

Manufacturing section of the country, and all the cities there will be large. The improvements are first-class, and capital is pouring in from every direction.

What does this all mean? Well, it means that capital is becoming more plentiful and confidence is fully restored. More than that, it indicates a stability of purpose. It means that the people of not only this, but other countries, have come to regard our institutions and policies a fixture.

At Goshen, Ind., Postmaster Beyerle reports that the mail service at various points in the county is proving great success. The Postmaster-general suggested, some time ago, that it would be a good idea for postmasters to make inquiry, by mail and otherwise, of their patrons, as to how the service could be improved, and to consult, from time to time, with the nearest post office.

What do you think of the insult offered to President Harrison at the League convention in this city? "No man can insult the President of the United States."

What do you think of President Harrison's Southern speeches prove that the caricature so universally accepted of a man who rattled around in a great office has slandered a President who mentally and morally had the talent and courage to worthily administer the office of chief magistrate of 38,000,000 people.
