take the public by surprise, as the severe stroke of paralysis which prostrated him a few days since could scarcely have had any other result.

Thomas Corwin was born in Bourbon County, Kentucky, July 29th, 1794.—His immediate ancestors went from New Jersey to Pa., from thence to Kentucky, and from thence to Ohio.

Now, how different! Peace, blessed peace like the fairest sunbeams, like the softest mantle, spreads itself over the land. The boys have come home. Some, ah, how many! sleep far away, the sleep of the patriot dead.

Though Judge Dunsley was a classical scholar, Thomas was then too young to derive any advantage from him except in the first beginnings of letters.

This continued to be his habit through early life, and he never lost more time in amusements or company than necessary courses required.

In 1814 he entered the clerk's office of Warren County, then or soon after under the charge of an elder brother, Mathias Corwin, Jr. Here he continued until 1815, when he commenced the study of the law, and in May, 1818, he was admitted to the bar.

His daughters were very bitter in their expressions as to the Yankees, and excused themselves for defective domestic arrangements by saying that the Yankees had stolen their negroes.

In 1836, and again in 1840, he supported General Harrison. Having been selected in 1840 as the candidate of the Whigs for Governor of Ohio, he delivered a brilliant speech, in reply to an attack of Gen. Cray, of Michigan, which probably suggested the policy of bringing him into more active service during the Presidential canvass of 1840.

Mr. Corwin was elected to the Senate of the United States in 1845, and was consequently a member of that body in 1846, when war with Mexico was declared, or rather to exist by act of Mexico.

In 1848 he supported Gen. Taylor as a candidate for the Presidency, and on the death of Gen. Taylor in 1850, he received from Mr. Fillmore the office of Secretary of the Treasury, which he filled until March, 1858, when he returned to Lebanon, Ohio, where he again engaged in the practice of his profession.

In 1858, however, he was again elected by the Seventh Ohio District to the House of Representatives in Congress.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH. NEW YORK, Jan. 10. The Herald's dispatch says the order recently issued, mustering out the troops in Virginia, was countermanded, yesterday, by the War Department.

A Happy New Year to All! It must be a subject of deep gratitude, that the new year, 1866, opens so auspiciously to all.

Now, how different! Peace, blessed peace like the fairest sunbeams, like the softest mantle, spreads itself over the land. The boys have come home. Some, ah, how many! sleep far away, the sleep of the patriot dead.

From the Washington Star, 29th. THE ARRIVAL OF SEMMES AT WASHINGTON. Interesting incidents of his arrest. Raphael Semmes, late commander of the Alabama, arrived here on the 10:20 New York train last night, in charge of Lieut. Lyman P. French and Sergeants Cassidy and Jones, United States Marines, and was at once taken to the Navy Yard, where he was placed temporarily in a room hastily fitted up in the dispensary building, over which a guard was placed.

He was arrested at his place, Spring Hill, about four miles from Mobile, Ala., on the evening of the 15th inst., about 8 o'clock, by Lieut. French and the Sergeants above named, on an order from the Navy Department, as he was sitting quietly in his parlor reading a paper.

His daughters were very bitter in their expressions as to the Yankees, and excused themselves for defective domestic arrangements by saying that the Yankees had stolen their negroes.

On the passage he was quite cheerful, and talked freely about his arrest and of his conduct during the war, and his prospects of an early trial, expressing himself willing to stand the trial, and arguing against the legality of his arrest.

The Louisville publishers having come to the conclusion that the issue of seven daily papers per week involved a greater amount of both mental and physical labor, and of wear and tear of body and mind, than mortals could be expected to stand for more than ten years on a stretch, have wisely determined heretofore to issue only six papers each week.

ESCAPE OF A WHITE BOY FROM THE INDIANS. A Story of Captivity. The St. Louis Democrat says: Lieut. Thomas E. Salles, of the Thirtieth Missouri Cavalry, communicates the following deeply interesting statement from Monard Station, Colorado Territory:

"On the 27th of November, 1865, a small boy supposed to be about twelve years old, of rather dark complexion, black hair and blue eyes, came into a rancho (near Monard Station of the overland stage line running from Acheson, Kansas, to Denver City, Colorado,) about one hundred and seventy miles East of Denver. He could speak very little plain English but by signs would be very easily understood. I (being in command of the military at Monard Station,) on hearing of his arrival, immediately brought him to my Station—He is now here, and is learning to talk very fast. He informs me that the Sioux Indians have held him captive for many years, but he don't know how many. He don't know anything about his parents, but supposes they were killed by the Indians at the time of his capture. He neither knows his name nor where he was captured. He left the Indians on the 24th of November, eighty miles South of this place, on the Republican River, three thousand in number. He luckily made his escape on a pony, but running his pony to death the first night, he was then compelled to take it afoot for three days, arriving at the rancho on the evening of the 27th. All that he had to eat after leaving the Indians until he arrived at the rancho was one crow that he found dead, and a piece of dead ox. He says the Sioux Indians have two white women and several negroes captive now. He is a good looking and intelligent youth."

SOLDIERS' BOUNTIES.—Mr. Clarke, Representative from Kansas, introduced in the Senate, on the 14th, a bill, for equalizing the payment of bounties to soldiers. Not having a copy of the bill we cannot speak definitely as to its provision, but we are confident that it will be entirely satisfactory to the soldier and all interested.

THE WASHINGTON CHRONICLE says of it as follows: Mr. Clarke, of Kansas, introduced a bill (referred to the Committee on Military Affairs) to equalize the bounties of soldiers, by providing the uniform bounty of one hundred dollars per month, computing for the whole period of service, and counting the whole term of enlistment, in case of honorable discharge by reason of disability incurred in the service, or because their services were longer needed. All bounties heretofore paid to be deducted from the total allowance. In case of death the bounty to revert—first, to the widow; second, to his children; third, to the father, if his residence in the United States; next, to his mother; and next, to brother or sister.—Miami County Free Press.

THE KANSAS FARMER, A LIVE WESTERN JOURNAL, $1 Per Year. Address JOHN S. BROWN, Lawrence, Kansas. Jan. 11, 1866.

ON SATURDAY, January 6, 1866, Messrs. Ticknor & Fields will begin the publication of a Weekly journal entitled "Every Saturday," a Journal of Choice Reading, SELECTED FROM FOREIGN CURRENT LITERATURE.

Much of the best literature of the day is found in the English and Continental magazines and periodicals; and it is the design of the publishers of this journal to reproduce the choicest selections from these for American readers, in a form of once attractive and inexpensive. The Publishers believe that such a journal, conducted upon the plan which they propose, will be not only entertaining and instructive in itself, but interesting and valuable as a reflex of foreign periodical literature of the better class.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. Its plan embraces Choice and Descriptive, Serial Tales, Short Stories, Poems, Biographies, Literary Intelligence, etc., in connection with selections from the admirable popular papers of Science, which are constantly appearing in foreign periodicals. The value of these papers arises from the fact that scientific subjects, however harsh and dry in themselves, are here treated in so graphic and picturesque a style as to charm the reader while instructing him.

It will be, in short, the aim of its Publishers that EVERY SATURDAY shall command interest, freshness and variety to all classes of intelligent and cultivated readers.

TERMS: Single numbers, 10 cents; $5 per year, in advance. Monthly Parts will be issued, containing 128 pages each, handsomely bound in an attractive cover, price 50 cents. Subscription price $5 per year, in advance. Contributions.—Subscribers to any of the other Periodicals published by Ticknor & Fields will receive Every Saturday at 64 per year in advance. TICKNOR & FIELDS, Publishers, 236 Tremont Street, Boston.
