THE SCOTCH-IRISH CONGRESS.

Large Attendance at the Meeting in Pittsburg — Addresses Delivered on Various Subjects.

PITTSBURG, May 29.—The second great Scotch-Irish Congress of America opened in Mechanical Hall, this city, to-day, with probably one thousand delegates and visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada. It was 11 o'clock when Robert Bonner, of New York, president of the association, called the congress to order. The vast auditorium was then well filled, and the scene presented was inspiring. The hall was tastefully decorated with streamers of bunting and potted plants, while over the stage was a large painting of the coat of arms of the association. Among the delegates were many well-known people. After prayer by Rev. I. N. Hayes, D. D., of this city, Mayor H. I. Gourley was introduced, and, in a brief address, extended a hearty welcome to the members of the congress. Governor Beaver followed with an address of welcome on behalf of the State of Pennsylvania, which was responded to briefly by President Bonner. The report of the executive committee was then read by Professor McLeskie. The report showed a wonderful growth of the society in the past year, and recommended certain changes in the constitution of the organization. At its conclusion Rev. Dr. McIntosh, of Philadelphia, delivered an address on "The Making of an Ulster Man." It was first intended to have Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, deliver the first oration after the addresses of welcome, but a telegram from Mr. Breckinridge announced that he could not possibly reach here until to-morrow. Mr. McIntosh's address was listened to with great interest by the large assembly, and frequently he was interrupted by applause.

The appointment and announcement of the various committees occupied the balance of the time of the session. No public session was held this afternoon, and the local committee devoted the time to escorting the distinguished visitors to the various points of interest about the city. Tonight's session was opened by music by the band and by various local vocalists. Prof. Arthur L. Perry, who fills the chairs of history and political economy at Williams College, made an historical address on "The Scotch-Irish in New England." Prof. Perry was followed by Rev. Dr. C. Kelley, of Tennessee, who spoke on "General Sam Houston, the Washington of Texas." The congress will probably adjourn Saturday evening.

CRAZED BY THEIR BABY'S DEATH.

A Father and Mother Frantic at the Loss of Their Only Child.

LIVINGSTON, Tex., May 29.—A strange and pathetic little procession was to be seen entering this place yesterday morning. It consisted of a mud-splashed buggy containing a haggard, disheveled man and woman, with a little coffin at their feet, and Constable Smith leading the poor, tired horse, followed by a crowd of grave-diggers. The man and woman were Dr. William Ripperdan and his wife, from Shady Burn, a little place about eighteen miles east of here, and the coffin contained the body of their child. The history of their appearance here is one of the saddest possible. About fifteen months ago this child was born to the couple, who had reached middle age without children, and the baby became the idol of its parents' hearts. It was touching to witness their devotion to the little creature, which they attended constantly, and when about two weeks ago, death robbed them of it, the warmest sympathy was felt for them throughout the community. Preparations for its burial were made, and on the morning appointed, Dr. Ripperdan and his wife, together with the coffin containing the body, were found to have disappeared. Their house was left open, and only the Doctor's horse and buggy were gone. As they had no relatives to interfere, they were not sought for, and the general supposition was that they had taken the child elsewhere for burial. But news came in a few days that a buggy containing a man and a woman with a coffin was being driven aimlessly about the country. All who met them declared that one or the other of them prayed aloud all the time. Sometimes they were run across seated by a running stream, partaking of a meal of crackers, potted meat, etc., with the horse cropping grass near by and the casket beside them. When accosted they answered that they feared the body would be taken from them, and that they hoped by prayer to prevail on the Deity to restore it to life, quoting the miracle of the widow's son.

They were seen near here the day before yesterday, and were taken charge of by Constable Smith and a posse, who brought the buggy and its occupants, with their melancholy treasure, to town, where the remains of the child were buried. The poor father and mother were frantic, raving and praying all through the ceremony. They were given a room at the Mayberry House and locked in, it being hoped that, as the baby was really buried, they might resign themselves to their loss; but during the night the pair escaped by a window, and were found in the cemetery, where they had nearly succeeded in exhuming the coffin. When taken away, they became so violent that it was necessary to secure them. They have been adjudged insane, and will be sent to the State Asylum to-morrow. The case has excited much sympathy throughout the county, as the Doctor has quite a reputation for leaviness and skill in his profession, and his wife being noted for her benevolence and piety.

Monster Parade of Ex-Confederate Societies—Washington's Statue Defiled by Placing the Stars and Bars in the Hands of the Figure.

RICHMOND, May 29.—The scene here to-day in connection with the ceremonies incident to the unveiling of the Lee equestrian statue was unprecedented in the annals of this historic city. From early morning till night the tap of the drum and tramp of soldiers forcibly reminded the older citizens of the stirring days of 1861. Never were there so many people gathered within the gates of the city. Never were decorations so elaborate. Never were there so many old veterans and military organizations on the streets in time of peace, and never was there such genuine and general enthusiasm over any event. It would be a severe task to describe in detail the many happy blendings of colors or describe the taste displayed by all in the harmonious grouping of flags, or repeat the fruitful and beautiful themes expressed in notices that greeted the eye in the streets through which the magnificent pageant passed. While thousands of flags were wafted to the breeze, the national flag was displayed in the proportion of fifty to one of the stars and bars. It was truly a confederate day, however, as the presence of the many confederate veteran camps and the airs played by the bands pertaining to the "lost cause" fully attested, and this was emphasized by the many manifestations of delight that they brought forth from the crowds all along the lines. Now and then a band of music started the crowds to cheering by playing such airs as "Bonnie Blue Flag," "Dixie" and "Maryland, my Maryland." The whole line of march was densely crowded, and as the old chieftains of the confederacy were recognized, hats would come off and the "old yell" would come from a thousand throats. The House of the Confederacy and the Governor's mansion, though not in the line of march, were attractively decorated, and General Lee's residence, on the most fashionable thoroughfare of the city, was beautifully adorned and specially honored by the passing commands, the colors of the various organizations being dipped, while in many instances heads were uncovered.

Generals Early, Longstreet and Fitzhugh Lee received a perfect ovation, while many other confederate leaders were greeted with enthusiasm. General Gordon, Wade Hampton and Governor Fowle were not recognized so readily as those named, but when they passed an old confederate organization to whom their faces were familiar, they were lustily cheered. The Fifth Maryland Regiment and veterans and the New York delegation of Southern veterans attracted more attention during the entire march than other organizations in the parade. If there was any difference in their reception it was in favor of New York, for the remark was repeatedly heard on Franklin street, where the crowd was greatest: "There goes New York," and the welkin was made to ring with loud huzzas. The scene along the whole route, from beginning to the end, was a memorable one. Although the most extensive preparations had been made to receive a large number of visitors, no one expected to see the host that visited the city, yet they were all well cared for, and no complaints were heard. It is asserted on all sides that the parade, decorations and everything connected with the jubilee excelled anything ever witnessed in the South.

The parade formed on the north side of Broad street, from Adams down to Twelfth street. The line marched generally company front, with double ranks. No saluting was done by the troops except when they passed by the chief of staff. When they arrived at the parade ground they were formed behind the veterans, facing south. The especially invited guests, the chief marshal and aids, the Stonewall Band, R. E. Lee Camp, and the Richmond Light Infantry Blues formed on the north side of Broad street, with the left resting on Adams street. The other organizations formed on the north side of Twelfth street, and covered the space down to Thirteenth street.

Prominent in the procession were Generals James Longstreet, Danney H. Murray, Marcus J. Wright, M. C. Butler, E. L. Walker, A. L. Long, Joseph E. Johnston, William B. Taliferro, R. L. Page, J. A. Early, M. D. Corse, M. L. Bonham, G. W. C. Lee, Lawrence S. Baker, J. D. Imboden, George B. Harrison, Daniel Ruggles, John Echols, George H. Stewart, H. H. Walker, Joseph Wheeler, J. E. Kershaw, F. M. B. Young, W. P. Roberts, R. L. Lawton, Charles W. Field, George J. Hundley, Beni Robertson, Governors Daniel G. Fowle, of North Carolina; F. P. Fleming, of Florida; A. R. Fleming, of West Virginia; John P. Richardson, of South Carolina; United States Senators John S. Barbour, John Daniel, H. Kenna, Samuel Pasco; Colonel William Lamb and Wm. E. Cameron, and Captain J. Taylor Wood. Members of Gen. Robert E. Lee's staff: Colonel Walter H. Taylor, Charles Marshall, T. M. R. Tamm, General A. L. Long, Major Charles S. Venable, and the following members of Gen. Lee's family: Misses Mildred and Mary Lee, Captain Robert E. Lee, Jr., Gen. W. H. E. Lee, wife and sons, Bolling and R. E. Lee, nephews, General Fitz Lee, with wife and daughter, Captain Daniel Lee, with wife and children, and Captain Robert Lee.

When the procession started the men described a semi-circle at Adams and Broad streets, and proceeded down Broad street on the south side. As soon as the last veteran organization passed Adams street, the military took up their line of march, and when the head of the column of veterans reached Ninth and Main streets they halted and, occupying the south side of the street, reviewed the military. The latter marched up Main street to Eighth, and up that street to Franklin—so as to pass Gen. Lee's residence—and out Franklin to Shafer. At Shafer street the military halted, and occupied the south side of the street. The veterans, who had taken up the line of march after the military had been reviewed, passed in review of the military and resumed their place at the head of the column until the monument was reached.

Upon arriving at the monument the veterans faced the grand stand with the military behind them, the cavalry bringing up the rear. The artillery were posted north of the pedestal. Governor McKinney called the assembly to order about 4 o'clock, but the whole procession had by no means reached its destination. The Governor introduced Dr. Minnegrade who uttered a prayer, after which Gen. Juba A. Early was called upon to preside. He made a
