

SEVERAL IDEAS SUGGESTED

Members of the Commercial Club Have Free-for-All Interchange of Views.

Street Improvements, Though, Considered to Be the Thing That Calls for Attention Just Now—Resolution to That Effect Adopted.

The Commercial Club met last evening in Board of Trade Hall with President Lilly in the chair. "It was thought advisable," said the president, "to have presented at this meeting such matters as might naturally suggest themselves to the different members of the club who will speak and without our taking action upon anything except that they may furnish subjects for elaboration at meetings held hereafter."

The first speaker was Mr. W. H. Eastman. "As long as I am in the harness," said Mr. Eastman, beginning his remarks, "I will do the best I can to keep the traces tight. I have been struck with a sign on North Pennsylvania street which says 'Bible truth.' I don't know much about that, but I know something of business truth. I heard a story once about a lady who had three daughters, Patience, Content and Relief. There was a young man who had been paying attention to Relief for several years, but failed to make any proposal. One day another young man came from a distance, and in less than five minutes asked her to be his wife. She said 'I don't want Relief, I want Patience and Content; to ask one of them, 'No, said he, 'my town is full of those kinds of girls; I don't want 'em; I want Relief,' and he got Relief. A little while after the first young man came and said he wished Relief, but Relief never came. Gentlemen, this is our condition now. We are benefitting down here in Indianapolis with Patience and Content instead of going for Relief. [Laughter.] We want Relief in many things, especially from dust, dirt, and what is called the 'fog' of the city. The electric light, it is said, brings new insects, attracted by its light. So active men are attracted to a city by its high buildings. Some men like to do business in the low places, for they have no ambition, but there are other men who can't keep time to the music unless they are right up to the top of the wagon. There is where we want to go. When the soldiers monument is completed we will be proud. But it will be surrounded by lively establishments. Some of them we must have a Commercial Club building that will reach high up the shaft of this monument. There are croakers here, who are all the time talking about the city. This city will never get out of the soup until our tax limitation is removed. [Great applause.] You cannot carry on city affairs without taxation. We are not going to the Legislature and have a new charter, and we don't want a boy's size, we have outgrown it—we want a man's size."

"No project of mine in Indianapolis," said Mr. I. S. Gordon, the next speaker, "that is not followed by the inquiry 'Where shall we get the money?' Our law is so shaped that it is impossible to lay taxation upon those men who have grown rich in this city and have retired from business. This club should not attempt too many things at once. I will do anything more for the city by taking up some one or two projects and following them to the end. Let us go before the next Legislature with a strong case, made up of the gentlemen of both parties, and get through some legislation that will allow us to tax the people justly for improvements needed in our city. [Applause.]

"It has been said," remarked the next speaker, Mr. Theo. E. Griffith, "that the Commercial Club has not done much as yet. I am with you, Mr. Gordon as to taking up one thing and carrying it to completion. I think that thing is to take such measures as will give us good streets, and if we have good streets to keep them clean and free from dust. One of the first things is to have legislation that will enable us to do some of the things we have been talking about. I think the city board of control of capable men who have been successful in their own business." [Applause.]

"The Commercial Club," said Mr. H. Bamberger, who followed, "has now been organized about four months, and the millennium has not come yet. But the club has done some things for the city, things that are not in its power to do much except to create and foster an intelligent public sentiment, which will compel the government to take the steps to come to the primaries, and have their influence felt there. It wants to create that public sentiment which will compel the officers of the State and city to enforce the laws as they are found upon the statute books. We are all more or less politicians, and I pity the city that has not enough of it to see that we get the right kind of men elected to the Legislature and to the City Council. Let us have some legislation and have men elected to high positions, not only officers, but on fixed salaries." [Applause.]

"There is no subject that Indianapolis could take hold of," said Mr. D. F. Erwin, "that offers more to the city than a railroad to the south crossing the Ohio river at Madison, Cincinnati has her Ingalls, and Evansville her Mackey, but Indianapolis has not yet brought up a man to take care of her railroad interests. We need a road to the south controlled by Indianapolis capital, independent of the State and Louisville. The Southern trade is valuable and we should reach for it."

"Free gas," said Mr. George G. Tanner, "is one thing that we have tried for, but have not succeeded in getting it, but that is no reason we should not try again. I think Mr. Erwin has correctly stated the case, when he says that the only road to Indianapolis must be to the south. It is easier to get trade south of the Ohio than through Illinois."

"The Commercial Club was organized," said Colonel Lilly, who spoke next, "for the purpose of doing all things that go to make up the prosperity of the city of Indianapolis. The organization is now five months old—we are still in process of organization; we have not found the right men in all cases to act on the various committees. The committees have been appointed, and many of them have done good work, but many have not got down to the work that will have to be done. We will find the right men in time. Here is the first organization of the Commercial Club, we turned our minds, first, to the matter of street improvements. We thought if we could make the city of Indianapolis as desirable as places of residence by the improvement of her streets, that we would be accomplishing a good thing. We started the paving commission and brought paving material from all over the United States. The paving operation was commented upon by cities far and wide. From five hundred to six hundred representatives from different cities were sent here by city governments for the purpose of looking into the merits of paving material. We showed our people the different kinds of paving material. We made an exhibit of street-paving brick. I did not think a pavement could be made of brick. I saw brick that would make a pavement as good as any material. Carrying on that idea a report is now being printed, covering sixty pages, and this week will be published. There are now on file in the city hall a number of copies of the report, thus going all over the country. It will reach every one of our members. Not only that, but the exhibition has been the cause of the establishment of a monthly periodical—the only publication of the kind in the world, and that will go to all the city governments every month. The paving commission has been improved with asphalt; South Illinois and East Washington street have been let, and different streets will become unpaved. Don't say we have not accomplished anything. We have."

"It was thought a very desirable thing," by this club, that the street-railead to company should be induced to pave its portion of the streets. It was thought that its proportion of cost would amount to a million of dollars. We wanted rapid transit. This club, in connection with the Board of Trade, went to work and negotiated things by which that might be done. I want to say here, now, that I absolutely see no reason, since that report was made, that has caused me to change my mind a particle as to the wisdom of it. The main point, as to when and how to do it, is on the ground that it would be paid, is a mere matter that could have been arranged without trouble. We caused to be introduced in the City Council a plan for taking care of shade trees and looking after the matter of shade.

"And going underneath the streets, our sewer committee has been very active. They have authority to go under the streets and perfect a complete system of sewerage, laid out on a broad plan. They have worked independent of the street-paving committee.

"Another thing," said Colonel Lilly, "is the safe crossing of railways. While there is no assurance that the railways have in mind a plan of elevated roads, still a consideration is contemplated to be taken up as early as possible by this club. The railway committee of this club was organized particularly with relation to the physical way system of Indianapolis. They are considering this matter, and the forthcoming conference between the Commercial Club and the big four people in regard to that matter means that there is to be a plan discussed for an elevated system of railroads in this city. I think we have covered a great deal of ground; not, perhaps, as much as we should have liked. It depends upon each committee doing its share of the work. It looks to me that the great influence of every member of the Commercial Club, the Board of Trade and every good citizen to go before the Legislature and work for needed legislation.

Secretary Fortune here read a communication from Mr. Charles M. Cooper in regard to a plan for an additional supply of natural gas to Indianapolis which should be practically free to manufacturers. The communication closed with the following resolution: That the president of the Commercial Club appoint a committee of nine to formulate a plan to bring natural gas into the city of Indianapolis for the use of manufacturers, and of all who may locate manufacturers within said city, and said committee to formulate a bill, if deemed necessary, to present to the next Legislature in furtherance of said plan.

The consideration of the resolution was postponed until the next meeting of the club. Mr. W. H. Eastman offered the following resolution: Resolved, That the committee of five, president of the club as chairman, shall be appointed to look after the improvement of the streets of Indianapolis in accordance with the plans as may be adopted by the board of directors, the members of the committee to be selected by the board of directors. The committee to decide what streets it may be desired to have improved, and to select auxiliary committees to whom they are chosen to refer, and to be the duty of the auxiliary committees to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the proper cleaning and paving of the streets which they are expected to look after.

The resolution was adopted, and the club adjourned to meet on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. R. Hussey entertained about twenty guests at her home on North Tennessee street. The guests were members of the Bible Club, which was organized in 1885 and is the auxiliary to the New York Bible Society. The report of the "Theological native" was read by the hostess. It was the last meeting of the season.
COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.
Society Exhibitions at Butler University and the Exercises to Come.
The Philokurian Literary Society's eighteenth annual exhibition was the attraction at Butler University last night. The music was by Miss Allie Cheatham. Mr. and Miss Coyne and Mrs. H. W. McKane. Will D. Howe, '93, declared "Brier Rose" and Malcolm H. McCallum, '94, told the story of "Jimmie Butler and the Owl." Isaac N. Grisso, in the first oration, told of the part conscience has played in the evolution of government. Mark A. Collins, '91, delivered a eulogy on Garfield. DeMotte Wilson, '92, read a paper entitled "The Gaelic Gael." Wm. M. Senner, presented a diploma to the society's graduates, J. F. Findley, J. M. Jessup and F. D. Mues. Robert Hall, '91, was chairman. This morning at 10 o'clock the young ladies of the Demia Butler Society held their exhibition, and invitations are out for an anniversary reception in the afternoon. To-night the round of society exhibitions will close with the exercises of the Mathewsons, and to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock the closing scenes of the day. The class of '90 has played a prominent part in the scrimmages of the past years, and it is expected that they will have the honor of being unanimously elected to-morrow. The board of directors meets to-day, and has several important matters to decide.

Institute for Young Ladies.
The first annual art exhibition of the Indianapolis Institute for Young Ladies is open at the institute on North Pennsylvania, and some excellent work is shown. Miss Lillian G. Annis has had charge of the instruction, and the quality and quantity of work shown is remarkable. There are paintings, pen-and-ink sketches, and charcoal drawings. Among the contributors to the exhibit are Mrs. Lynn, Misses Bertha Flack, Margaret Nicholson, Daisy Lemon, Rose Lee, Fannie Root, Alice Atkinson, Luella Lee, N. B. Grady, Elmer C. Cummings, Marie Darrow, Mamie Bell, Alice Brass, Iva Marzey, Ernest Lyon, Jennette Judson, Marguerite Owens, Nannie Talbot, Mabel Root, Mabel White, Lida Bell, Lulu Fountain and Gussie Schramm. The commencement exercises of the institute will be held this evening at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Mrs. E. J. Price's School.
Mrs. E. J. Price gave her twenty-first annual reception last evening at her school, No. 407 North Illinois street. There was a large company, and the rooms were richly and tastefully decorated. The programme was long and varied, with music, both vocal and instrumental, and with recitations. Among those who took part were Misses Lottie Bills, Gladys White, Edith Nutting, Ada Reynolds, Mary Kelly, Gertrude Eichholz, Mary Smith, Carrie Hall, Ella Smith, Lida and Mamie Bell, Cecilia Benet and Josephine Reiffel. The Schubert Quartet, Misses Pauline and Berta Schramm, Mrs. E. J. Price, Mrs. Lida Bell, McAvoy, Miss Blomker, Mrs. Nay, Frank Tompkins and Frank Reese added to the entertainment of the evening.

WON THE FIRST PRIZE AGAIN.
The Light Artillery Go Ahead of All Competitors at Kansas City.
On the 1st day of June, 1887, the Indianapolis Light Artillery were given a rousing public reception on their return from Washington, where they had won the first prize in the great national drill. The Artillery had won prizes before this, in fact, it had an unbroken record for taking prizes, and the city was properly enthusiastic over them. Last night a dispatch was received from Kansas City which shows that this organization carried off the prize for the best drill, making a score of 140 out of a possible 150. The highest score on record. It is suggested that the victors be given a triumphal entry on their return to the city, and that all the military companies and the citizens generally turn out to do them honor. Tomlinson Hall should be got in readiness for their reception, and be properly garlanded with victorious wreaths.

The Awards and Prizes.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9.—The interstate competition closed evening. The first prizes were awarded as follows: Infantry Drill—Price $2,500, to Atlanta Rifles, Atlanta, Ga.
Grand Interstate Mailed Infantry Drill—Price $500, to Indianapolis Light Artillery, Indianapolis, Ind.
Zouave Drill—Price $1,200, to Chicago Zouaves.
Captain Making Best Score in the Grand Interstate Drill—Captain Spencer, of the Atlanta Rifles, gold medal and sword valued at $400.
Best Rifle Shot—John S. Seifford, of the National Fencibles, Washington, D. C.
Company Making Highest in Camp Discipline—Company E, Denver, Col.

Central Labor Union.
At the meeting of the Central Labor Union, last night, a letter was read from Theodore Dietz, denying that he employed non-union carpenters, as reported in the Evening News. The union was requested to correct the mistake, which was done. Credentials of delegates from the Bakers, the Architectural Iron-Workers, the Plumbers, the Carpenters, Labor and the Iron Molders' unions were received. Joseph Hock, George Barnes and William Franz were appointed a committee to investigate the charges concerning the employment of non-union labor. The union painters and carpenters at work on his premises yesterday went to the case non-union painters were employed.

General Weather Conditions.
MONDAY, June 9, 7 P. M.
PRESSURE.—High barometric pressure continues from the Mississippi eastward and over the States near the gulf; the small low area over the western gulf last night moved north, and was central over Arkansas this morning, but disappeared during the day. A high pressure area, which moved southward, and is central to-night with 29.54 over Montana.
TEMPERATURE.—The warm current continues from the Gulf of Mexico to the coast of Manitoba with 80 and above; 70 and above is reported from North Dakota, western Nebraska, Colorado, and from Kansas, Nebraska, southern Tennessee, Ohio and Pennsylvania southward; 60 and below from Wisconsin northward; 50 and below from Lake Superior northward.
WIND.—The wind is from the south, Wisconsin and Indiana southward to the gulf.

Searching for Train-Robbers.
BISMARCK, N. D., June 9.—Searching parties are still out after the train-robbers who went through the Northern Pacific train at Bismarck, N. D., on Monday evening. The presence of mind of a messenger, Argovine, whose presence of mind saved the express company's treasure, is here. He shipped his treasure-box to St. Paul this morning. It contained $10,000 to $15,000 in money. The express company lost nothing, but will offer a big reward for the arrest and conviction of the robbers. Postoffice Inspector Walker, of Washington, D. C., happened to be in town, and is now working up the case. The seven registered pouches are estimated to have contained $5,000. The robbers are believed to be from the State of Iowa. Had the hidden some loose registered packages, but was compelled to produce them.

Boodle Alderman's Fine Remitted.
NEW YORK, June 9.—Judge Barrett, of the Supreme Court, today remitted the fine of $2,000 imposed on Honest John O'Neil, of the 1884 Board of Aldermen, in addition to the term imprisonment to which he was sentenced on his conviction of bribery. O'Neil, under this decision, is no longer liable for the fine. He had the term of imprisonment remitted. Had the fine not been remitted, O'Neil would have been obliged to serve a day for each dollar of the fine.

Obtained a Pension Fraudulently.
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 9.—Mary Conroy, widow of Michael Conroy, of the First Maryland Volunteers, who was killed in the battle of Gettysburg, was yesterday sentenced to prison for two years for fraudulently obtaining a pension from the government, swearing that she had not remarried. She was married to John Fraley in 1858, and the last pension drawn by Mrs. Conroy was in March last, when she swore that she had not remarried.

SURRENDERED THE CHILD

The Cowles Sensation in Montreal Takes a New and Unexpected Turn.

The Wounded Man Signs an Order Releasing the Daughter to Her Mother—Hale Held to Await the Result of His Shot.

MONTEREAL, June 9.—The Cowles abduction case has been abandoned. This afternoon Cowles called for Superintendent Kirkpatrick, of the Montreal General Hospital, and stated that he was willing to give up the child to his wife. Accordingly, he affixed his signature to the following document, written by Dr. Kirkpatrick at his dictation, and witnessed by one of the house surgeons:
To Madame Schutzen and ladies of the Sacred Heart:
Please deliver to my wife, Alice H. Cowles, our daughter, Florence Cowles, without delay, and consider this an acknowledgment of my former order respecting the child. EUGENE H. COWLES.

When this fact became known it will create consternation among the legal fraternity, who are yet unacquainted with it, and who are granted in-law, Mrs. Bolton, who is the mother of the child. Eugene H. Cowles, of the same city, a son of the late Mr. Edwin Cowles, of the Cleveland Leader, there appeared. Mrs. Cowles and her daughter, Florence, Mrs. Bolton, Judge Gersoll, counsel for Mrs. Cowles, and H. Gibson, representing the Drummond Secret Service Agency, at Washington, Mr. Hale looked on, showing in substance less attire, but a trifle pale after his night's confinement. Mrs. Cowles had her child Florence by her side, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bolton, was in constant attendance. Hale was held to await the result of Cowles's injuries.

This morning Mr. Justice Lait issued a writ of habeas corpus, and ordered the child into court, which they did, placing her in the care of Bailiff Lajeunesse. Mr. Gibson appeared for Mrs. Cowles, and asked that a writ of habeas corpus be issued, compelling the nuns to produce the child in legal form. Judge Mathie granted the writ after examining the affidavits in behalf of the child, and in substance the facts made known in last night's dispatch. The writ was made returnable for 3 o'clock this afternoon. As a reason why the writ should be granted, it was affirmed that Cowles was an improper person to have charge of the child; that he was a disolute man, addicted to adultery, alcohol and opium; that he was a man of bad character, but he was too ill to receive it, much less to act upon it.

At 3 o'clock all interested appeared in court. By this time also Cowles and Justice Lait adjourned the case till Wednesday. Everyone thought the proceedings were stayed, but in that they were wrong. The Associated Press correspondent went to the general hospital and saw Dr. Kirkpatrick, whom he informed that his attendant would probably be condemned without a hearing. Dr. Kirkpatrick asked whether if he wished the proceedings stayed, to which he replied that he would do nothing further and was willing to give up the child. By this time the court had adjourned, but Judge Lait was seen at his chambers and was shown the letter. He considered that it settled the case. Mrs. Cowles was communicated with and received the news with joy. Though the case is adjourned till Wednesday Judge Lait said he would give a hearing to-morrow morning and have the case formally settled.

Cowles was seen as he lay in bed. There were no private apartments for his reception, and he was placed in a public ward, surrounded by screens, here to remain till more private quarters can be found. He said to the reporter that he had no quarrel with his wife; that he had been in jail all the year round, but with women not more than two minutes. He said that Hale had no need to interfere; that he and his wife would stay coming to the city, and would settle and all would have been well. His condition is quite serious, inasmuch as he is also suffering from consumption. "If I die," he said, "I will leave my wife and child to her care, and she will have to go hard with poor (Cowles) [Hale]. He affirmed that what he had done was done legally, under the advice of the best legal counsel of the United States and Canada. He expressed the warmest interest in his family and only resented undue interference. When well enough Cowles promises to do all that he can to clear up the matter of wrongs, and that he has been hardy dealt with.

Hale was released to-day from prison in chains, and is sleeping with his friends at the Windsor. General satisfaction is felt at this unexpected turn in the case. A moments' conversation was had with the United States and Canada for his confinement. He stated that he feared an attack and only anticipated it by shooting. The scene in court between mother and child was very touching. The little one clung to her mother's neck and would not be separated from her.
Cowles is somewhat easier to-night, and unless unforeseen complications arise his chances for an ultimate recovery are very favorable.

AMONG THE COLLEGES.
Numerous Changes in the Bloomington Faculty—Preparatory School Abolished.
Special to the Indianapolis Journal.
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., June 9.—The board of trustees have in session for the past three days, but at no time have all the members been present, and but little business has been completed. A chair of American history has been established, and Prof. James Albert Woodburn has been elected to the professorship. This is a new department, and a better selection to introduce the work could not have been made. Professor Woodburn is a graduate of Indiana University, and has also taken a complete course in Johns Hopkins, where the degree of Ph. D. has just been conferred upon him. He is also a writer of considerable note, and better than all, a thorough-going Hoosier. Dr. Gustav Carsten, who has had charge of the chair of French, has been made professor of Germanic languages, and will begin his work in that department to-morrow. He is a native German, and during his three years' stay here has proven very popular and efficient in his work. Prof. James K. Beck, who for several years has been in the head of the preparatory department, has been elected to the associate professorship of the chair of Latin and Greek. He has always been one of the most valuable men connected with the institution. Prof. J. E. Matzke, now connected with Bowdoin College, of Maine, has been elected to take charge of the chair of French. He is a native of Johns Hopkins, and comes upon the highest recommendations. The preparatory department, that has been a part of Indiana University for so many years, has been abolished by the board of trustees, and hereafter students, before entering the university proper, must prepare themselves in the high schools of the State that have been commissioned for that purpose, or pass the required examinations for entrance. Uncle Tommy Spicer, who has been janitor of the college for twenty years, and is well known and respected by every student who has gone from the university for the past quarter of a century, has resigned on account of age, being seventy-eight years old.

The statement in two Indianapolis papers as to expulsion of certain students from the class were a very unwarranted. There are no charges whatever against J. D. Wallingford, of Greensburg, Ind.

ITS LAST COMMENCEMENT.
This has been commencement day of the preparatory department of Indiana University, and though the weather was bad, the attendance was very large, the performance throughout being well rendered, while there were several orations of special merit. Prof. James K. Beck had charge and presented the diplomas. The motto of the class was "Abiit tenturati." The scholars of the class were awarded as follows: First, Joseph T. Giles; second, William T. Headley; third, Laura Adams. Following are the graduates and their subjects: "The Eiffel tower," Harry Spencer, Bloomington; "My impressions of Emerson," Frank Andrews, Bloomington; "Cooperation," Albert T. Pearson, Bloomington.

The University of Illinois.
Special to the Indianapolis Journal.
CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 9.—The class-day exercises of the class of '90 of the university were held in the chapel this afternoon. Though the day was rainy and cloudy a large audience greeted the class. N. H. Camp, president of the class, delivered the address of welcome. G. F. Clinton, of Polo, gave the motto oration, "Gang warily," and showed its peculiar meaning when applied to mankind. Miss Edith L. Clark, of Urbana, gave the "Dramatic" class history. Samuel Bowden, of Champaign, was next with an amusing production, "The Phonograph," giving the fruits of an amateur photographer. T. A. Clark, of Urbana, followed with a poem, "Two days in school." Miss Jessie Ellara, of Tuscola, made a class prophecy, foretelling many great accomplishments which the class will make in the hatchet oration. "Not a fly throner," was pronounced by Linne F. Lerbush, of Champaign. This was a cleverly handled oration. Herman S. Platt, of Raoul, made the reply in behalf of the class in 1890. C. L. Crabb, of Gibson City, was the valedictorian of the class, ending the programme with a brilliant oration on the achievements and future of the class.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.,
In Lookout Valley,
ON THE LINE OF THE
Chattanooga Southern Railway

Is destined to be one of the most important manufacturing cities in the South. The location, consisting of 1,000 acres, which has been secured by the managers of the KENSINGTON LAND COMPANY, of CHATTANOOGA, TENN., is surrounded by inexhaustible deposits of coal and iron, equal in quality to that of any section in the great mineral belt of the South. Manufactured Iron, Cotton, Leather, etc., can be produced cheaper in KENSINGTON than at any point in the South, and its railroad service will be unsurpassed.

THE
Kensington Land Co
Solicits correspondence with manufacturers generally, and offers liberal inducements to those contemplating the removal of their establishments or the building of new factories in this prosperous section of the country.
