

REMINISCENCES OF PICNICS

A Few Things That Are Essential To Make a Day in the Woods Happy.

Plenty of Picturesque Grounds in the Vicinity of Indianapolis—Rain That Breaks Up a Party and an Engagement.

HE reasonable attention of people, by fair weather and the nearness of June, respectfully called to the subject of picnicking. A day in the woods and a spread in the shade are truly the green spots of life long remembered, and just as long looked forward to.

stream may have been, or however full of mosquitoes the woods were, to say nothing of the flying bacteria that were seduced by the lamented butter, picnic days are guarded by pleasant memories. But whither will this coming summer's jaunts be directed? Where is the place that contains the most shade, grass, stream and by Wells-Fargo, for there are very few little boys who will not persevere until they reach the creek if started in fairly on a pig track if it takes all summer. For the family picnic the grounds must be somewhat civilized. Such a place not far from the city comes to mind. It is called a park, and the road to it is a delightful one. The river is here at its best, and a number of boats are always waiting. There are a number of fine groves from seven to fifteen miles west of the city on the National road, but only one little stream, which is at the end of that distance. The road dips into it without any bridge formalities where the horses can be refreshed. This little stream to the north and south is banked with cool and invites the inspection and exploration of small picnic parties in either direction. There are a number of picturesque hills and ravines near about that are especially adapted to picnicking, while long rope swings may be hung easily near the banks of the stream, where ladies may have the thrilling pleasure of being swung out over the water. Garfield Park is one that will be frequented by picnickers. This park is monotonously level, but is a choice place for games. Of course Fairview Park will be roamed over, tramped under, literally pulverized before the summer is half gone. The canal and boats, together with the pleasant walks and drives north and south along the water will be as attractive as ever. For evening parties of picnickers this place will remain popular, but the publicity of the place makes it unavailable for small parties. One would almost as soon pitch a tent for instance, on Washington street as in Fairview Park.

While there is a great difference between an outing party and a day's picnicking party, still if the scenic effects of the former surroundings can be had with the latter so much the more delightful. There are few experiences fuller of story and incident worth remembering, and, perhaps, repeating than picnic excursions. The experience that I had in this respect is not a new one, but it is a story that I shall never forget her—she moved to Columbus soon after. Here the young man's eyes looked dreamily over at the fountain for a short spell, while his sentimentalities began like the shades of dusk to spread over his features.

"Of course we have all seen and loved, but seldom married the fairest girl on earth—all but that—when it comes to this climatic, they like that traditional Irish friend seems to be getting in the way, but if we do marry them, so soon as they become subject to our sole jurisdiction, we are pained to find somewhere a cross-bill in the suit that takes the melody out of the complaint and brings back the harshness that attended the filing of the original affidavit.

in the morning, when I got up and dressed in my light suit. I had two hours in which to recuperate my nerves, I could eat no breakfast, I went down to the livery stable and had the carriage up to her residence one hour early. This did not matter. Miss— was not up and I drove around the park four or five times and then back to her residence, where the party was to gather. Time passed slowly. I sat in the carriage and played with the whip. Friendly Miss— came and invited me in while she ate breakfast. There was a peculiar look in her eyes. I knew from that moment she thought I was a fool, but I know why—perhaps you fellows do—but I know she did. I sat on an easy chair, and roared for an hour. I waded through albums and looked through books until she came back, when she said with some petulance 'I wonder why they don't come.' We began to get anxious and after that annoyed. It was after 9 o'clock and still not one of the party appeared. Then the sky began to get dark. It began to rain, and if you can recall the day you will remember what a mean rain it was. There was not an interval in the shower from 9:30 until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There I sat disgusted and Miss— went about like a discouraged bird of paradise. I was invited to dinner. I went in. Some of the distressed fragments of the not very chickens that should have been gnawed on the banks of White river presented themselves formally and took stop-over tickets on their way to my digestive organs. Miss—'s mother sat with us, but had nothing to say. An atmosphere, blue with the indescribable funeral piments, crept around us; everything came to be an agony. I was pained. Presently, after dinner, the clouds parted for a little and I took my departure. The next day I received this note and soon after Miss— left for Columbus and has not since returned.

GENERAL STRAIGHT'S FUNERAL

Remains Will Rest at the Old Homestead—List of Pall-Bearers.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the funeral services of General Straight will be held at the home of the deceased on the Irvington road. The exercises will be conducted by George H. Thomas Post, and all the other posts of the city have been invited to attend. This morning at all the local G. A. R. post halls memorial services will be held. Department Commander Cheadle, of Frankfort, arrived yesterday to take part in the funeral exercises. Col. Ivan N. Walker will have general supervision of the funeral arrangements. It was the request of the family that Governor Chase and Rev. Charlie conduct the services, but Governor Chase had engagements that will prevent his being present. Rev. Charlie will have charge. Undertaker Tutewiler will furnish a solid copper coffin to be inclosed in a red cedar casket, covered with black broadcloth, and trimmed with oxidized silver and gold handles. The plate will be engraved as follows:

GEN. A. D. STRAIGHT, 1829-1892.

The following have been selected as pall-bearers:—Honorary—Gen. M. D. Manson of Crawfordsville, Gen. George F. McGinnis, Gen. Fred Kneiser, Col. Ivan N. Walker, Col. N. E. Beckie, Col. W. Callum, Col. E. L. Thompson, Capt. J. W. Haley of Greensburg, Haute, Capt. M. P. Anderson, Capt. W. E. Kupp.

Active—Comrades J. P. Smith, W. M. Cochran, H. C. Long, H. C. Weaver, Petersburg; Marion, Fitch, M. L. Johnson, G. W. Seacrest, Danville, W. Walliegh, Fern, A. H. Dooley, North Salem; W. D. Luria. The surviving members of General Straight's regiment, the Fifty-first Indiana, will meet at 2 o'clock at the east entrance of the grounds to be assigned a special place.

The remains will be placed in a vault on the place, and not at Crown Hill.

An Old Quorum of Street-Car Men.

In April Frank Clear, a street-car driver, filed an affidavit before Squire Smock, charging Frank Redmond with assault and battery. Clear was going home from work about 11 o'clock one night in that month, when he and Redmond quarreled, and the latter handled him roughly. Redmond was found guilty, but appealed the case to the Criminal Court, where it was dismissed on account of a faulty affidavit. Clear filed another affidavit against him before Squire Daniels. Yesterday he was convicted upon this affidavit and fined $1 and costs. Redmond immediately filed an affidavit against Clear for carrying concealed weapons, to which he pleaded guilty and was fined. Both men stayed their fines.

But Oh, the Difference!

In the morning, if there is any, you have been overdoing something the night before. Anything done in a moderate manner will not produce that difference with an exclamation point. In drinking, for instance, use such pure brands as "Wiener" and "Bode" brewed by the C. F. Schmidt Brewing Company, and your head will not experience the difference in the morning. Bottled by J. Barnhart. Telephone 600.

Renowned.

Dr. Joseph Eastman's office, during the construction of his sanatorium, will be at the southeast corner of Vermont and Delaware streets.

BAD SKIN ERUPTION

Many Years. All Manner of Medicines and Doctors Failed. Cured in One Month by Cuticura.

In 1885 I had an eruption come out on my skin, and while at first it did not amount to much, it grew to be very irritating and at times unbearable. The skin would get hard, inflamed, and peel off, leaving a entire new skin, acting same as a scab. I tried all manner of medicines and had doctors prescribe to me, but they brought no relief. I had tried Cuticura and used Cuticura Resolvent for my blood. I am fully cured, and in less than a month. It was a most surprising skin disease, and now I am enjoying ease and comfort. I have had no return of the disease. Anyone trying Cuticura remedies, please help me get my benefit. Anyone writing me will receive an answer and my advice to give your remedies a trial.

Doctor Uses Cuticura

We have opened a drug store at this place and are having a splendid stock of Cuticura Remedies, which we keep full stock of. We will sell you Cuticura Resolvent, Cuticura, and Cuticura Soap for $2.00. If you have not tried my little boy. When he was six months old his face was covered with eczema, and Cuticura Remedies cured it. He is now three years old. We still use the Cuticura soap, and wash him occasionally with it to prevent his skin from getting rough. We have handled your medicines for five years and never heard a complaint against them, but abundant praise. We sold our drug store in Kansas, and will continue in the drug business here. C.
