Arrival of the Crescent City. The steamer Crescent City, from Chagres, arrived at 2 1/2 o'clock to-day, with fourteen days' later news from California, bringing dates from San Francisco to the 16th ult.

She brings three hundred and forty-two passengers and one million of dollars in gold dust as freight and passengers, and twenty-two thousand dollars in freight. No cases of cholera had occurred within the last two weeks at Chagres.

Cruzes and Panama are healthy. The isthmus roads to Cruces for the past two weeks have been in the most excellent condition and travelers have been enabled to pass over them with the greatest facility.

The Gorgona road is also represented to be in fine order. The steamship Tennessee arrived at Panama on the 4th inst., with one million of dollars in gold dust as freight and two hundred and fifty passengers.

The United States mail left San Francisco on the 15th September. The steamer Ecuador was expected here, having left San Francisco on the 15th September with sixty passengers.

Since the amputation of Mayor Bigelow's arm, everything has gone on most admirably, and the stump has already commenced healing. The wound through the body is in the most favorable state and doing as well as can be desired.

The news from the mines is favorable. We learn that on Watson's Rock, the miners are averaging half an ounce per day. Men are hired at rates of wages averaging from $8 to $8 per week.

From the south branch of the north fork of Feather river, we hear reports that most of the workmen are making fair wages. Rich dirt digging have been discovered between Nelson's creek and the mouth of Baite creek, which empties into the Sacramento.

Where the richest diggings exist is about eighty rods in length by fifty in width. The dirt has to be carried a considerable distance, but says those that are working from two to three ounces daily. This appears for a body to have been the best of the river, and the gold found here is very coarse and bright.

Henry S. Talle has failed to a very large amount. There had been a hard run on the banking houses, but they all stood it except the above.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS, Sept. 15.—Breadstuffs.—The transactions in breadstuffs have been large, particularly in flour, in first brands, in the neighborhood of $14 per barrel in port and to arrive, since which sales have been effected at $16; in half sacks at $8.50.

This had an effect in all other descriptions. Coffee—There is a better supply and prices are lower. Provisions are in good demand. Pickles and preserves are very dull.

Sugar—White has materially declined. Cigars—Common and middling qualities are more plenty; prime cigars could be sold above the highest quotations.

Liquors are plenty and without change in prices. Lumber—This article is no better; although the consumption is large, the receipts seem to keep pace with the demand. Sales made of 13,000 feet at $86, but in small parcels $100 is probably a small price.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18. The first fugitive slave case was decided to-day. A negro man residing here was claimed by a Marylander. Judge Grier, of the United States circuit court, thought that the negro had been proven to be the property of Jones, but, as the claimant had failed in making his case, the black man was discharged.

He was received outside of the court by a multitude of negroes whose conduct was so riotous as to call out the mayor, who begged of them to desist; all, however, to no purpose. The police officers were called to interfere, when one of them had one of his fingers bitten off by a black. Two blacks were arrested and held over to answer for resisting the laws.

Have nothing new commercially, either here or from New York. CINCINNATI, Oct. 19, 8 P. M. Weather clear and very cool. River rising slowly.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 19, 8 P. M. River still on a standstill, with one foot two inches water in the canal. Weather cold and cloudy. Keats was sentenced to-day to be hung on the 20th of December.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 19, 8 P. M. River four feet five inches by the metal marks and falling slowly. Weather cloudy and cool. The Clipper has left and the Keystone State arrived. The Keystone State will leave on Monday. Business on the wharf very animated.

The Old Thirteen States.

We have not seen any thing published as the offspring of the late anniversary of our National Independence, which passes more of the true spirit of patriotism and love of country than the following stanzas, which were offered as a toast on that glorious occasion.—East. Post.

God bless the good old Thirteen States, God bless the young ones too, Who care for many birth-day dates—God bless them all and new!

The old ones first our freedom gain'd, In bloody fights of yore, The young ones have their rights maintained, As the old ones did before.

Oh South or North, or East or West, Twin sisters all they be, One mother nursed them at her breast, And that was Liberty.

And may the wrath whose hand shall strive To cut their vital thread, Be scorched when in this world alive, And scorched when he is dead.

Now fill the bowl with Nature's wine, Let's drink "God save the King," The only King by right divine, The sovereign People King.

For they're the only King I own All others I despise, The King that towers above the throne, The King that never dies.

O! may that sceptre wide extend O'er every land and sea, Without beginning, without end, And conquer to the free.

Till Freedom's banner floats alone, A beacon in the sky, And man no other Lord shall own, But he who rules on high.

A Storekeeper having a hoghead to sell, A paper affixed with a seal, And being unable correctly to spell, Thereon had written "For Sale."

But shortly a schoolboy along the street came, Who clanking his pencil, wrote under the same "For freight on the tongue apply!"

Fainting Once too Often. Angelina was sitting in her chair, conversing with her aunt, Mrs. Lillywhite, a maiden lady of 40, when, (a thing of common occurrence) she began to commence a fainting fit. Mrs. Lillywhite jumped from her chair, gave her an ammonia ball, and she recovered.

"When I was eighteen, your age," said Miss Lillywhite, "and that, my dear, is nearly thirty years ago. I used to faint, too. I enjoyed fainting very much; indeed, my dear I question if ever you take greater pleasure in fainting than I do."

"Pleasure," exclaimed Miss Angelina. "Who could remain dull under such an imputation?" "O, I know all about it," said the remorseless Miss Lillywhite. "I can see it in your eyes, and in the way you draw upon me for notice; it made me as it were, the centre of a picture; and it was a pleasure—not a healthful one, certainly, but still a pleasure—to enjoy so much sympathy about me. To hear, whilst I was in the fit, I don't know, my dear, whether you hear, fainting, or not, as we do, I used to enjoy the excitement, and pity, and admiration, and—do you hear them, distinctly?"

"Angelina could not answer such a question; she could only look lightning—harmless, summer-lightning—at Miss Lillywhite, who, in her excitement, and therefore went on every reasonable opportunity. It was very wrong, but there was something pleasant, exciting in the words 'Miss Lillywhite fainted'; O, I can remember them, my dear, as though it was yesterday. But, my love, I used to enjoy the excitement, and therefore went on every reasonable opportunity.
