

The New York Store.

[Established 1853.]

Good values in dress goods all the time—sometimes we get an extraordinary quality at a small price. Such goods never last long—the alert buyer never loses such an opportunity.

Two-toned Homespun, 38 inches wide, for 25c a yard. 40-inch Navy Blue Storm Serges, all wool, for 30c a yard—it's a repetition of the lot you may have heard of before—regular half-dollar quality.

PETTIS DRY GOODS CO. WILL BE MANOR TO-DAY.

[Concluded from First Page.]

Sergeant Barlow expects to return to Tippecanoe in a few days. He will organize a metropolitan police force in that city. Officer Corrigan expects to succeed Humane Officer Orloff, who has his eye on a Footbal captaincy for the coming winter.

THE NEW COUNCIL.

Republicans Only Have Sixteen of the Twenty-One Qualified Figures.

The return upon the ward councilman elections were footed up last night, and the result is even better than was anticipated last night.

First Ward. O. M. Murphy (R.) 1,316. C. C. Scholl (D.) 29. H. T. Young (P.) 49. Louis Weidman (S.) 23.

Second Ward. J. R. Allen (R.) 1,721. A. S. Sims (P.) 53. Allen's plurality 1,678.

Third Ward. A. A. Young (R.) 1,538. J. D. McKee (D.) 29. F. McWhirter (P.) 11. Young's plurality 1,509.

Fourth Ward. J. A. Puryear (R.) 1,896. M. G. Hornaday (D.) 730. T. M. Meyers (P.) 28. Puryear's plurality 1,878.

Fifth Ward. J. A. Costello (D.) 1,025. F. Scholl (D.) 29. John Doughton (P.) 19. Costello's plurality 1,006.

Sixth Ward. W. H. Cooper (R.) 1,362. Emil Feffer (D.) 688. George R. Kibbe (P.) 29. Cooper's plurality 1,274.

Seventh Ward. C. W. Schaeffer (R.) 1,096. G. M. McKee (D.) 29. M. Hilliker (P.) 24. Schaeffer's plurality 1,077.

Eighth Ward. Henry Magel (R.) 920. Emil C. Hassmann (D.) 870. Charles Hein (P.) 17. W. L. Faust (S.) 17. Magel's plurality 803.

Ninth Ward. J. H. Schmid (R.) 1,082. Simon Coy (D.) 878. John Terkey (P.) 20. Schmid's plurality 1,004.

Tenth Ward. George R. Colter (D.) 883. C. H. Black (P.) 12. S. M. Sawyer (P.) 12. Colter's plurality 871.

Eleventh Ward. P. J. Ryan (D.) 1,044. P. W. Sullivan (R.) 640. Albert Dixon (P.) 35. Ryan's plurality 1,009.

Twelfth Ward. William Hennessey (R.) 923. Gustave Roth (D.) 831. P. C. Carroll (P.) 10. J. J. Burkhardt (S.) 16. Hennessey's plurality 812.

Thirteenth Ward. Charles Koehring (R.) 942. J. F. Ross (D.) 815. George C. Sullivan (P.) 15. F. Hoeder (S.) 15. Koehring's plurality 827.

Fourteenth Ward. William Kaiser (R.) 918. John Baumhauer (D.) 812. S. D. Morrison (P.) 12. Alexander Schaefer (S.) 42. Kaiser's plurality 806.

Fifteenth Ward. D. W. O'Brien (D.) 1,138. W. S. Sourbeer (R.) 673. George W. Baker (P.) 16. O'Brien's plurality 1,022.

The newly-elected Council will hold its first meeting to-night, when they will assemble in the Council chamber and effect an organization. Without a thorough canvass of the members, it now seems that either Archibald Young or William H. Cooper will be elected chairman of the new Council.

SHOWED WITH TELEGRAMS.

Lively Interest in the Contest All Over the State.

The newly-elected Mayor was showered with congratulations yesterday, and the friends of the city were very kind to Mrs. Denny.

She received many kind letters, and the atmosphere of the pretty Denny home on North Pennsylvania street was redolent with the odor of roses last night.

A great many of the friends of the family called to congratulate Mr. Denny on his success. It only requires a glance at the telegrams piled upon Mr. Denny's table last night to understand what had been the interest of the contest.

The rest of the State and Indianapolis citizens away from home. Some of them follow:

Rushville: Accept my hearty congratulations over your triumphant election as Mayor of Indianapolis.—John K. Gowdy.

Chicago: I cordially congratulate you; good luck to you.—Fairbanks.

Marion: Please accept my hearty congratulations. You have set the pace for all future elections. Now for 10,000 majority for McKinley, and then the country will be safe from much Democratic thieving.—E. H. Nebeker.

Union City: There is hope for Indiana; we Republicans will flourish.—J. S. deemed. Accept my congratulations.—W. H. Shockney. Ogden, U. T.: Mr. Shaffer joins me in his heartiest congratulations. P. J. Conoverville: congratulate you over your splendid victory.—J. H. Claypool. Jellico, Tenn.: Accept my sincerest congratulations. You made a great fight.—H. M. LaFollette.

Peru: You have my heartiest congratulations.—Robert J. Loveland. Lafayette: The Republicans of the Battle Ground county send you greeting. Your magnificent victory insures victory in Indiana in 1894, and is the forerunner of national victory in 1896. The Republican party stands for law and order and loyalty.

—Signed by sixty-five voters. Lafayette: Heartiest congratulations. —George F. Hines. Evansville: Allow me to congratulate you upon your great victory.—F. J. Schock.

Chicago: Congratulations extended. —Charles S. Denny. Chicago: Accept congratulations upon your victory.—J. C. Blackledge. Terre Haute: Accept congratulations; Indianapolis should feel proud.—W. H. Floyd.

Chicago: Just heard news; good. Yours in C. and R.—W. E. Morris. Warsaw: Congratulations on your glorious victory, harbinging of triumph to the nation.—James H. Henry.

Terre Haute: Congratulations; law and order all right now. Yours, joyfully.—R. Y. Hines. Madison: First gun of ninety-six; hearty congratulations; God bless you.—John W. Litch.

Evansville: Accept my sincere congratulations upon your success yesterday. —A. C. Hawkins. Spencer: Accept congratulations for successful leadership. Entire party here fully sympathize.—Calvin Fletcher.

Kokomo: In behalf of the Howard County Republican Club I congratulate you upon your splendid victory. We had assured that this is the beginning of Indiana redemption. Such a victory gives renewed energy to the commonwealth.—Charles A. Hays. Kokomo: Accept our congratulations on your glorious victory; all Republicans and good citizens join with us in rejoicing.—J. N. Loop, George H. Wood.

Chicago: You are a thoroughbred. Our sincerest congratulations. The gratitude of the entire State is due to you and the good people of Indianapolis.—Chas. W. Wetler and Hendel.

Chicago: Rising star to-day proclaims victory. Congratulations. —Silas A. Hays. Greencastle: Shake.—Silas A. Hays. Carmel: The result is hailed with delight by the friends here. Congratulations. —L. J. Patty and H. C. Herphey.

Chicago: All join in hearty congratulations to the splendid victory.—George A. Wheeler, Jr. Lafayette: Greeting and congratulations. You are doing a great service to the Republic of Indiana and the Nation.—Charles E. Wilson.

Lafayette: I congratulate you and all Indianapolis Republicans on your splendid victory. The Republican organization in this party can be trusted.—B. Wilson Smith.

WORDS OF PRAISE.

They Are Due to Chairman Smith and the Republican City Committee.

While the people are commenting on the splendid victory won by the Republicans, while it cannot be denied that the respectable people were largely responsible, yet there must be a large share of praise for Chairman Harry Smith and Secretary Joyce, of the city committee, and the entire committee. The Republicans were better organized than they have been in Indianapolis for ten years, and to this is largely due to the efforts of Chairman Smith and his assistants. Mr. Smith is every body's friend; it would be exceedingly difficult for any one to feel otherwise. Throughout the entire campaign he has worked with great zeal and industry, in season and out of season. He has always had a smile for everybody, and never forgot to be courteous and kind. Many a man who has had to do with the Republican organization remembers his cheerful "fellows." Always enthusiastic, he had the rare faculty of inspiring enthusiasm. His plan of dividing the precincts into blocks and having men keep exact tab on the sentiments of the blocks worked as well as it has. There were 1,000 men employed in this manner by the committee, and none of them were paid for their services. It was labor done with them. Secretary Joyce has made one of the most efficient secretaries the Republican committee has ever had.

Remarks Heard on the Streets.

"The gambling houses have been closed for repairs. Likewise the mouth of John Kerr and John Rockefeller."

"Ladies can now walk down Illinois street on the 'levee' without fear of being insulted. They will probably miss the impressive form of Buskirk at Tron's front door."

"How it will grind Catterson to see Travis and Weirick given an opportunity to make a speech."

"Wonder if Tom Taggart is still the biggest man in Indiana?"

"The people must be taken that nomination for Council that went begging in my ward."

"Told you so!"

"The Journal's cartoons have been corkers."

"The people must have forgotten about that $100,000 gift of Sullivan's."

"Now for the county ring!"

"The gamblers must go!"

"White got his even!"

"Don't let the people who contributed that $100,000 fund wish they had their money back!"

"Patsy" Norman, "Barney" McGettigan and "Doc" Luedtke composed a new song "Awording of the Blue."

"Did you ever hear of Democratic stay-home before?"

"Sullivan's the man that did it."

"Lots of Democrats hit the wrong bird."

"I don't like him."

"The gambling snake is scotched, but it won't be killed until we have the right kind of a snake to slay."

"Buskirk forgot to 'blow the newspapers out of water.'"

A Mistake as to Mr. Kinney.

There was a wrong done George Kinney, Democratic poll-book holder in the one-hundred-and-fourth precinct of the Fourteenth ward, in a article published in the Journal of yesterday morning. The error was due to an honest mistake. Kinney was not challenger, and consequently did not challenge the vote of Judson, who was undoubtedly entitled to a vote. The colored man, when he had the opportunity, the Journal reporter was standing, told "him" they had challenged him, thinking that it was the challenger that made the challenge. As a matter of fact, it now develops that the Republican challenger made the challenge. Kinney says that he has been guarded at the workhouse for three years past, and in the time has not been engaged in any game of chance.

What Mr. Sullivan Will Do.

Mayor Sullivan will form a law partnership with Messrs. Ayres and Jones, under the firm name of Sullivan, Ayres & Jones.

THE NEWS ELSEWHERE.

Comment at the National Capital—Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—A great deal more interest was taken by people in Washington in the election held in Indianapolis, yesterday, than has been shown in any other municipal election in many years. Representative Bynum and some other Hoosier Democrats here created the impression that it was to be a test of the popularity of ex-President Harrison. They reported around the Capitol, a few days ago, that General Harrison was taking a personal interest in the campaign, and was directing the issues. They observed that if "Sullivan is re-elected you will hear no more of Harrison," and that "he will be a duck in 1896." So the issues took on somewhat of a national interest. Whether there was, or was not, any truth in the statements, to-day Republicans in both branches of Congress made many sarcastic comments to the Indiana Democrats upon the way the Democrats returned to power in Indianapolis. Everybody in Washington who is "up in politics" has heard of the Hoosier "stick-set" man who, in the excitement of the day, had a personal interest in Mayor Sullivan and Sim Coy by going home to speak and vote for them. In this connection there has been much discussion around the Capitol as to the refusal to endorse Mr. Bynum's position. In this connection there has been much discussion around the Capitol as to the refusal to endorse Mr. Bynum's position. In this connection there has been much discussion around the Capitol as to the refusal to endorse Mr. Bynum's position.

Indiana Towns Are Pleased.

Specials to the Indianapolis Journal.

NOBLESVILLE, Oct. 11.—The news of the splendid Republican victory achieved at the polls in the city of Indianapolis yesterday was received here in advance of the election. The morning of the Journal, but the eagerness of Calvin Fletcher, who was sought for the purpose of verifying the report and learning the full extent of the victory would have been no greater had the citizens of this city had a voice in the election, and when the full scope of the result of the election dawned, many a citizen's words were heard and answered from every quarter. It is regarded as the triumph of the Hoosier Democracy, and the Republicans extend greeting to their friends in the capital city.

MARTINSVILLE, Oct. 11.—Never before has this community taken such an interest in Indianapolis politics as it did in yesterday's election. People, regardless of politics, have looked forward to its result with eagerness. It is to be shown on the evening of Monday night, and Indianapolis papers were bought as readily this morning as little red balloons on circus day. The prevailing sentiment here was in favor of the election. The result was a surprise to every hand last night, and Indianapolis papers were bought as readily this morning as little red balloons on circus day.

DELPHI, Oct. 11.—The result of the election in Indianapolis caused special rejoicing in this city, where John P. Frenzel, a few weeks ago, worked a deal by which he got control of $80,000 of Carroll county's bonds. He had secured the bonds for $100,000 and bearing 6 per cent. semi-annual interest. Carroll will follow next year by the same method. He had secured the bonds for $100,000 and bearing 6 per cent. semi-annual interest. Carroll will follow next year by the same method.

The Finest Black Lace.

Philadelphia Times.

The finest black lace known to manufacturers is black Chantilly. It is usually not quite as expensive as the white Duchesse lace, but it costs from $25 to $35 a yard. Within recent years black Chantilly has been so successfully imitated that it is difficult to tell the difference between the genuine and the imitation. The genuine is made by hand, and the imitation is made by machinery. The genuine is made by hand, and the imitation is made by machinery.

BURNED BY WHITE CAPS.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 11.—Biman & Anderson, gin, with seventy-five bales of cotton, machinery, etc., was burned last night near Courtland. The total loss was $100,000. The cause of the fire is not known. The cause of the fire is not known.

McCartain's Shortage Growing.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 11.—Ex-treasurer of the Oklahoma Territory, J. H. McCartain, is reported to be short of money. He is reported to be short of money. He is reported to be short of money.

Still a Mystery.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 11.—The grand jury of Conway county, after an exhaustive investigation of the case to-day, discharged the body of the man who was shot by Hon. John M. Clayton is as deep a mystery as before. The informer and chief witness in the case, Frank M. Clayton, alias Landers, who was held in ball, and against whom was pending a charge of perjury, was also discharged.

No New Cases of Cholera.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Health Officer Jenkins issued the following bulletin at 10 o'clock this evening: "There are no new cases of cholera reported from any of the Russian possessions. There have been reported two cases, and continue in good health. The reports of cholera in the steamer 'Arago' have been finished. The steamer 'Arago' has been finished. The steamer 'Arago' has been finished."

Commercial Travelers' Home.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Binghamton has secured the site for the National Commercial Travelers' Home. The selection of the site means the erection of a $300,000 building here during the coming year. The building will be a national institution here which will make Binghamton the Mecca for all worn-out knights of the grip.

Hard Lines.

Harper's Bazar.

"Jones has just returned from the fair. He's a little better, but he's still a little better. He's a little better, but he's still a little better. He's a little better, but he's still a little better."

A Job at Some Editorial Brethren.

Atlanta Constitution (Dem.)

It is not probable that the patronage press regard Mr. Cleveland as the greatest man that ever lived, but he has offices to let, and they are irresistibly led to look to his hand for a share of them, or some of their connections happy with an office.

Couldn't Throw Stones.

Chicago Record.

Mrs. D. C.—You can assure yourself my husband doesn't revile our sex with talking too much.

Mrs. N. G.—Why not?

Mrs. D. C.—He's a member of the Senate.

English as It is Understood.

Detroit Free Press.

"I insist upon your leaving the house."

"Certainly," he replied blandly; "I have no intention of taking it with me."

Tricked to Shoot an Attorney.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Oct. 11.—While a case was on trial yesterday afternoon before Justice Hurst a pistol shot was fired at Alexander Flannigan, one of the attorneys in the case. When the commotion had

A MOTHER'S AFFIDAVIT.

Frank Moore and Tom Bristow Arrested for the Young Murder.

The Mother of Moore Makes the Starting Charges Against the Men—Solving the Mystery.

About 11 o'clock, last night, two men were brought to the county jail and locked up. They were Frank Moore, alias Reed, and Tom Bristow, both aged about twenty-two years old. In the arrest of Reed and Bristow it is believed that the mystery of the "thick-set" man who figured prominently in the murder of John Young has been fully cleared up. Reed and Bristow were arrested last night by Marshal Mahohn of West Indianapolis, and Constable Charles Sorters, of this city. The arrests were made on information furnished by the mother of Reed, whom it is thought will produce enough evidence to convict her son. In an affidavit sworn out in Justice Daniels's court, yesterday afternoon, she charges the prisoner with the murder of John Young, which occurred on the night of April 17, in a room of a dilapidated structure, No. 412 West Washington street. It will be remembered that a few days ago Moore was fined by Justice Daniels for assault and battery on his mother, Mrs. Sarah Moore. The latter lives just out of the corporation limits of West Indianapolis, but at the time of the Young murder resided in town. Her son lived at home, and with them Tom Bristow boarded occasionally. Both men were known to the officers who arrested them as being of unsavory character.

From the day of the Young murder these men were suspected by the officers of being the guilty men, and a number of slight and unguarded statements made by Moore's mother, a month or two after the affair, strengthened the belief. Two days ago, when Mrs. Moore became involved in trouble with her son, she named him to her mother, and she told her what she knew about him. This assertion reaching the ears of Marshal Mahohn and Constable Sorters, they attempted to extort from her something further in the direct line of evidence. The old lady was obtuse and refused to speak until yesterday, when she announced that she was ready to make a statement. As her reason for doing so, she said that she was afraid of her life at the hands of her son Frank. In a rear room of Justice Daniels's office, at 3 o'clock yesterday, Mrs. Moore related facts and circumstances that undoubtedly form a convincing chain of guilt against the prisoners. Her story, in substance, is as follows:

On the night of the Young murder her son, Frank Moore, was absent from home until about 2 o'clock in the morning. At that time she ordered her mother-in-law, Mrs. Bristow, to go to her room and get her clothing and covered with blood. He was terribly agitated, and his mother, in a fright, exclaimed: "My God, Frank, what is the matter with you?"

Tom Bristow got into trouble with a fellow on West Washington street over a woman named Oliver, and—well, that's all. Without further explanation the young man and his sister came here to see me to-night till I'm not at home. He then retired to bed and an hour later he came to my room. Mrs. Moore, occupying an adjoining chamber, was awake when she heard the door open, and she threw herself on the bed at the side of Moore. He was silent a moment, and then, giving a slight shake to rouse him, hoarsely exclaimed: "My God, Frank, what is the matter with you?"

Tom Bristow got into trouble with a fellow on West Washington street over a woman named Oliver, and—well, that's all. Without further explanation the young man and his sister came here to see me to-night till I'm not at home. He then retired to bed and an hour later he came to my room. Mrs. Moore, occupying an adjoining chamber, was awake when she heard the door open, and she threw herself on the bed at the side of Moore. He was silent a moment, and then, giving a slight shake to rouse him, hoarsely exclaimed: "My God, Frank, what is the matter with you?"

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who finally strengthened the suspicions against them to escape. For the past two months they have been in the hands of the police. Ben Wilson, corner of Riser and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, Moore has been in the hands of the police.

After an hour or two Moore and Bristow started away, the former informing his mother that he was going to the city. They were gone two weeks, when they both returned. Moore again taking up his life of dissipation and idleness. Since their return the officers who arrested them yesterday have kept a close watch on Moore and Bristow. The officers who