BY G. A. & J. P. CHAPMAN. INDIANAPOLIS, NOVEMBER 14, 1844. Volume IV: Number 21.

A simple and frugal Government, confined within strict Constitutional limits. A strict construction of the Constitution, and no assumption of doubtful powers.

Too Conscientious to Dance.

"May I have the pleasure of your hand for the next cotillon, Miss Anderson?" said a Mr. Green, addressing the young lady to whom he had been introduced at an evening party.

her ill-natural remarks.

"I find we are getting two parties in our evening social assemblies. A dancing party, and a party too conscientious to indulge in any amusements."

A Night with the Jacobin Club.

The following is from a powerfully written paper in a late number of Blackwood, entitled "Marston, or the Adventures of a Statesman."

THE CHURCH TREE OF ENGLAND.

The Church Tree of England.—The very demands special notice, as the church tree of England—many of the finest specimens of which are undoubtedly older than the fabric with which they are now associated.

Sayings and Sentiments of the Ancient Poets on Life and Death.

"Life, as well as all other things, has its bounds assigned by nature; and its course, like the last act of a play, is of a certain duration, of which we ought to be sensible, especially when our appetites are fully satisfied."

THE CHURCH TREE OF ENGLAND.

The title of an ancient statute (85 Edward I.) which runs "No Rector, Archdeacon, or Canon, proctor, or Curator, shall cut down the trees in the churchyard."
