A Little Idea

People are in the habit of going to a certain place to trade, just because they know the place so well. Are you going to continue that habit, even if you lose money in the operation? I have been in Indianapolis only a few years (although in business in the State eighteen years) and I am holding out many inducements for you to forsake the old paths and try a new one. First, my stock is accumulated. Second, my prices are low. Why pay 25 cents for paper-covered books elsewhere when you can buy the same books of me in cloth covers at the same price? Or, if you choose, you can buy them in paper covers from me at 8c, 12c, etc. See my special sales.

BANK STOCK IS A CREDIT.

Attorney-General Says Debits Can Act as a Set-Off Against It in Taxation.

Attorney-general Smith has written an opinion holding that where the holder of national bank stock pays the taxes and not the bank, he, the holder, is entitled to deduct indebtedness from the total credits.

The Wabash county auditor recently declined to permit national bank stockholders, where the taxes on shares were paid by the holders and not the bank, to deduct from the assessed value of the stock any personal indebtedness, on the ground that the law did not permit deductions except from the item of credits due. The bank applied to the Attorney-general for a construction of the statute, and that official replied authorizing the deduction, and stating that such was the intent of the law. Under this ruling national bank stockholders in Indiana may subtract their legal debts from their bank stock assessment.

SWITCH WAS THROWN OPEN

Grave Charge by Street-Railroad Employees Against Two Road Officers.

Alleged Effort to Wreck a College-Avenue Car, Carrying Stablemen of the Company—Clique that is Said to Have Ousted Shaffer.

The street-car brotherhood will have before it at Thursday night's meeting a subject that will probably interest two road officers of the company. The switch from the College-avenue line at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Alabama street, after the last Brightwood car passes, is thrown so as to leave a straight track for the College-avenue cars coming down after that time. After the last Brightwood car passes this switch, the street usually being clear, the electric cars come down the avenue at a tolerably high rate of speed, and as there is no switch to throw at this point the motormen have been in the habit of crossing it without paying any attention to whether the switch was thrown or not. The last car down town from the College-avenue stables usually carries a number of employees of the company from that barn. One night about two weeks ago the motorman on this car noticed that the switch was thrown so that the car would be run on to the Alabama-street track, and if the car had been going at the usual rate of speed serious damage would have been done and a loss of life probably have resulted. The motorman, however, had time to throw the switch and avoid any accident. The fact of the switch being thrown caused comment as to how it came to be in that position, and an investigation was commenced by the brotherhood.

In speaking of the affair a member of the brotherhood said to a reporter yesterday: "We have been throwing the switch to two road officers, and at its meeting next Thursday night the brotherhood will report the facts in our possession to the company and ask that an investigation be made by the company. There exists a clique among the road officers who are determined to run the affairs of the company to suit themselves, and one of their main objects is to disrupt the brotherhood. This attempt on the part of the two road officers to wreck the College-avenue car is a part of their scheme to do this, the object being to make it appear to the new management that the members of the brotherhood were careless and negligent, and the accident which it was intended to have happen was to be made to appear due to the carelessness of the motorman. This clique includes a number of the old officers that hold over from the old management, and they are very strongly organized. "It was this same clique," he continued, "that caused the ousting of Shaffer, and the ousting of Steele, and the ousting of Mason and Boyd to the guillotine in the latter two officials do not uphold them in their machinations, as they have every-where else that has opposed them. It is my idle assertion to say that they will depose the president of the company, for, as they have done it in the past they will do it again. They will start at first gradually, and work their schemes delicately, and prevail upon the directors to believe that the two officials named are causing disturbances and are to be removed by themselves for the purpose of bringing the officials into disfavor. This same clique is responsible for the resignation of Mike Burns, and if I was to tell you I could name members of the brotherhood to the extent of about a dozen that have been dropped on account of the machinations of the clique. The brotherhood is aware of their work, and will undertake to expose them, as it is seen that their object is the eventual disruption of the organization."

Employees Want to Be Protected.

The street-car employees have been watching carefully discussion on the new franchise, and will probably ask the Board of Public Works to make some additions to it. There has been, among the men, some talk about asking the board to incorporate some feature similar to that in the Toronto franchise, which provides that the men shall not be required to work more than ten hours per day, and shall receive not less than 15 cents per hour for their work. The brotherhood of street-car men will formulate a clause on this subject, and they will ask the board to insert in the franchise; or substitute one of their own with the same end in view, and, if the board declines to insert it, it is their intention that the brotherhood will remember the refusal and use it at a time when it will be very disastrous. The Journal's informant did not say in so many words that the brotherhood would come at the polls, but left the impression that that was what was meant.

GREEK DRESS.

Discourse by Mrs. Milburn, Giving Interesting Information to Women and Men.

Mrs. John S. Tarkington's parlors were well filled yesterday afternoon with an audience composed of women, who gathered to hear the lecture on "Greek Dress," by Mrs. J. A. Milburn. Mrs. Milburn began by saying that the paper had been written by request, and was read before a club of four hundred members in Chicago; that it had nothing to do with dress reform, which had been suggested. Any subject of "dress" just at present is of interest, and doubtless a majority of those present expected something to be said in regard to the style of the Grecian costume. In no particular did the lecturer refer to it. Instead, the subject was an artistic review of the body and its covering in the classic period of Greece, when there were gods and goddesses, and when a perfect physique was sought. These goddesses were given for raiment—concealment, protection and adornment. Among the deities the complete bodily development was such an attribute to be desired that the first was not considered. Nurtured for strength, there was no necessity for the body to be protected, so that the only reason why hair-dress of any sort was adopted was simply and solely as adornment. The skins which one finds in the pictures of the gods were the first articles worn. Dress among the Greeks was the outcome of their intellectual development. The speaker, recalling frequently the names familiar in classic literature, traced the coverings of the Greeks which were referred to among the later of classic writers. In regard to the nude in art Mrs. Milburn said that the statues which we take as our models, as the Venus of Milo, were molded when the women were only veils, and a brief description of their gazy texture and the way they were worn followed. The lecturer held the audience closely interested from beginning to end.

LIBERTY BELL RECEPTION.

Committee to Invite General Harrison to Make an Address—Escort Committee.

The Board of Trade committee on arrangements held a meeting yesterday, at which a letter was read, saying it would be possible to remove the Liberty bell from the car on which it was traveling, but there would be no objection to running the car upon a side track. The bell, it was stated, would arrive at 6 o'clock on the morning of the 25th, and would remain in the city until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The committee then proceeded to prepare for the reception of the distinguished relic. It was decided to invite General Harrison to make the address, and a committee to extend the invitation was appointed by Chairman Murphy, as follows: Thomas L. Sullivan, Charles S. Denny, George W. Sloan. A subcommittee on arrangements was appointed, as follows: Irving S. Gordon, Charles E. Haug, James W. Looper, C. E. Hollenbeck, Martin Murphy, William H. Cooper. This committee will meet this afternoon, at 4 o'clock. A committee on reception of the escort of the bell was appointed as follows: Governor Claude Matthews, John W. Murphy, Colonel L. H. Thomas, L. Sullivan, Roscoe O. Hawkins. The exercises will probably be held on the south steps of the Statehouse.

STILL NOT SETTLED.

Murder of Young Under Investigation—Testimony of Women Before the Coroner.

The Young murder case is a mystery still. The police are of the opinion that those who live in the vicinity of the tragedy are doing some "all prevaricating" to shield some person who has not yet appeared on the scene. Coroner Beck devoted the day yesterday to the examination of the women who reside in the block on West Washington street, and succeeded in developing some very queer and decidedly different versions of the affair. The aged father and mother of the prisoner, Seibert, were present during the inquest, and appeared to be terribly depressed over the unfortunate affair. Ida Oliver, the woman who is being held in custody in the case, was very nervous under the fire of questions put to her by Coroner Beck and attorney Everett, both of whom are positive she has not yet told the truth. In her direct testimony she stated that her friend, "Youngie," as she terms the subject of the case, came to her room at 11 o'clock Monday morning with a strange man, whom he did not introduce. She and the two men went to a saloon, returning shortly. She says she left them at the gate and saw them no more together. Mollie Downs, when called to the stand, testified on oath that she saw Mrs. Oliver and a short thick man leave her room at 11 o'clock Monday morning, and that she borrowed a bonnet from Mrs. Binan, the man waiting while she was getting it. Mrs. Oliver was recalled and asked about this incident, but claimed that she borrowed the bonnet in the morning, although she finally admitted that she had drunk considerably that day, and it might have been in the afternoon. She also claims that the painter who was working in the building bought the "Subject" for her in the afternoon, before she went to her sister's on Geisendorf street. Emma Binan, a sister of Ida Oliver, and the woman who claims to have witnessed the murder, testified in substance to the evidence she gave the police, admitting that her sister did considerable drinking on Monday, Mollie Downs, another part of their story. She had been married six times and lives a quiet life, refraining, she says, as much as possible, from associating with the women about. On the night of the murder she was in Emma Binan's apartment when Young was struck down. She saw a man, she says, walk east on Washington avenue, and Mrs. Binan said the painter after having his sign, called Mrs. Binan to the door and showed her his work. She was positive he was the man who was killed. She saw him in the street, and both returned together to where Young was lying. Emma Binan remembers that the man who killed Young, and instantly the man turned and walked away. While they were standing by Young, Ida Oliver came up, and was told that Young had been killed. She saw the blood from his face, and exclaimed: "I can whip the man that struck him." The investigation will continue. Seibert was arraigned in Police Court yesterday morning, and his case continued until next Wednesday.

TIGHTENING EVIDENCE.

Mrs. Anna Culman's Story of Two Colored Men in Her Bakery—Descriptions Tally.

Coroner Beck yesterday took additional testimony in the Eyster murder case, some of which was rather damaging to the two men arrested. Mrs. Anna Culman testified that on the night of the shooting two colored men, answering the description of those arrested, came into her bakery, at No. 638 North Mississippi street, and purchased a pie. Her attention was attracted by their strange actions while in the bakery, and she called the attention of her husband to it, and they were talking of it after the men left. They asked for change for a nickel while in the bakery. This, together with the testimony of John Venable, given before the coroner Tuesday, in which he claims to have seen Parker and McAfee running north from the drug store on the night of the shooting, goes to disprove the statements of the men themselves, that they were not upon the street that night. The negro Parker, who is supposed to have done the shooting which killed druggist Eyster, was examined yesterday by the coroner. He denied having any knowledge of the affair, and while he seemed willing to talk, he said nothing that gave any light on the question. He did not, however, relieve himself of the suspicions against himself and McAfee.

COSTLY "HORSE" PLAY.

"Side" Degree of Machinists' Union Causes a Broken Arm and Weekly Indemnity.

Machinists' Union, No. 64, admitted a candidate Tuesday night, and in taking him through the initiatory ceremony of a side degree, which was rather unceremonious, his arm was broken, and the union will have to pay him $15 per week during the time he is unable to work and bear all of the expenses entailed by the accident. The process of initiation in the side degree to which the candidate was to be admitted, consisted in the candidate standing in a folded, and several persons would catch hold of the four corners of the sheet and toss the aspiring candidate in the air. On the occasion of the ceremony the candidate when he felt himself on the rise, grasped the side of the sheet and was jerked off the sheet on to the floor, and broke his arm in the fall.

JOSHUA JUMP IS WITH US

Applicant for Collectorship of Revenue Pulled Out of Bed for Interview.

Another Republican Leader Prophesies Victory in 1914—Good Candidates and Good Organization Essential—Crawley in Town.

Mr. Joshua Jump, of Terre Haute, is a guest of the Bates House. He was called upon by a Journal reporter last night, but, though quite early, had retired. "If I had known you were a newspaper man," said he to the caller, "I would not have sent word that I would see you. I was up late last night and so retired early to-night. It would not have been worth while to see you because I know nothing of interest to the public."

"But how about your own prospects for appointment as revenue collector?"

"I know absolutely nothing more than the public knows. My application is on file at Washington, but I have no reason to think the appointment will be made before October. There is nothing that can be said against the present collector, Mr. Troop, and he will no doubt be allowed to complete his term. The Washington dispatch that John E. Lamb is in Washington in my interest is not true. He is working in behalf of other friends who want appointments. I do not care to state who these are."

All Want Something Big.

The friends of John Foley, president of the Gray Club, now say that he is to be appointed chief clerk to United States Marshal Hawkins. It is said that Tom Taggart promised to "take care" of him when he failed to get an appointment in Washington. Taggart, however, was applied to for a letter, and under information of change of support has caused a small-sized sensation. It is said that Taggart has concluded to stand for the nomination for State Treasurer, and he is seeking to strengthen his fences at home. John K. Wilson, who is ambitious, was also for Foley. The trend of his ambition, however, is said to have taken a turn. He now wants to be Attorney-general, being lured on by the reports of Green Smith's principal income. Friends of Joe Fanning, who is in the logical line for nomination to succeed Auditor Henderson, are becoming anxious and show a revived spirit under the asserted income of Fanning. Marion county cannot have three State nominations, and Fanning's friends say the others ought to hold off for him.

Victory in 1914.

Mr. John L. Rupe, ex-chairman of Wayne county, was at the Denison last night. In speaking of the political situation in Indiana, he said: "There is an excellent chance for the Republicans to redeem the State at the next election. With a united party, energetic and capable men as candidates, and with a first-class State central committee, there is no reason why the Democrats should not be overthrown. Their records in this State is of itself enough to defeat the Republican ticket. The chances are that they are committed will be followed with swift retribution."

Crawley and Hawkins.

Charles E. Crawley, of Sullivan, arrived in the city last night. He said that United States Marshal Hawkins is quite sick at his home in Sullivan. He has not, as far as Mr. Crawley knew, as yet made his appointments. Mr. Crawley is in ignorance of his own chances, but will remain in the city a day or two.

SUBMITTED TO THE BOYCOTT.

Mummenhoff Solicits Again Trade of an Old Customer—Millers Square Themselves.

One or two commission men have weakened in their fight against the Retail Merchants' Association, and have made overtures to be let into the agreement which they at first refused to sign, obliging themselves not to sell at retail. Austin & Son have received a letter from Mummenhoff, the South Delaware-street commission merchant, asking that they give him their trade again, and he will, in turn, refuse to sell goods at retail. Austin & Son, before the controversy arose between the association and the commission men, bought most of their produce from Mummenhoff, but after the refusal of the latter to sign the agreement, as asked by the association, went with the others to the two commission merchants who did sign. A fifth-tier grocer, in speaking of the controversy yesterday afternoon, said that five commission men had sent similar letters to as many grocers. Not a few commission men are hoping that the commission men will hold out. As the grocers' fight is directly against the interests of the consumers, a number of people are beginning to be troubled to notify grocers that they need expect no trade from them as long as they were in the boycotting business, and have ceased their trade directly with the commission men. A few notices, on the part of their customers, would soon bring the grocers to their senses. If the commission men would only deliver goods, they could stand to be boycotted all summer by the grocers. The committee appointed to see the millers Buchanan and Frange, who were reported to the association as having violated their agreement not to retail, visited the millers yesterday and obtained from them a promise not to retail. In the agreement, Buchanan turned over to Ehlarty & Co. the profit received on three barrels of flour sold by him at retail, which otherwise would in all probability have been sold by that firm. Frange explained to the committee that he had not in fact sold goods at retail, but had merely exchanged with the farmer flour for whom it was permissible under the terms of the millers' agreement with the association.
