OTHER SIDE OF THE AFFAIR

Dawson's Account of the Trouble That Led to Captain Colbert's Charges.

Testimony That Shows the Sergeant Did Not Go Out of His Line of Duty—How Bresnan Treated Mr. Burdall.

The Police Commissioners' investigation of the charges preferred against Captain Campbell and Sergeant Dawson by Captain Colbert was resumed yesterday afternoon. Judge Claypool, on behalf of Colbert, announced that the prosecution had no more evidence to offer, and Sergeant Charles F. Dawson was called to the witness stand.

"I was just going back to the line of march myself," continued Sergeant Dawson, "when Captain Colbert caught me by the right arm and said: 'Look here, I want you to understand I am running things here.' I said: 'Oh, keep your pants on. You may be in charge, but I know what I am doing. I am doing my duty.' All the time Colbert was talking to me he was brandishing a cane. Just then Captain Campbell came up and asked Colbert what he was doing. Colbert made no answer until the question had been repeated three times, when he said, 'Oh, you are a fighting man. I don't want to talk to you.'"

"You say the Republicans asked where Coy and Bernhamer were," said Judge Claypool. "Yes, sir, I heard that frequently. 'Well, the men in line did not answer, did they?' said the judge, with a significant laugh. William H. Pray, of No. 318 Park avenue, the next witness, said he stood near the entrance of the hotel at the time the parade was being held at the main side of the hotel. While the Chicago man who was arrested by Bresnan, was simply harrassing for Harrison. Bresnan used a great deal of force, and with Sotters and the man outside the hotel. When the parade near when the trouble between Colbert and Campbell occurred. Campbell asked Colbert what the trouble was, and after the question had been repeated two or three times, Colbert answered that Campbell was a fighting man, and he (Colbert) was not. Captain Campbell did not shake his fist at Colbert.

J. A. Fletcher said that he saw patrolman Bresnan arrest one of the Chicago visitors, but as far as he could see the man was doing nothing. The captain of the Chicago Club had been going among his men telling them to put down their umbrellas. He was trying to prevent one to do so when Bresnan arrested the man. A few minutes after that occurrence he saw three or four officers wrangling with some citizens. A great crowd was gathered, and Sergeant Dawson came in and directed the officers to go out on the line of march and quit quarrelling with citizens. Order was at once restored.

That he might justify himself, and that the board might get some insight into patrolman Bresnan's motives in the case, Alfred Burdall, the paint manufacturer, was called to the stand. Patrolman Bresnan, on Monday, testified that Mr. Burdall was in the crowd, and attempted to incite a riot. Mr. Burdall said he was not within a square of the New Denison Hotel on that evening. With his wife he went to Tompkins Hall and heard Anna Dickinson speak. One day last week he met the man Bresnan, in the Mayor's court-room, and had been abused by him. He met Bresnan again last Friday, and was again abused by him. He told him he was not at the hotel," continued Mr. Burdall, "but he said every man before the Mayor attempted to prove an alibi. He then told me the first chance he got he would tell me the truth. He said: 'I wish I had pulled my pop that night, and if I had you would not be here.' Bresnan has been following me on the street, and making all kinds of threats against me. The commissioners took down Mr. Burdall's statement, and whatever the result of the investigation may be it is almost certain that Bresnan will be given his release. He is only an extra on the force.

S. L. Hewitt testified to having seen Mr. Burdall and wife in Tompkins Hall the night of the trouble. Others called to testify to the same thing, but the commissioners said they did not question Mr. Burdall's statement. W. L. Holman, Mr. Esieis and Frank L. Harrington corroborated the testimony of the other witnesses who had appeared for Sergeant Dawson and Captain Campbell.

IMPOSING ON THE CHARITABLE.

Monahan's Petition for the Relief of E. Hickey Brings Him to the Station-House.

M. H. Monahan, forty-seven years of age, and one who has the appearance of a gentleman, was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of obtaining money on false pretenses. About 3 o'clock he entered the office of the P. Lieber Brewing Company and presented to Albert Lieber a petition, which he said had been drafted by the Big Four switchmen. It is said that he asked for donations for E. Hickey, a switchman on the road named, who was represented to be in destitute circumstances. There is no man of that name, though, employed by the Big Four in that capacity. The petition had been signed by a number of the leading firms of the city, each of which had subscribed $5. Mr. Lieber at once handed Monahan five silver dollars and then invited him into another part of the building, stating that Fred Schaub, yard foreman of the Big Four, was there and would probably like to see him. Monahan, it is charged, said at the outset that he was a brother of W. A. Sullivan, general freight agent of the Big Four. He did not accept Mr. Lieber's invitation, but ran out of the door. Monahan was, however, arrested before he had gone very far. Only $15 was found on his person, at the station. The firm made no record on the petition were, in addition to the Lieber Brewing Company, F. P. Rush & Co., Hollweg & Reese and C. F. Schmidt. Those who had subscribed were William Scott & Co., A. N. Thompson & Co., and A. B. Meyer & Co. In addition to these the switchmen were down for $20. Monahan said at the station that he did not care what became of him. He was sick, had not been able to work for over a year, and had tried to get into the Kansas City and St. Louis hospitals. Failing in that, he says he took the step he did to raise money to pay his way to Hot Springs. He states that his home is in San Francisco, and that he had at one time been an assistant manager of the Union Pacific railroad.

Accident to a Lady. Mrs. A. R. The corner of Pennsylvania and Market streets is one of the most attractive places in the city for visitors, and also very busy. The illuminated "Real Estate" arch continues to attract the attention of all comers. At the east end of the arch is headquarters for real estate and fire insurance, while at the west end the National Benefit Association is doing an extensive accident insurance business. Across the street Uncle Sam's interests are looked after by a multitude of clerks.
