

There seems to be absolutely nothing for the summer girl who stays in town to do. Tennis is way out of date. Lawn parties are a thing of the past. All the old jokes about the hammocks have brought them somewhat into disfavor. For this season at least there are comparatively no social gatherings, and so the dear creature is left almost entirely to her own devices for spending her time. She manages, however, to make the time pass somehow, even if she does nothing more than to sit by the window with folded hands and watch her fellow-citizens labor. Novels are of interest, but one cannot read all of the time. Afternoon naps are an agreeable feature of the hot summer days, but neither can one sleep all the time. To dress is an aggravation and again the summer heat interferes in that pastime which so many summer girls are said to enjoy. In many homes the family get along with as little household work as possible, and so she is not called upon to assist there. Really the summer girl is in a deplorable state. Two years ago she would have passed her days from early morn till the last faint rays of the setting sun rendered it simply impossible for her to see, playing tennis. She did not entirely dislike baseball and many an afternoon she spent watching the blues. Now that is gone to keep company with the thirteen puzzle progressive euchre and even quoits or croquet, as it is called. She may possibly get an invitation to a buckaroo ride, but that has lost its early charm. A drive and country supper has its disagreeable as well as its agreeable features. To take it at a roomy summer girl who stays in town has a hard time of it, and what is worse there seems to be no way for her to have life pass any differently.

Mrs. Geavin, of Evansville, who has been visiting her parents, Mrs. William J. Brown, on North Pennsylvania street, returned home yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richards went to Lafayette yesterday to spend a day with Mrs. Richards' mother before going East to remain several weeks. Mrs. Charles B. Pfaff, of Chicago, who has been the guest of relatives and friends here and of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woodland at Acton for a few weeks, returned home yesterday. The Hoosier Pleasure Club had a pleasant time Tuesday with a trolley drive to Millersville, where an elegant supper was prepared for them. The party consisted of Misses Cora and Anna Beatty, Jessie Conlin, Mattie Waugh and Carrie and Grace Powell; Messrs. Will Ellis, Lou McDade, Charles Meikel, Edward Elliott, Will Yates and Paul Seibird. Miss Alice Croley, of New York, daughter of Jenny June, and Miss Cunningham, of Richmond, Ind., are in the city visiting their cousin, Mrs. L. E. Mayr, 1070 North Tennessee street. Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Recker have returned from their wedding trip through the East and are at home at No. 482 North Meridian street with Mr. and Mrs. James N. Rodgers. Gen. John T. Miss Mary Potter, of Glendale, O., who has been visiting her brother, Dr. Potter, at 504 North New Jersey street, has gone with Miss Emily Meigs, to Lafayette. Miss Meigs has been visiting the family of her uncle, Mr. C. D. Meigs, of North Pennsylvania street. Prof. J. S. Black and wife are the guests of Mrs. Charlotte J. Holman at her country house in Massachusetts, where they have been joined by their son, Mr. Charles Holman Black, who arrived last week from Europe in company with Mr. Frank Holman. A "buckboard party" rode to Millersville Thursday evening and enjoyed a bountiful dinner, prepared for them there, returning by late moonlight. The party consisted of Messrs. Peter Hicks, Benjamin Lowe and Kendall, and Messrs. Scholl, Butler, Lowe, Heckman and Hoskins. One of the pleasant society events the past week was the lawn fête given by Miss Lydia Jones, of the South Side. The lawn in front of the old Jose homestead was brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns. All sorts of outdoor games were indulged in. The hostess entertained her guests handsomely. A charming "daisy" picnic was given at Fairview Park by Miss Flossie Taggart, Thursday afternoon, to twenty-four of her young friends. The daisy lunch, at which each one, tied with green ribbon, with a bunch of daisies drawn through the bow, was a delightful innovation on the old style of serving refreshments. A clever woman who appreciated the general run of social affairs once declared that, as she could not afford to provide for her entertainments, she had to provide clever people instead. Mrs. May Wright Sewall, of Indianapolis, has the faculty of adorning her home with pretty and useful articles, and of gathering a number of clever and interesting people as well to her entertainments. Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Theodore L. Sewall, of Indianapolis, who are spending the summer at No. 67 Maple street, entertained a large and distinguished company of people Wednesday evening. There were present, from many distant lands, clever, original people, who are interested in learning, in art, in poetry and in all things good, all having ideas they are willing to share and embrace over. With so many interesting people it was easy for Mrs. Sewall to revive the lost art of conversation, a feat she accomplished with gracious modesty and inborn tact. During the evening Edmund Russell recited three poems, one of his own and one each by Bro. Harie and Swinburne. The present were: Count di Brazza, Comtesse di Brazza, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Judah of Memphis, Madames Fanny Zampino of Salazar, Italy, Sigrida Magnusson of Iceland, Edmund Burke, Julia F. Leavina, Laura S. Tidale, Edmund G. Sewall, Mary Newberry, and Mrs. E. C. Deane, of Philadelphia, Misses Susan B. Anthony, Widdyer of Australia, Esmeralda Cervantes of Spain, Annie Webb of Cord de Alcalá, Greece, and Mrs. Adelaide Johnson.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence K. Davis are visiting at the world's fair. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Frasier are spending the week with Simon Frasier. Prof. Th. Iden has gone to his home in Bethel, O., to stay a few weeks. Miss Nellie Brevoort, of Columbus, Ind., is the guest of the Misses Mary and Georgia Galven. Miss Beth Scott, of Carlyle, Ky., is visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. J. T. Layman. Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Towles have returned from a short visit with friends in Greenfield, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Lucius B. Humphrey, of Elmira, N. Y., will visit the family of Mr. Galven next week. Dr. and Mrs. Moore and daughters are spending the summer at their country home at the Shades of Death. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall and daughter, of Kendallville, Ind., are spending a few weeks with Mrs. Jennie Jeffries. Mrs. Orville Carven returned on Saturday from Nashville, where she was the guest of Mrs. Marshall Blackledge. On Wednesday afternoon a delightful reception was given by Miss Carrie Boyles in honor of her sister, Mrs. Kingsley. Mr. and Mrs. Carven are in Grand Rapids, Mich., visiting Mrs. Carven's sister, Mrs. Alfred Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlin left on Monday for Chicago, where they will remain some time before returning to their home in New York, N. Y. A very pleasant progressive hammock party was given on Tuesday evening at the home of Misses Mary and Georgia Galven. Unus and prizes were given to the two most skillful in tete-a-tete conversation. The following from Irvington returned last week from the Columbian exposition: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Johnson, Miss Blanche Wilson, Rev. E. L. Frazer and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Butler, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Kingsbury. A large number of Irvington young people are now partying in the shade of a midnight lunch on Friday night. The party was taken, picnic fashion, to a grove and eaten by the light of the midnight moon. The hour was one inspiring to hilarity and a delightful time enjoyed.
