SCHOOLBOOKS FOR THE STATE.

Advertisements for the New Grammars—Revision of the Readers.

The State Board of Education yesterday had a busy session, with various routine work.

Finally it began to dawn on the club members that their plans were being carried to the enemy, comprising Mayor Sullivan and his associates.

Country Banks Bracing Up. The reports that the Citizens' Bank of Knox had suspended proved yesterday to be incorrect.

Mrs. Avels, one of the witnesses called in by the State Board of Charities in the investigation into the school for Feeble-minded, says the statement that her separation from the institution was not voluntary does her an injustice.

Boys' Home Benefit. The Boys' Home benefit occurs to-night at the First Baptist Church.

His Honor's Sickmess. A knot of Democrats stood at the Circle, yesterday, watching the labor demonstration.

And then several felt the force of the remark, and one or two were so irreverent as to laugh.

It is said that a number of the Mayor's friends are becoming alarmed at the labor troubles, inasmuch as they are apt to furnish the Mayor with an opportunity to display his characteristic backbone.

COY STANDS FOR SULLIVAN

Redoubtable Sim Forced to Resign His Place in the Cleveland Club.

Suspected of Treachery by the Downing Forces—Republicans to Reorganize Their City Committee on May 29.

SIM COY RESIGNS.

Cleveland Club Scores Him—The Inside History of the Downing Forces.

Hon. Simeon Coy, of various ups and downs (and an in and out), has plucked his small Roman form on a pedestal, where it now poses in martyrdom to Mayor Sullivan's candidacy for a third nomination.

Mr. Coy actually resigned last night, and to the credit of himself and copartisans it may be said that it was not an office he resigned, but merely his membership in the Cleveland Club.

The Cleveland Club held a harassing meeting last night, but after some bitter talk accepted the Hon. Simeon's resignation with much gusto.

The only delay was through a desire of the members to individually brand the Hon. Sim and his backers before he got beyond effective range.

In the afternoon some of the indiscreet members of the club let out the secret that Coy was to be brought on the carpet that night, and the same reaching the Hon. Sim's ears, he took his pen in hand to let the club know, etc., that he resigned!

It was authoritatively announced a day or two ago that Downing was in the municipal arena, the Cleveland Club had already indicated him, but the developments of yesterday caused a small sensation, for they clearly defined and brought to light the elements in the local Democratic fight.

Downing's candidacy was primarily a club to hold over Mayor Sullivan by John Frenzel, Albert Lieber and others, who were interested in certain street-car matters.

The club has now grown into such wonderful proportions that Frenzel et al. cannot get their hands around it to hold it down.

It has since become too much of a good thing. Coy trotted along behind Messrs. Frenzel and Lieber until they were ready to whistle for him.

He was attacked to a string which was in the shape of employment furnished by Lieber. The thing boom drew in its vortex Sterling R. Holt, Jim Keach, Charles Polster, Jim Wilson and some others, believing that Downing's candidacy was bona fide.

Frenzel was not certain that he could control the Mayor in street-railroad schemes, and the Downing boom was to scare Mr. Sullivan so that he would come to terms.

The City Railway Company was in incubation at this time. The Mayor has a predisposition to getting scarce, particularly so where street-car matters, from strikes, deals, are involved.

Frenzel scolded him to bush without trouble. The score to the Mayor came in the shape of a suggestion that if his Board of Public Works would hang up a general street-car charter for sale the opposition to Sullivan's candidacy might be withdrawn.

The bid of the City company for the street-car franchise was an unusually liberal one, and opened the eyes of the people to the profits in the street-railroad business.

As first sight it appeared to be a wonderful prize to be plucked before it fell and smashed itself.

On the day before the midnight meeting of the Council to approve the new franchise, Frenzel's organ came out with the announcement that the granting of the franchise rounded up the opposition to the alory of Sullivan and cleared the field of opposition to his candidacy for a third term.

It was further stated that opposition to Sullivan in the county Democratic committee had vanished. To the Mayor everything seemed ready for his third triumph, and he tried himself in influencing councilmen to approve the contract.

All this while the wheel set in motion by Frenzel and Lieber to bring Downing's name was gaining momentum, and when Frenzel and Lieber switched over to Sullivan and tried to stop the wheel they found they were powerless.

The Cleveland Club's endorsement of Downing had given him prestige among the party workers. Coy had been active in Downing's behalf, and his masters went to Sullivan and whistled for him to come also.

Frenzel had not publicly announced that he was with the Mayor, and Keach, Jim Wilson and Sterling Holt continued to work for Downing.

They were in the campaign to stay. Their work for Downing was systematic and consisted in empty ward organization. Coy remained a member of the board of managers of the Cleveland Club, and it was understood that he was remaining loyal to Downing, the club's nominee.

The club's ambition to Tammanize the Democratic party in the city and county had been abandoned by Frenzel and Coy, and for a time no one suspected that Coy was not diligently laboring to this end, with Downing as the first candidate to be offered by the new regime.

Finally it began to dawn on the club members that their plans were being carried to the enemy, comprising Mayor Sullivan and his associates.

Frenzel and others of his newly-acquired friends to waver in their support, and talk of substituting Ed Hawkins as a majority candidate. When the laborers laid down their shovels several days ago on Alabama street the Mayor went home sick, and when he heard of the troubles, yesterday, his ailment took even a more serious turn.

On East street, yesterday afternoon, the neighborhood of the sewer was crowded with men making loud demonstrations and repeated calls were sent to the police. The police did not respond within an hour of the call, although in addition to the messages sent the police, a dummy whistle was blown and a dummy march to the distress of people living near by.

The police protection furnished the contractors has been inadequate. There seems to be an antagonism among the police officials in responding to these calls.

The Indianapolis Brewing Company, Albert Lieber, manager, has leased from Geo. J. Marrott and wife the rear room in the premises situated at No. 26 East Washington street for a term of six years, to be occupied by a club.

The conditions of the lease prohibit gambling or any violation of any state or penal ordinance of the State or city. Among the provisions is one forbidding the entrance of women into the room.

REPUBLICANS ARE OUT EARLY.

Confident of Success in the Coming Campaign—City Committee Meets.

The Republicans are up and doing, making preparations for a strong and united municipal campaign.

There has been some desultory discussion of candidates on the street, in the clubs and elsewhere, but there has been no settled movement for any one man.

There is confidence that when the time comes a man can be found within the party who can command the confidence of the people and the enthusiastic support of every Republican in the city.

Just at present the sentiment uppermost in that party should be completely and compactly organized and ready for the fight by the time the campaign begins.

With this end in view, the city committee held a meeting at the Marion Club rooms last evening, pursuant to an adjournment two weeks ago.

Plans of organization were further discussed, and it did not take long to discover that the sentiment was already indicated by the committee.

It was organized upon a broader and more popular basis; that instead of electing committee members by ward, as heretofore, the committee should be organized on a basis of precincts.

Opinion was expressed that as early as possible primaries should be held as early as possible. In accordance with these views, a meeting of the committee was held on Monday evening, the 15th inst., at 8 o'clock.

A committee of five was selected to hold the places for holding said ward meetings shall be referred, and that said committee shall fix a time and place after said ward committee shall have been selected for the meeting thereof for the purpose of organization; and, resolved further, that in case any precinct shall fail to organize a committee at the ward meeting after referred to the new committee after its organization shall have the power to fill any vacancy vacated, or may refer the matter back to the Republican voters of said precinct where such vacancies exist at meetings to be called to said several precincts by said new committee.

The committee of five for whom a part of the resolution provided, were named as follows: P. C. Truesdell, Henry Crafts, George Harvey, H. E. Smith and Dr. Wagner.

Major Wildman was chosen to call the tenth ward meeting to order. Committee member Tarlton, that ward, having become a non-resident. Provision was made for minor changes in committees caused by removals from wards.

Enthusiastic speeches were made by committee members, expressing confidence in the outlook for Republican success in view of the present weak condition of municipal affairs by the Democratic party.

CAPTAIN ALLEN TALKS.

Could Have Been Pension Agent—Turpie Looking After Salm's Interests.

Captain Allen, the newly-appointed State Tax Commissioner, arrived home yesterday from Washington, where he went, he says, to thank Senator Voorhees for the kindness shown him when recently an applicant for the place of pension agent for this State.

He was met by Henry Crafts, George Harvey, H. E. Smith and Dr. Wagner. Major Wildman was chosen to call the tenth ward meeting to order.

Committee member Tarlton, that ward, having become a non-resident. Provision was made for minor changes in committees caused by removals from wards.

BRINGING THEM TO TERMS

Commission Merchants Surrender to the Retail Grocers' Association.

Agreement Not to Sell to Small Consumers—Will Next Attack the Saturday Night Market—Sunday Closing.

The commission merchants have surrendered to the Retail Merchants' Commercial Association and the terms of the capitulation were submitted to the association and accepted at its meeting last night.

Several weeks ago the association asked the commission men to sign an agreement not to sell at retail to consumers excepting hotels, public institutions, etc.

There were several conferences between the committee from the association and the commission men which resulted in two of the commission men signing the agreement, and the refusal of the others to do so.

The association immediately adopted resolutions obligating themselves to purchase only from the two commission men who had signed.

They adhered strictly to this plan until they compelled the commission men to accept their terms.

At the meeting last night the following agreement, signed by all the commission merchants, was received and accepted by the association:

We, the undersigned fruit and commission merchants of the city of Indianapolis, hereby agree and bind ourselves not to sell to consumers, except hotels, restaurants, peddlers, city, county and State institutions, farmers and gardeners.

This contract or agreement to be in force from and after May 16, 1893, excepting Saturday afternoons on perishable goods. It is further understood that in consideration of the commission merchants agreeing not to retail, etc., that the members of the grocers' Union do also bind themselves not to buy such goods from non-residents, or on track here out of cars owned and on sale by non-residents.

Having compelled the commission men to surrender the association will now declare war upon the Saturday night market.

Chairman Stuckmeyer called the attention of the association to the fact that the Saturday night market was causing the grocers and butchers to lose an immense amount of trade and suggested that the association make efforts towards having the market abolished.

He said that he believed the Council overstepped the bounds of their authority in passing the ordinance authorizing the night market, and that he had opposed the measure when it was before the Council, of which he was a member at that time.

Action was deferred on this question until the next meeting.

The question of Sunday closing was also brought up, and a committee of gentlemen, consisting of nine North-side and eight South-side grocers, was appointed to canvass the situation among the retail merchants on Sunday closing.

The committee will report at the next meeting, and if it makes a favorable report the good housewives in the future will have to purchase their provisions on Saturdays, or borrow from their neighbors on Sunday.

Colonel Holloway addressed the meeting, asking the association to lend its aid in raising funds for the entertainment of the G. A. R., the association to appoint canvassers to solicit funds in the retail trade of the city.

The association is rapidly increasing in membership and becoming a very strong organization. Twenty-five new members were taken in last night.

Richardson Alleged Horse Thief.

Chief of Police Colbert last night arrested a young man named William Richardson on information forwarded by Marshall Brothers, of Crawfordsville, charging Richardson with having stolen a horse and buggy of William Surface, New Market, Montgomery county.

Richardson was found in Gates's saloon at Haughville, and a few squares away the horse and buggy was found. The prisoner has been taken to the city yesterday with the intention of returning last night.

There are no new developments in the Capital Bank investigation, the special examiner progressing well with the examination. His report will not be ready until the early part of next week.
