

BLUNDER SOMEWHERE

INDIANAPOLIS ROBBED OF A GAME AT MILWAUKEE YESTERDAY.

The Hoosiers Supposed They Had Won by a Score of 7 to 6, and Left the Grounds for Their Hotel.

CROWD THOUGHT LIKEWISE

BUT EMPIRE JEVNE GAVE THE GAME TO THE BREWERS, 9 TO 0.

Claiming He Had Called the Last Batter Safe at First Instead of Out-Protest Entered by Watkins.

Milwaukee, 9-Indianapolis, 0. St. Paul, 10-Detroit, 10. Kansas City-Columbus, 8-3. Kansas City-Columbus, 8-3.

To-Day's Western League Games. Indianapolis at Milwaukee. Columbus at Kansas City. Detroit at St. Paul.

Table with columns: Club, Played, Won, Lost, P.C. C.

A PROTESTED GAME.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 13.—In the ninth inning to-day the Indianapolis team left the field thinking that umpire Jevne had called Spear out at first and failed, and Tweed had followed with the run which tied the score.

The way the trouble came was as follows: When the Milwaukee went to bat in the ninth the score stood 7 to 4 against them. Nicol went out on a fly to McCarthy and Weaver did likewise on a fly to Hogan. Then Harmon hit for two bases, and Tweed followed with a single. Stafford scored both with a two-base hit to left. Schiebeck made an error on Taylor's grounder and Wattner was given a base on balls. Then Spear hit to Roat. Roat threw to second to get Weister, but failed. Stewart threw to Moiz to get Spear at first and failed, and Stafford followed with the run that tied. In giving his decision on Spear at first Indianapolis understood Jevne to say that Spear was out. But this seems to be a mistake. Jevne was seen after the game and he stated that he had called Spear safe and could not understand why Indianapolis left the field.

Up to the sixth inning the score was tied. In the sixth inning, however, the champions began to draw away and they scored three on a home run by McCarthy, singles by Harmon and Hogan and a sacrifice by Buckley. A triple by Hogreiver and a single by Roat scored another in the seventh, and the game then went on until the ninth, when the misunderstanding came. Score:

Table with columns: Club, A. B. R. H. O. A. E.

Indianapolis. A. B. R. H. O. A. E. Hogreiver, cf., 5 0 1 1 3 0 0 0. Roat, ss., 4 0 1 1 2 2 0 0. McCarthy, lf., 3 2 3 4 0 0 0 0.

Score by innings: Milwaukee, 1 0 0 1 0 0 1-7. Indianapolis, 0 0 1 1 1 3 1 0-7.

Learned Runs—Milwaukee, 3; Indianapolis, 4. Earned Runs—Milwaukee, 1; Indianapolis, 4.

Home Runs—Stewart, Monroe, McCarthy. Bases on Balls—Off Retter, 1; off Monroe, 2.

Struck Out—By Retter, 4; by Monroe, 3. Double Play—Stewart to Moiz.

Time of Game—Two hours. A dispatch from Manager Watkins, received by the Journal last night, says the game was won by the champions 7 to 6. After the Indianapolis team had left the grounds Captain Twitchell claimed the game on the ground that only two men had been put out in the last inning; that Spear had been declared safe at first, instead of out, as the Indianapolis team understood the umpire's ruling; and that, with Spear safe at first, Stafford had tied the score when he crossed the plate. Most of the spectators, as well as the Indianapolis players, understood the umpire to declare Spear out, for they at once began to leave the grounds. After the crowd had gone home and Manager Watkins and his men had reached their hotel the umpire gave the game to Milwaukee by 9 to 0, basing his decision on the claim that the Hoosiers had marched off the ground before the conclusion of the game. This was after Twitchell had made the claim that Spear was safe. Manager Watkins says he will protest the game.

Rain at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 13.—The Kansas City-Columbus game was postponed on account of rain.

Field's Curves Knocked Straight.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 13.—The Saints put a crimp in Field's pitching record to-day, hitting him all over the lot. Mullane pitched a masterly game and received pitched support, he making the only error for the locals.

Awarded Highest Honors—World's Fair, DR. CREAM BAKING POWDER.

Most Perfect Made. A pure Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant. 40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

PLAYED LIKE BABIES

COLTS DELAYED THE GAME, HOPING TO HAVE IT CALLED.

But the Umpire Punished Them by Giving Boston the Victory 9 to 0. Ten-and-a-Half-Innings Contest.

Boston, 9-Chicago, 0. Louisville, 5-Brooklyn, 4. Cleveland, 14-Philadelphia, 4.

To-Day's National League Games.

New York at Cleveland. Baltimore at Chicago. Philadelphia at St. Louis. Boston at Pittsburgh. Brooklyn at Cincinnati. Washington at St. Louis.

Standing of the Clubs.

Table with columns: Club, Played, Won, Lost, P.C. C.

And Umpire Keefe Gave Boston the Game, Which Was Tied in the Tenth.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Umpire Keefe gave Boston to-day's game by a score of 9 to 0. Each side had scored four runs in ten innings and had tied the score at the end of the tenth. The umpire, however, ruled that the game should be called at the end of the tenth inning because of darkness. The Sporting Life had the matter in full last week.

Edwards McFarland was put on the bench without pay for fifteen minutes for not coming out to catch all the games. Von Ahe also refused him, his mismanagement is having more trouble than ever in securing the best players.

CHANCE FOR HIS NECK.

(Concluded from First Page.) said it was a stroke of providence that Jackson was unable to let go his grip on Pearl's neck.

With great detail he described the scene in Heider's restaurant when Scott Jackson said he unfolded. Post and Tweed read the account of the horrible murder at Fort Totten.

"And he says he became panic-stricken," remarked Lockhart. "That man-pane-stricken—that man-pane-stricken through the trial as immovable as the rock of Gibraltar!"

"Did Jackson ever ask Walling what had been the result of the trial?" inquired the speaker. "After the reading of the Post in the restaurant a more remarkable thing happened. It will prove as damaging as the ring in the Durrant case, which the murderer took from the suffering finger of Blanche among."

Scott Jackson says he went to the Suspension bridge and threw the dead girl's clothes into the river. But it is not clear from his story whether he threw the clothes into the river at the same time. But it is clear that Colonel Lockhart dropped into a chair near Scott Jackson, and in this position continued his speech. He then declared that he was a failure to get rid of the position.

"Can't you see the hand of providence in this case?" he exclaimed as he sprang to his feet again. "Jackson would better have told this jury," said Lockhart, regarding Jackson's story on the stand; "he would better have said that he was a man who had been taken care of by Pearl Bryan's condition; that he secured some one to relieve her; that she had been a good mother and that she died of a disease."

Colonel Lockhart at this point spoke of circumstantial evidence as it appeared in this case and as an illustration of how such evidence had figured before he called attention to the recent case of Durrant in San Francisco and the hanging of or the hanging of Dr. Parkman by Professor Webster.

In both cases there had been convictions. In the last-mentioned case, which was from the evidence of the coroner's jury, the peculiar features of one of the most remarkable in criminal annals, there was a far less amount of evidence than in the case of the murder of Thomas Crawford. There had been nothing left of the body having been consumed by fire. The strongest evidence of guilt was that Dr. Parkman had been seen in the apartment building where Professor Webster's apartment was and the finding of a promissory note for $100,000 in the name of Dr. Webster, was, however, duly convicted and hanged.

In both the Parkman and Durrant cases the only persons who knew all the facts of the murders were the persons accused themselves, as was the case with Scott Jackson. Shortly after 4 o'clock jury Ensweller fell asleep, for only a moment," said Lockhart, "that I shall finish before 5 o'clock. I want to say that under the instructions of this court and all the evidence and circumstances the defense of all is one that does stand on the same ground as the case of the 'out'." said Colonel Lockhart.

"I am not going to discuss the Rose McFarland story, because Scott Jackson himself contradicted her in several places. A good alibi must cover every possible moment at which this murder was committed."

"Colonel Crawford told us in his speech that an old man rode the stand, and said the man who rode the stand, although in dire distress, was willing to give the man who rode the stand the name of William R. Trusty saw with the long gray whiskers and the umbrella that fell Friday night."

"As for George H. Jackson, the prosecution does not need his testimony. Burning the evidence of the Commonwealth, you can have no doubt about the identity of the victim of the murder. Scott Jackson is the only man who had the motive to murder the poor girl. There was a motive and there was the opportunity. Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

Mrs. Jackson Returns to Greencastle.

SPECIAL TO THE INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL. GREENCASTLE, Ind., May 13.—Mrs. Dr. Post and Scott Jackson's mother arrived here to-day from Newberry, where they have been attending the trial. The two women left on the first train this afternoon after Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

PLAYED LIKE BABIES

COLTS DELAYED THE GAME, HOPING TO HAVE IT CALLED.

But the Umpire Punished Them by Giving Boston the Victory 9 to 0. Ten-and-a-Half-Innings Contest.

Boston, 9-Chicago, 0. Louisville, 5-Brooklyn, 4. Cleveland, 14-Philadelphia, 4.

To-Day's National League Games.

New York at Cleveland. Baltimore at Chicago. Philadelphia at St. Louis. Boston at Pittsburgh. Brooklyn at Cincinnati. Washington at St. Louis.

Standing of the Clubs.

Table with columns: Club, Played, Won, Lost, P.C. C.

And Umpire Keefe Gave Boston the Game, Which Was Tied in the Tenth.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Umpire Keefe gave Boston to-day's game by a score of 9 to 0. Each side had scored four runs in ten innings and had tied the score at the end of the tenth. The umpire, however, ruled that the game should be called at the end of the tenth inning because of darkness. The Sporting Life had the matter in full last week.

Edwards McFarland was put on the bench without pay for fifteen minutes for not coming out to catch all the games. Von Ahe also refused him, his mismanagement is having more trouble than ever in securing the best players.

CHANCE FOR HIS NECK.

(Concluded from First Page.) said it was a stroke of providence that Jackson was unable to let go his grip on Pearl's neck.

With great detail he described the scene in Heider's restaurant when Scott Jackson said he unfolded. Post and Tweed read the account of the horrible murder at Fort Totten.

"And he says he became panic-stricken," remarked Lockhart. "That man-pane-stricken—that man-pane-stricken through the trial as immovable as the rock of Gibraltar!"

"Did Jackson ever ask Walling what had been the result of the trial?" inquired the speaker. "After the reading of the Post in the restaurant a more remarkable thing happened. It will prove as damaging as the ring in the Durrant case, which the murderer took from the suffering finger of Blanche among."

Scott Jackson says he went to the Suspension bridge and threw the dead girl's clothes into the river. But it is not clear from his story whether he threw the clothes into the river at the same time. But it is clear that Colonel Lockhart dropped into a chair near Scott Jackson, and in this position continued his speech. He then declared that he was a failure to get rid of the position.

"Can't you see the hand of providence in this case?" he exclaimed as he sprang to his feet again. "Jackson would better have told this jury," said Lockhart, regarding Jackson's story on the stand; "he would better have said that he was a man who had been taken care of by Pearl Bryan's condition; that he secured some one to relieve her; that she had been a good mother and that she died of a disease."

Colonel Lockhart at this point spoke of circumstantial evidence as it appeared in this case and as an illustration of how such evidence had figured before he called attention to the recent case of Durrant in San Francisco and the hanging of or the hanging of Dr. Parkman by Professor Webster.

In both cases there had been convictions. In the last-mentioned case, which was from the evidence of the coroner's jury, the peculiar features of one of the most remarkable in criminal annals, there was a far less amount of evidence than in the case of the murder of Thomas Crawford. There had been nothing left of the body having been consumed by fire. The strongest evidence of guilt was that Dr. Parkman had been seen in the apartment building where Professor Webster's apartment was and the finding of a promissory note for $100,000 in the name of Dr. Webster, was, however, duly convicted and hanged.

In both the Parkman and Durrant cases the only persons who knew all the facts of the murders were the persons accused themselves, as was the case with Scott Jackson. Shortly after 4 o'clock jury Ensweller fell asleep, for only a moment," said Lockhart, "that I shall finish before 5 o'clock. I want to say that under the instructions of this court and all the evidence and circumstances the defense of all is one that does stand on the same ground as the case of the 'out'." said Colonel Lockhart.

"I am not going to discuss the Rose McFarland story, because Scott Jackson himself contradicted her in several places. A good alibi must cover every possible moment at which this murder was committed."

"Colonel Crawford told us in his speech that an old man rode the stand, and said the man who rode the stand, although in dire distress, was willing to give the man who rode the stand the name of William R. Trusty saw with the long gray whiskers and the umbrella that fell Friday night."

"As for George H. Jackson, the prosecution does not need his testimony. Burning the evidence of the Commonwealth, you can have no doubt about the identity of the victim of the murder. Scott Jackson is the only man who had the motive to murder the poor girl. There was a motive and there was the opportunity. Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

Mrs. Jackson Returns to Greencastle.

SPECIAL TO THE INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL. GREENCASTLE, Ind., May 13.—Mrs. Dr. Post and Scott Jackson's mother arrived here to-day from Newberry, where they have been attending the trial. The two women left on the first train this afternoon after Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

PLAYED LIKE BABIES

COLTS DELAYED THE GAME, HOPING TO HAVE IT CALLED.

But the Umpire Punished Them by Giving Boston the Victory 9 to 0. Ten-and-a-Half-Innings Contest.

Boston, 9-Chicago, 0. Louisville, 5-Brooklyn, 4. Cleveland, 14-Philadelphia, 4.

To-Day's National League Games.

New York at Cleveland. Baltimore at Chicago. Philadelphia at St. Louis. Boston at Pittsburgh. Brooklyn at Cincinnati. Washington at St. Louis.

Standing of the Clubs.

Table with columns: Club, Played, Won, Lost, P.C. C.

And Umpire Keefe Gave Boston the Game, Which Was Tied in the Tenth.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Umpire Keefe gave Boston to-day's game by a score of 9 to 0. Each side had scored four runs in ten innings and had tied the score at the end of the tenth. The umpire, however, ruled that the game should be called at the end of the tenth inning because of darkness. The Sporting Life had the matter in full last week.

Edwards McFarland was put on the bench without pay for fifteen minutes for not coming out to catch all the games. Von Ahe also refused him, his mismanagement is having more trouble than ever in securing the best players.

CHANCE FOR HIS NECK.

(Concluded from First Page.) said it was a stroke of providence that Jackson was unable to let go his grip on Pearl's neck.

With great detail he described the scene in Heider's restaurant when Scott Jackson said he unfolded. Post and Tweed read the account of the horrible murder at Fort Totten.

"And he says he became panic-stricken," remarked Lockhart. "That man-pane-stricken—that man-pane-stricken through the trial as immovable as the rock of Gibraltar!"

"Did Jackson ever ask Walling what had been the result of the trial?" inquired the speaker. "After the reading of the Post in the restaurant a more remarkable thing happened. It will prove as damaging as the ring in the Durrant case, which the murderer took from the suffering finger of Blanche among."

Scott Jackson says he went to the Suspension bridge and threw the dead girl's clothes into the river. But it is not clear from his story whether he threw the clothes into the river at the same time. But it is clear that Colonel Lockhart dropped into a chair near Scott Jackson, and in this position continued his speech. He then declared that he was a failure to get rid of the position.

"Can't you see the hand of providence in this case?" he exclaimed as he sprang to his feet again. "Jackson would better have told this jury," said Lockhart, regarding Jackson's story on the stand; "he would better have said that he was a man who had been taken care of by Pearl Bryan's condition; that he secured some one to relieve her; that she had been a good mother and that she died of a disease."

Colonel Lockhart at this point spoke of circumstantial evidence as it appeared in this case and as an illustration of how such evidence had figured before he called attention to the recent case of Durrant in San Francisco and the hanging of or the hanging of Dr. Parkman by Professor Webster.

In both cases there had been convictions. In the last-mentioned case, which was from the evidence of the coroner's jury, the peculiar features of one of the most remarkable in criminal annals, there was a far less amount of evidence than in the case of the murder of Thomas Crawford. There had been nothing left of the body having been consumed by fire. The strongest evidence of guilt was that Dr. Parkman had been seen in the apartment building where Professor Webster's apartment was and the finding of a promissory note for $100,000 in the name of Dr. Webster, was, however, duly convicted and hanged.

In both the Parkman and Durrant cases the only persons who knew all the facts of the murders were the persons accused themselves, as was the case with Scott Jackson. Shortly after 4 o'clock jury Ensweller fell asleep, for only a moment," said Lockhart, "that I shall finish before 5 o'clock. I want to say that under the instructions of this court and all the evidence and circumstances the defense of all is one that does stand on the same ground as the case of the 'out'." said Colonel Lockhart.

"I am not going to discuss the Rose McFarland story, because Scott Jackson himself contradicted her in several places. A good alibi must cover every possible moment at which this murder was committed."

"Colonel Crawford told us in his speech that an old man rode the stand, and said the man who rode the stand, although in dire distress, was willing to give the man who rode the stand the name of William R. Trusty saw with the long gray whiskers and the umbrella that fell Friday night."

"As for George H. Jackson, the prosecution does not need his testimony. Burning the evidence of the Commonwealth, you can have no doubt about the identity of the victim of the murder. Scott Jackson is the only man who had the motive to murder the poor girl. There was a motive and there was the opportunity. Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

Mrs. Jackson Returns to Greencastle.

SPECIAL TO THE INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL. GREENCASTLE, Ind., May 13.—Mrs. Dr. Post and Scott Jackson's mother arrived here to-day from Newberry, where they have been attending the trial. The two women left on the first train this afternoon after Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

PLAYED LIKE BABIES

COLTS DELAYED THE GAME, HOPING TO HAVE IT CALLED.

But the Umpire Punished Them by Giving Boston the Victory 9 to 0. Ten-and-a-Half-Innings Contest.

Boston, 9-Chicago, 0. Louisville, 5-Brooklyn, 4. Cleveland, 14-Philadelphia, 4.

To-Day's National League Games.

New York at Cleveland. Baltimore at Chicago. Philadelphia at St. Louis. Boston at Pittsburgh. Brooklyn at Cincinnati. Washington at St. Louis.

Standing of the Clubs.

Table with columns: Club, Played, Won, Lost, P.C. C.

And Umpire Keefe Gave Boston the Game, Which Was Tied in the Tenth.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Umpire Keefe gave Boston to-day's game by a score of 9 to 0. Each side had scored four runs in ten innings and had tied the score at the end of the tenth. The umpire, however, ruled that the game should be called at the end of the tenth inning because of darkness. The Sporting Life had the matter in full last week.

Edwards McFarland was put on the bench without pay for fifteen minutes for not coming out to catch all the games. Von Ahe also refused him, his mismanagement is having more trouble than ever in securing the best players.

CHANCE FOR HIS NECK.

(Concluded from First Page.) said it was a stroke of providence that Jackson was unable to let go his grip on Pearl's neck.

With great detail he described the scene in Heider's restaurant when Scott Jackson said he unfolded. Post and Tweed read the account of the horrible murder at Fort Totten.

"And he says he became panic-stricken," remarked Lockhart. "That man-pane-stricken—that man-pane-stricken through the trial as immovable as the rock of Gibraltar!"

"Did Jackson ever ask Walling what had been the result of the trial?" inquired the speaker. "After the reading of the Post in the restaurant a more remarkable thing happened. It will prove as damaging as the ring in the Durrant case, which the murderer took from the suffering finger of Blanche among."

Scott Jackson says he went to the Suspension bridge and threw the dead girl's clothes into the river. But it is not clear from his story whether he threw the clothes into the river at the same time. But it is clear that Colonel Lockhart dropped into a chair near Scott Jackson, and in this position continued his speech. He then declared that he was a failure to get rid of the position.

"Can't you see the hand of providence in this case?" he exclaimed as he sprang to his feet again. "Jackson would better have told this jury," said Lockhart, regarding Jackson's story on the stand; "he would better have said that he was a man who had been taken care of by Pearl Bryan's condition; that he secured some one to relieve her; that she had been a good mother and that she died of a disease."

Colonel Lockhart at this point spoke of circumstantial evidence as it appeared in this case and as an illustration of how such evidence had figured before he called attention to the recent case of Durrant in San Francisco and the hanging of or the hanging of Dr. Parkman by Professor Webster.

In both cases there had been convictions. In the last-mentioned case, which was from the evidence of the coroner's jury, the peculiar features of one of the most remarkable in criminal annals, there was a far less amount of evidence than in the case of the murder of Thomas Crawford. There had been nothing left of the body having been consumed by fire. The strongest evidence of guilt was that Dr. Parkman had been seen in the apartment building where Professor Webster's apartment was and the finding of a promissory note for $100,000 in the name of Dr. Webster, was, however, duly convicted and hanged.

In both the Parkman and Durrant cases the only persons who knew all the facts of the murders were the persons accused themselves, as was the case with Scott Jackson. Shortly after 4 o'clock jury Ensweller fell asleep, for only a moment," said Lockhart, "that I shall finish before 5 o'clock. I want to say that under the instructions of this court and all the evidence and circumstances the defense of all is one that does stand on the same ground as the case of the 'out'." said Colonel Lockhart.

"I am not going to discuss the Rose McFarland story, because Scott Jackson himself contradicted her in several places. A good alibi must cover every possible moment at which this murder was committed."

"Colonel Crawford told us in his speech that an old man rode the stand, and said the man who rode the stand, although in dire distress, was willing to give the man who rode the stand the name of William R. Trusty saw with the long gray whiskers and the umbrella that fell Friday night."

"As for George H. Jackson, the prosecution does not need his testimony. Burning the evidence of the Commonwealth, you can have no doubt about the identity of the victim of the murder. Scott Jackson is the only man who had the motive to murder the poor girl. There was a motive and there was the opportunity. Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

Mrs. Jackson Returns to Greencastle.

SPECIAL TO THE INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL. GREENCASTLE, Ind., May 13.—Mrs. Dr. Post and Scott Jackson's mother arrived here to-day from Newberry, where they have been attending the trial. The two women left on the first train this afternoon after Colonel Crawford finished for the defense. The strain has been so severe on Mrs. Jackson that it was decided best for her to return home before the verdict was rendered. This city was all excited to-day over the closing scenes of the Jackson trial. The witnesses of the case, the great trial in which so many people of this little city have been interested for so long, almost a suspension of business while people discuss the probable verdict. Every one expects the death penalty for Jackson. Arrangements have been made to get the verdict here as soon as it is rendered."

THE PEOPLE ARE THE GAINERS BY THE Trustee Sale!

Almost the entire Clothing business of this city and surrounding country is being absorbed by this great store during the Trustee Sale. Without a doubt the people of this State are now availing themselves of the opportunity to buy good, reliable clothing 35 to 50 per cent. cheaper than the same high grade of goods can be bought anywhere else in this country.

Read the Prices

Table listing various clothing items and their prices, such as 'The Model's $5 and $6 Suits sell during the Trustee Sale for $3.50'.

Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Underwear, Hosiery, Straw Hats, Soft and Stiff Hats, Hammocks, etc., cut 25 to 50 per cent. during the Trustee Sale.

LEW WALLACE, JR., Trustee.

Large advertisement for 'The Rivals' featuring a large, stylized title and text about the opera performance.

ENGLISH'S OPERA HOUSE

TUESDAY EVE, MAY 19, THE RIVALRY

The Advance Sale of Seats. Season Tickets Only.

SEATS NOW ON SALE

At Pembroke Arcade. PRICES—$5, $2.50, $1.50, according to location.

PARK

THIS AFTERNOON AND TO-NIGHT VAIDS SISTERS REFINED NOVELTY CO.

TO-MORROW

Sale for Guarantors Only, from 9 a. m. to 12 m. For the general public, all afternoon and Saturday.

EVERY KIND OF HUMOR FROM PIMPLES TO SCROFULA

Spedily cured by CUTICURA RESOLVENT, greatest of humors cures, assisted externally by warm baths with CUTICURA SOAP.

SAFE DEPOSIT VAULT

S. A. FLETCHER & CO.'S SAFE DEPOSIT VAULT. 30 East Washington Street.

Rambler Bicycles

WM. M. BIRD, JR. & CO., 29 East Market Street. JOHN S. TARKINGTON, Manager.