NOTES OF FASHION

Hints to Ladies, Picked Up from Fashion Centers, During the Week.

Almost all the house gowns of this season show the graceful Watteau back, the smooth-fitting sides and the jacket front; that is, a jacket front extending the full length of the gown and permitting the wide revers to cover the shoulders. The most stylish cut is now frequently noticed in house gowns; that is, they are cut enough to give freedom to and to display the throat, while a deep fall of lace outlines the shape.

A graceful calling costume is of chestnut-colored cheviot combined with old blue velvet and bordered with a trimming of feathers. Accompanying this gown is a capote of chestnut-colored velvet, with bow and strings of pale yellow.

A very pretty skirt is made of soft black silk with a pinked tulle of yellow overlaid with a drapery of black lace caught here and there with a rosette or a ribbon.

The winter styles of dresses have arrived, as we notice in Wasson's Dress-making Department. The dress-makers there are very busy.

The proper hankercieff to carry with a tailor-made suit is of the cambie in a solid color plaid with blue, lavender, gray or brown, with white lines across it, having a border that is hemstitched. These are not expensive, wash well and are in perfect harmony with a cloth gown.

In millinery this season the toques are of all shades and shapes, trimmed with aigrettes, roses, shaded velvet, shot velvet, etc., all different in detail and all very attractive. Wasson & Co. have contrived to find more that is new in millinery than ever before.

The millinery department at that house abounds in pretty hats and bonnets, and "lovely," "beautiful," "charming," "delightful," are the exclamations as one after another of these artistic triumphs are shown.

In girls' hats for school wear, dark felt hats are brightened by a large Alaskan bow of velvet, or of Scotch plaid silk, with two quills following the outline of the loops.

This season has brought with it many happy changes in the shades of kid gloves. Instead of being compelled to wear two or three ordinary shades all through the season, ladies have almost as great a variety of shades in kid gloves as they have in dress goods. Wasson's kid glove department shows all the new ideas in kid gauntlets in the new shades of ox-blood, "wall," navy and green.

Some fashions are compulsory. Such for instance is the wearing of furs. Fashion not only dictates their wear this season, but weather prophets come forward with the prediction that the winter will be a cold one.

Styles in furs, as in all other wearing apparel, change every season. This season it is the box cape, for which the ladies should be thankful. This is not only a graceful wrap, but a very warm one. Fur collars, with natural heads, are very much in demand. Sealskin jackets are shown with square backs this season, the same as the English cloth coat but the hooded jacket, which fits to the figure in the back, are more desired.

We were quite surprised in a visit to Wasson's Fur Department to find such an extensive variety shown in Indianapolis. Here we saw not only the new styles in capes and sealskin jackets, but a wonderfully great variety.

The opening of holiday goods is unusually early this season. We notice Wasson & Co. are showing a great variety of choice novelties.

THE STATE AT LARGE

At 5:30 P. M., at No. 3020 Lake avenue, Chicago. Quite a large party will attend from this city at home cards on Friday after Jan. 10, at No. 126 Fourteenth street, San Jose, Cal.

A Halloween party was given at the Country Club Monday evening. The guests were young people and four mixed couples. Dancing was the chief pleasure of the evening. At refreshment time all the lights were turned down in the dining room, and the only illumination was from a huge jack-o'-lantern and round Chinese lanterns suspended from the ceiling. The goodies were peculiar to the season, nuts, apples, doughnuts, cider and the like.

The marriage of Miss Aline Findolph, of Vincennes, and Mr. Samuel Watson, of Kokomo, formerly of this city, will take place Wednesday, at the bride's home. Mr. Thomas Alford, Mr. John Geizer, Mr. Will Maguire of this city, Mr. Bert Ramsey of Crawfordsville, Mr. Will Broff of Kokomo, are to be attendants. They will go Tuesday to be present at the bachelor dinner Tuesday evening, and at the wedding and reception Wednesday evening.

One of the original entertainments of the season was that given by the Misses Adams at their home, Halloween eve, for "The Jolly Twelve." The decorations in the dining-room deserve especial mention. Festoons of fall leaves, wild berries and clusters of grapes were hung from the chandelier to the four corners of the room. The table was ablaze with dainty fairy lights ingeniously contrived from the red pepper. Each spoon was seated at the table carried a wax taper with a miniature cabbage as a holder. The whole effect was most unique and pretty.

The Portfolo Club, at their meeting Thursday night, will have an exhibition of Munich studies. There will be works by B. E. Fitz, R. A. Eichelberger, Samuel Wenban, Robert Koehler, E. S. Bell, F. A. Tompkins, Charles Mills, Walter Shiras, Charles Monte, Frank Currier, J. O. Adams and Otto Marcus. The committee on entertainment are Mrs. J. R. Heywood, Miss Bessie Hendricks and Mr. J. M. Bowles. Aside from the exhibit there will be a musical number, a trio by Haydn, for piano, violin and cello, played by Clarence Eversyth, Richard Schliwen and Adolph Schelmschmidt.

A pleasant masque party was given Friday night by Miss Hudson, at her residence, 328 North Alabama street. There were many and varied costumes. Night was represented by May Conchman and Miss Cunningham; Mrs. Hess, sailor; Grace Harden, flower girl; John Given and Harry Born, colored waiters; Henry Martin, old colored lady; Dr. House, Frenchman; Otto Ginnz, Dutchman; Maggie Cook, Japanese; Frank Born, Jew; Alice Christian, Mother Goose; Myrtle Bissell, flower girl; Frank Hittle, Spaniard; Ed Many, English sport; Miss Gastineau, Japanese; Dr. Hatson, peasant; Mr. Carter, clown; Lottie Jennings, day; Frank Williams, Mephisto; Emma Harden, lady; Carrie Hudson, queen of flowers; Horace Eckhouse, gentleman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Maxwell, of Chicago, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Nov. 1, at their elegant home on Lake avenue. A reception was given in the afternoon and a family party in the evening. The guests were received by their daughter, Mrs. H. C. Prevost, and Professor Black, Mr. Maxwell's pastor, and were escorted to the bride and groom by fifty years by their daughters and daughters-in-law. Mrs. A. G. Scott, Mrs. S. K. Fletcher, Mrs. S. H. Maxwell, Mrs. E. E. Maxwell, Mrs. G. E. Maxwell and Mr. K. Fletcher. Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell were seated beneath a beautiful double heart of white and yellow roses and chrysanthemums, and a golden tulle canopy, encircling their chairs was a broad band of gold ribbon, tied in a true-lover's knot. The house was appropriately decorated in yellow and white, and the tables were fringed with white and gold. The fringes, palms and ferns being used also. Miss Morrow of Pontiac, Ill., and Miss Leah Fletcher of Indianapolis, presided at the table, and the chocolate table. The fringes were dispensed by Miss Mary Fletcher, of Indianapolis. Early in the afternoon, amid the sweet strains of the mandolin orchestra, four little grandchildren in dainty gowns, marched in, each with a huge basket of roses, and deposited them at the feet of their grandparents. In the evening dancing was indulged in, old songs sung, and a "go down to the Golden Wedding" etc., and whistling by Miss Flora Maxwell, of Vicksburg, Miss. Many handsome and yellow ribbon bouquets were received from friends in Chicago, New York, Indianapolis, and other places.

Irvington... Mr. Cullom is the guest of Mr. Art Johnson. Mrs. Dr. Wagner spent Wednesday in Irvington.

Mr. Frank Laey is seriously ill at his home in Noblesville, Ind.

Mrs. Calvin Fletcher spent Wednesday in Irvington visiting friends.

Mr. Culbertson visited friends in Crawfordsville the early part of the week.

Dr. and Mrs. Eli Ritter returned Monday from a two weeks' stay at Martinsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Granger, of Somerset, Pa., spent a portion of last week with Miss Mary Schmitt in Irvington.

Mrs. Latimore, of Franklin, Ind., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Mulendore, on Downey avenue.

The friends of Jesse Williams will be glad to hear that he has recovered from his recent injuries.

Mrs. Bruner, who has been visiting her parents in Colorado for some time, arrived in Irvington Friday.

Mr. Victor Conner, of Noblesville, and Crato Bowen, of Union City, spent Monday and Tuesday in Irvington.

Captain Manning, formerly a resident of Irvington, now of Washington, spent the week with friends here.

Mrs. A. M. Atkinson, of Wabash, visited her daughter, Miss Mayne Atkinson, at Miss Noble's the first of the week.

The young ladies of the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity entertained a party of about fifty on Halloween at the home of the Misses Hag.

Misses Shank, Brewster, Storer, Howard and Butler attended the Y. M. C. A. convention held at Danville, Ind., the early part of the week.

Miss Cora Smith returned last week to Ann Arbor, where she expects to complete in one year a two years' course of post-graduate work.

A pleasant Halloween party was given at the home of Miss Grace Osborne, about a mile south-east of Irvington. A large number of young people were present.

Mr. Clarence Brewer has returned to his home in Danville, Ind. He is seriously ill with malarial fever, and will be compelled to be out of the city for some time.

The athletic association of the college held an enthusiastic meeting in the chapel Thursday noon to elect a second eleven. The team is now working in earnest to win second place in the State.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give an orator supper Monday evening, Nov. 14, in the new gymnasium building. The building will be lighted by electricity, which will be something new for Ellettsville.

There have been so many parties, receptions and gatherings of all kinds in the past few weeks that hostesses have followed in the accepted routine and had flowers and palms, music and ice for the pleasure of their friends. At one of the companies where there were few guests all were seated while refreshments were served. One course was ice-cream served in forms. There were Chinese mandarins, roses, elephants, water lilies, dogs, tulips, and in great variety the floral, vegetable and animal kingdoms were represented. The climax of domesticity and eating all sorts of animals had not been reached, for what should take away one woman's breath but the cross and figure familiar as "Simply to the Cross I Ching." The one who received it actually gasped. She had not the courage to behold the figure or dismember her in any way. The golden locks floating down her back, even if they were rich cream, could not tempt her to become a scalper. While she had in her life tried to eat pickled pigs' feet, she had no inclination to taste the Virgin's toes or heel, and she felt it would be better to sacrifice to begin on even one corner of the cross. The rock and the milky waves of the foundation furnished her a slight excuse for her negligence. Gradually the cream melted, and the figure and the cross disappeared in the mass. It was not eaten, however, by this woman, whose sensibilities had been so shocked. The caterer will probably go on in his mad career of making ice-cream in forms. The cross will stand and the Virgin cling until it is demolished and slips in sections down the throats, time after time, as long as the mold lasts. Possibly there may be others who, by birth, education and experience, can eat the cream in this form without aversion, but it is altogether probable that a flower, or even a dog, will produce a more agreeable sensation, both to mind and palate.
