WILL FACE TO THE WEST. Monument Commissioners Turn a Deaf Ear to Everybody, the Sculptor Included.

It is evident that the Monument Commissioners propose to pay no more attention to the almost unanimous desire of the people that the crowning figure face to the south than they did to the unanimous demand of the ex-soldiers of the Union that the Mexican dates come down. The Commission has had before it a petition, signed by 124 well-known property owners, reading as follows:

We, the undersigned citizens and property owners, would respectfully request that you face the crowning figure to the south, as originally designed. If not done, we believe that the beauty and grandeur of the monument will be greatly marred.

The signers of this petition are, for the most part, property owners on the Circle and about the center of the city, and among them are many of the most substantial citizens of Indianapolis. Added to their petition has been the pleading of Mr. Brewer, the sculptor who designed the crowning figure, with the understanding that it was to face to the south, but apparently his words have no more weight with the commission than that of anybody else.

Let It Face Toward Mexico. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal:

To settle the question as to which way the crowning figure of our "Mexicanized" monument should face, I would suggest to the Mexicanized commissioners to draw a line from the dome of the capitol of Mexico to the top of the monument, striking the figure center between the eyes, both her down and let her look to Mexico for her future laurels.

BANK SUSPENSIONS. No New Developments in the Situation Yesterday—Earlier Feeling in Business Circles.

There were no new developments in the suspensions of the two local banks yesterday. Examiner Young is busy with the books of the Indianapolis National, and he declines to give out any information in connection with the affairs of the institution. Cashier Kexford refers newspaper men to the examiner. More of the paper held by the Bank of Commerce was paid yesterday, and the assets of the bank increased. The officers think the institution will be able to resume, but will set no limit to the date.

The feeling in business circles was much easier than on the preceding day or the day of the suspensions, and business men believe that the times will gradually grow better as far as Indianapolis is concerned.

Cruelty to Animals. Indianapolis Sun. Not since Nero fiddled while Rome was burning has such utter heartlessness been shown in a time of great disaster as the Indianapolis National Bank manifested in not suspending our five contemporary banks that it was going to close its doors, so that it could get out an extra.

DEMOCRATS VERY INDIGNANT

Open Revolt Against the High-Handed Methods of the Administration Gang.

Bosses Scored Roundly by Delegates and Voters for the Tally-Sheet Frauds Perpetrated Wednesday Night.

Talk of Having the Councilmanic Nominations Withdraw from the Ticket.

Coy, Taggart and Others Disclaim Responsibility—Dissatisfied Pensioner Who Got His Reward.

THEY ARE PROTESTING LOUDLY.

Gang's Actions More than Even the Doctile Democrats Can Stand.

The tally-sheet frauds at the Democratic convention on Wednesday night at the Hendricks Club hall, the expose in yesterday's Journal and the great wave of indignation among the respectable Democrats which followed, has practically rent the local Democratic machine in twain. There was a wailing and gnashing of teeth at the City Hall over the bungling manner in which the machine had carried out its mission. The Sullivan employes had little to say, but what little they did have to say was said in a very gloomy manner. A number of Democrats called to tell the Sullivan people that the affair was an outrage on decency and on the party, and in all parts of the building there was a general "roasting." It has begun to dawn on the administration that its chance for another endorsement are at the lowest ebb.

John Carlon had business in the controller's office, and several asked him what he thought of the high-handed outrage at the convention. "I think the whole kit and caboodle is in the penitentiary," Comrade Tarkington was even prompted to abandon his well-known conservatism on party matters, and remarked that "it is not right, these things cannot last." He had heard a number of his party denounce the affair.

One of the delegates at the convention dropped into the city clerk's office while Judge Buskirk, City Clerk Abrams, Secretary Stuart of the city committee, Sim Coy and others were sitting around. He turned loose and gave the men who worked the scheme one of the bitterest denunciations that has ever been heard in the court-house basement. Those present had but little to say, desiring by their silence to let him know that they had nothing to do with the outrage. Coy had declared that it was none of his work. Judge Buskirk had nothing to say. He was not near the stage and knew nothing about it. The others attempted a dignified silence, but the scene became so severe that they intimated that the delegate was merely sore because he did not get his man nominated.

"I tell you what it is," said the delegate, "it was a plain case of steal and a rank outrage on the party. I kept count of the votes for Markey on a piece of paper, and after he had quit counting. When it was announced that he had only received 131 my blood boiled. I tried to get at the tally sheets, but they made way with them. Finally I kept my hands off a roll of tally sheets, and after I got a few feet away I found they had worked a confidence game on me by giving me blank sheets, with the last Legislature had passed a law punishing frauds at primaries and conventions, for I believe those fellows ought to go to the penitentiary for that."

Mr. Coy had not a word to say on this proposition. "Yes, sir," continued the delegate, "every one that has a hand in that business ought to be punished, but I do not suppose there is any way of doing it. It is bad enough trying to beat other fellows by tally-sheet frauds, but when it comes down to the Democratic party that is being unhooded by such a crowd, the offense is enormous. I was elected by a vote of a hundred votes, and those people will believe what I tell them about the frauds, and I shall not hesitate to do it. It is a second nature with me to vote the Democratic ticket, and I used to think I never could vote any other, but I do not know that I will vote for the men that were nominated last night."

Several of those in the office attempted to console the enraged delegate by telling him that the nominees were good men, anyhow, but this had but little soothing effect on him. About this time Tom Taggart was steered in on the delegates to head him up or to shut him up. Taggart came in good-naturedly, and by his magnetic presence had the delegate cooled down in a short time. Mr. Taggart insisted that he knew nothing of the frauds, and that there was any he knew nothing about it. Secretary Stuart said his Democratic neighbors were up to his house before breakfast to tell him about it.

Horrible Fate of Bertha Cordes.

Her Clothing Caught Fire and She Was Fatally Burned Before Help Could Reach Her.

Miss Bertha Cordes, residing at No. 21 Oriole street, was seriously and probably fatally burned about half past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Miss Cordes resides with her brother and sister, for whom she acts as housekeeper. Yesterday afternoon while she was engaged with her work in the kitchen her clothing caught fire from the stove, and in an instant the flames flashed up and completely enveloped her body. She screamed frantically for help and rushed from the room into the one adjoining.

The Turnkey's Search.

Wednesday night Jerry Collins, turnkey at the jail, started on a search in the southwestern part of the city for Whit Howard who had escaped several days ago, while en route to the Michigan City. He didn't find Starr, but succeeded in capturing another escaped prisoner. As Collins himself put it, he went bear hunting and bagged a jack rabbit. As the turnkey was coming up South Illinois street he noticed a man in a dark coat and hat, who he believed made a successful lunge and captured the boy and took him to the jail, where he was again put behind the bars. Young Howard had been arrested, and was awaiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of petit larceny. Last Friday he was sent to the City Hospital upon the recommendation of the county attorney, but there is a slight chance for his recovery.

Deputy Brown, of the United States Marshal's office, yesterday arrested and brought to this city Andrew Kimberlin, on a charge of passing counterfeit money. Kimberlin lived at Doelittle Mills, in Perry county, and had passed a large number of counterfeit nickels. He will have his hearing to-day, and was held in bonds of $1,000 for his appearance, going to jail in default of it.

make an investigation. He says that if he is convinced that his nomination was made by fraud he will not accept it. Mr. White stated that he was defeated by the Mayor's man Friday, Coy, for the councilmanic nomination in the Ninth ward, that he would not accept a nomination from the administration as a councilman-at-large. He said distinctly that Sullivan and his crowd could not make a cat's paw out of him in any such manner as that. There was nothing, he said, that they could give him to appease him. A great pressure was brought to bear on him by the Sullivanites, who feared his popularity with the laboring people, and finally he consented to allow his name to go before the convention on Wednesday night. When the gate found that they could not get but a hundred or so votes from the convention for Mr. White, they decided to count him in by fraud in order to keep him from hurting their man Sullivan. Bailiff Bruce, of the Superior Court, and one of the prominent Democrats in the Ninth ward, says that Sullivan was allowed to count on account of the way the administration saddled Coy on the ward over White.

Taggart Will Hardly Be Chairman.

The skin-game convention has almost broken up the Democratic city committee meeting which was to be held this week. It was reported that the meeting was to be held last night, but there were no signs of any such event. A member of the committee said last night that the frauds of Wednesday night will prevent the Sullivanites from securing the chairmanship of the committee, and there is a general belief that Ed Hawkins, who is opposed to the Sullivan machine, which is antagonistic to his majority, will be chairman. Taggart will hardly be nominated, in view of the recent affair.

P. J. Ryan, the secretary of the convention where the tally sheets were forged, has been Sullivan's man in the Council for a long time. He was not out among the politicians yesterday, for he evidently dreaded the storm that would have come down on him from the Democrats who were defrauded of a fair count in the convention. The committeeman who is quoted above referred to the course of his party organ in this disgraceful affair thus:

The Sentinel, yesterday, in its report of the convention, has no reference whatever to the high-handed proceedings and to the incident riot when the frauds were discovered. Yet I knew all about them at the convention, he passed me a bluff at scoring Sim Coy, whose offense, for which he suffered imprisonment, was no greater than the one committed Wednesday night. It had no line of editorial. The News, another highly moral paper when a campaign is on, was restrained from denouncing the frauds. It did not want to injure the Sullivan administration.

Chairman Taggart's Explanation.

There was one topic mentioned in the courthouse yesterday and that was the appointment of councilmen at large by Taggart et al., at the Hendricks Club rooms the night before. The thing was being cussed and discussed when a Journal reporter dropped into the county auditor's office. Mr. Taggart was present and some one gently hinted that it was current rumor that there was no objection made to the tally sheets and some of the men announced as nominated did not receive a hundred votes, while others who received a large number showed up very conspicuously in the count. Mr. Taggart ventured to remark that if there was any mistake in the vote as announced it was due to clerical error. The only reply made was a meaning smile which spread over the faces of his hearers.

Ex-Alderman Blackwell was not reticent, and freely expressed his feeling about the appointment of the candidates. "It is time we were turning Tom Taggart down," he said in speaking to a friend yesterday afternoon.

GOT HIS REWARD.

Pensioner Who Voted for Cleveland, in a Fit of Pique, Dropped from the Rolls.

Yesterday afternoon a well-known veteran of the city overtook a Journal reporter, who had stopped after passing him while in conversation with two others. "Did you notice the eldest of the two men with whom I was talking?" asked the veteran of the reporter. On being informed that he did not, the veteran went on to say: "Years ago he was pensioned at the rate of $8 per month. Some time after General Harrison was elected he made an application for an increase. When he saw so many pensions being granted under the act of 1882, he was dissatisfied because he had not given an increase. From being dissatisfied he became angry—so angry that he would not vote for Harrison. A few days after he received notice from the Pension Bureau that upon official evidence in the office his pension had been suspended until he should furnish fresh evidence in support of his claim, under the act. He is the maddest, most disgusted man I have met in years. He is entitled to the pension he received, in my judgment, yet he has refused to accept it. He is voting for Cleveland because he was angry. He can get his name restored, probably, but it will take some time for him to get his mind to talk about the matter just now."

Horrible Fate of Bertha Cordes.

Her Clothing Caught Fire and She Was Fatally Burned Before Help Could Reach Her.

Miss Bertha Cordes, residing at No. 21 Oriole street, was seriously and probably fatally burned about half past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Miss Cordes resides with her brother and sister, for whom she acts as housekeeper. Yesterday afternoon while she was engaged with her work in the kitchen her clothing caught fire from the stove, and in an instant the flames flashed up and completely enveloped her body. She screamed frantically for help and rushed from the room into the one adjoining.

Patrolman Jackson, who resides near the residence of Miss Cordes, hearing her screams, ran into the house and found her standing in the center of the room with her clothes afire. He succeeded in extinguishing the flames, and other assistance soon arrived. Physicians were sent for, and Drs. Beauer and Gabe answered and attended her. The physicians say that the injury will probably prove fatal, but there is a slight chance for her recovery.

Wednesday night Jerry Collins, turnkey at the jail, started on a search in the southwestern part of the city for Whit Howard who had escaped several days ago, while en route to the Michigan City. ### HAULING OF GARBAGE.

Contractor Woodard Offended at "The Grabbage Man"—Better Service Promised.

J. H. Woodard, who has the contract for the collection of garbage, felt personally offended at the Journal's parody and cartoon on "The Grabbage Man" yesterday. The public surely understands that Mr. Woodard does not personally collect garbage, nor was his personality in mind when the Journal's poet was grinding out the doggerel meant to reflect the various weird stories about about the garbage collectors. The Journal likes Mr. Woodard too well to wittingly wound his feelings, and it had no intention of doing so. Contractor Woodard left word at the Board of Works office yesterday that the company would have the collecting districts of the city clearly defined by Monday, and that the collection of garbage would be more satisfactory. He thought by that time the company would be able to know what their wagons could do in the way of hauling big quantities of garbage.

TRIED TO PASS A MEDAL.

Advertisement That is a Facsimile of a Silver Dollar Upon One Side.

Harry McMillan, claiming to have recently arrived from Ohio, was arrested on East Washington street yesterday evening for having in his possession a counterfeit coin. The coin which he had was a medal, one side of which was an exact reproduction of a silver dollar and the other contained an advertisement of the Buckeye Business College. McMillan went into the saloon in the old Little Hotel building at the corner of New Jersey and Washington streets, and offered the coin in payment for drinks. It was refused, and he was advised not to try to pass it again. He failed to obey the injunction, however, and went across the street to a restaurant, where he tried to pass the coin again, and at this time he was arrested.

Della Perkins Found Again.

Della Perkins, whose second disappearance was mentioned in last Tuesday's Journal, was arrested in company with Ida Preston, last evening, by Sergeant Mefford, in the resort of Nora Vernon, at No. 269 West Market street. They say that they have been staying in a room on South New Jersey street, and had their meals brought to them by an old man with whom they were acquainted. They said they knew nothing of the character of the case, and simply ran into it to escape the officers, who they knew were looking for them. At the police station, when Superintendent Collier told the Perkins girl that he intended to send for her stepfather, A. D. Mendenhall, she said she would kill him if he came into the place. When Mendenhall appeared, however, she made no attempt to murder him, and accompanied him home.
