PACIFIC TIDAL WAVE

LATE NEWS FROM YOKOHAMA
 PLACES LOSS OF LIFE AT 50,000.

The Water Rose Eighty-Five Feet and Swept Inland Several Miles Along 200 Miles of Sea Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—The steamship Doric arrived from Yokohama to-night bringing news up to June 25. Estimates of the loss of life from the great tidal wave reach as high as fifty thousand, and this number is believed to be far below the actual loss. The tidal wave was eighty feet in height and swept inland a distance of two and a half miles, along two hundred miles of coast. Thousands of acres of land under cultivation were devastated and the inhabitants of the flooded districts are suffering from famine.

Italian Crisis Ended.

LONDON, July 12.—The Daily News has a dispatch from Rome which says that Lieutenant General Pelloux has accepted the position of Minister of War in the Cabinet of the Marquis Di Rudini on a basis of an increase of 60,000 lire in the army estimates. "Signor Colombo, Minister of the Treasury," says the Daily News, "has advanced the proposal to resign from the Cabinet, and the crisis is regarded as ended."

Catholics Gain Six Seats.

BRUSSELS, July 12.—As a result of the elections to replace half of the members of the Chamber of Representatives in whose terms expire, the Catholics gained six seats from the liberals, thus diminishing still further the minority of the latter in the Chamber.

CHICAGO, July 12.—It is unlucky to nominate a man on Friday, but it would have been unluckier to nominate a man on such a platform as this.

IT LOOKS HOPELESS

THE SILVER PARTY STARTS WITH ONLY 104 ELECTORAL VOTES.

Eleven States Certain to Give Republican 166 and Remaining Fifty-Eight Needed Seem Safe.

SIZING UP RELATIVE CHANCES

A SEPARATE DEMOCRATIC TICKET BY NO MEANS CERTAIN.

Plans of the Republicans for Pushing Their Wild Campaign in the Eastern States.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 12.—The fight is now on—McKinley and Hobart and sound money on the one hand, with Bryan and Sewall and free silver, socialism and modification on the other. The tariff will cut little figure in this campaign. Mr. Hobart's recent speech showed that he recognizes the absolute necessity of fighting the battle out on the money question, and the speech which Mr. McKinley made yesterday indicates that he, too, is now convinced that the only issue in the fight is that of finance.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, has received the reward which he sought. It was stated early last week that the senatorial syndicate proposed to make Mr. Harris permanent chairman and make Mr. Jones chairman of the national committee and thus manager of the campaign. It was found necessary to abandon Mr. Harris for good and sufficient reason, and the fight will be carried into every section of the country. Silver speakers, with Mr. Bryan at the head, and silver literature by the ton will be sent into every portion of the land where there has been the slightest indication of resistance to the silver sentiment. The fight will be carried into New York and the New England States. The candidates will be formally notified of their nomination in New York, and from that time on not a moment will be spared in spreading the silver propaganda in the East. There were free-silver delegates at this convention from every Eastern State, and they reported what is undoubtedly true—that there is a strong leaning among the party Democrats in the East toward silver.

THE NEW HEADQUARTERS.

The West, will, of course, not be neglected. Indeed, there is a strong feeling in favor of making Chicago the general headquarters of the Democratic campaign and of establishing a branch office in New York, instead of following the usual plan of conducting the campaign from New York. The Republican executive committee meets at Cleveland next Wednesday to discuss the organization and the selection of permanent headquarters, and there will be a strong pressure on the committee to follow the same plan which the Democrats now think of adopting.

In the coming campaign much will depend on the action of the sound-money Democrats. Unfortunately these gentlemen are still as hopelessly split up as they were at every moment of the convention. Personal jealousies are standing in the way of any concert of action. Senator Hill was unwilling that Mr. Patterson should have the solid vote of the gold-money men, because he feared the effect such a vote would have in 1898 and the Pennsylvania men were unwilling that Mr. Hill should have it for a similar reason. The petty differences between the sound-money men made it possible for the silver men to run things as completely as they did. It was ridiculous that after all the savage fighting which the administration and sound-money men made over the Michigan convention they should then, by their conduct, throw away even the little advantage they gained by the compromise that was effected in that State. When the Eastern sound-money men announced in advance that they would take no further part in the proceedings of the convention the administration silver men naturally felt themselves at liberty to vote their sentiments on the question of putting a separate sound-money ticket in the field seems to be sectional. The East is opposed to such action, while the West favors it. Take now a brief glance at the situation:

The doubtful States in this campaign, judging from present indications, will be Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia in the East; Kentucky and Tennessee in the central region; Indiana and Michigan in the North; Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Wyoming in the prairie West and Northwest; Washington, California and Oregon on the Pacific coast. As the intensity of the campaign develops the Democrats will be sure to claim they have a chance to carry Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin, while the Republicans will be very likely to make a night for Florida and Louisiana, neither of which is naturally a silver State.

WILL GO FOR MCKINLEY.

The Republicans are certain to carry the six States of New England with thirty-nine electoral votes; New York, with thirty-six; Pennsylvania, with thirty-two; Ohio, with twenty-three; Illinois, with twenty-four; and Wisconsin, with twelve. The Republican managers will say that Minnesota and Iowa, with twenty-two votes, are quite as certain, but out of abundant fairness these States must be classed as doubtful. If the Republicans start with a certainty of the eleven States indicated they will have as a basis of success 166 electoral votes, leaving them with fifty-eight to acquire.

The Democrats will, if successful in forming a complete coalition with the Populists, start in the campaign with a certainty of carrying thirteen States—Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia and Utah—having a total representation in the electoral college of 194 votes, or 119 short of a majority.

The battle will be chiefly fought in those States which are believed to be on the border line between the ideas: Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and the Dakotas. Prominent Republicans claim there is no doubt about Indiana, Minnesota and Iowa, and it must be conceded that in these States the McKinley ticket will have the better of the field from the start. This being so, it is easy to see

BRYAN PAYS TRIBUTE

STANDS AT LYMAN TRUMBULL'S GRAVE WITH UNCOVERED HEAD.

And Declares the Late Distinguished Jurist Was His Most Valued Tutor and Friend.

THE CALCULATING MR. JONES

HOW HE MANEUVERED THE GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR BRYAN.

Defies the Tellerites to Nominate the Bolter at St. Louis—Delegates Have Deserted Chicago.

Associated Press Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 12.—William Jennings Bryan, the nominee of the Democratic party for President of the United States, turned his back this afternoon upon statesmen, politicians and eager curiosity seekers, and went out to quiet Oakwoods Cemetery and stood with uncovered head before the grave of Lyman Trumbull, the man who had been his teacher and friend. When Mr. Bryan turned away his eyes were brimming with tears.

"Any distinction I may have gained I owe in great part to the man who is buried there," he said, as he turned to the carriage and was driven back to town again. To-day was the first opportunity Mr. Bryan had to rest since he started to Chicago, over a week ago, to attend the convention which was destined to name him as its candidate for President. He spent it under the hospitable roof of the Trumbull household, No. 4015 Lake avenue. The nominee recovered some of his lost strength by sleeping until well towards noon. After dinner he sat out on the vine-clad porch and looked across the blue waters of the lake. Some of the neighbors called and chatted with Mr. Bryan, and Senator Jones and the vice presidential nominee, Mr. Sewall, drove out and paid a short visit.

George Sternsford, who is an old friend of Mr. Bryan in Nebraska, drove around and took the candidate and his wife driving over the South-side boulevards. After they returned Mr. John Trumbull took Mr. Bryan in his carriage out to Oakwoods Cemetery, where the visit was paid to the grave of Lyman Trumbull.

Mr. Bryan and his wife remained at the Trumbull residence until the departure of their train to-morrow at 2 o'clock for Salem. The candidate will come down town to-morrow morning to attend the opening of the national convention at the Palmer House at 9 o'clock. He will then return to the Trumbull home and depart from the Illinois Central depot at thirty-ninth street. Mr. Bryan's original intention was to remain in Salem a week and take the rest he so much needed, but he said to-night:

"I find that I will only have a day or two to spend at Salem, although I would like to stay much longer. From Salem I will return direct to Lincoln, Neb. From there I will go to Omaha, and then to New York to receive the nomination committee.

"I do not think the 21st will be the date fixed for my meeting the committee in New York. Probably a week or so later will be the time fixed on."

THE NEW CHAIRMAN.

Senator Jones Head and Shoulders Above the Silver Politicians.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Among the aggregation of curious assembled here during the past week, probably the most intelligent and influential was Senator Jones, of Arkansas. He came as near having a controlling influence on the work and results of the convention as any man could in a mob that brooded so long. Jones was in the Senate a number of years before his colleagues ever discovered that he amounted to anything. He is not an orator in any sense of the word, but he has a keen intelligence in his judgment of individual men, and in guessing the trend of thought among masses of people. His chief qualification, however, lies in his quickness as a tactician in maintaining his sudden developments in a situation and turning them to advantage.

Jones was one of the original "conspirators" known as the "Senatorial Silver Syndicate," a coterie of United States Senators who went into this thing in dead earnest immediately after the repeal of the Sherman purchase law in 1883. By means of the Memphis convention, the organization of the Bimetalle League, the Democratic national bimetalle committee and other organizations, they have pursued a regular propaganda for free silver during all the intervening period. They succeeded in capturing enough delegates to control the convention before the great leaders of the party in the East were aware of the fact that there was any danger in the movement. Their programme was to take control of the convention by hook or crook, to put through a platform declaring for silver and containing enough of the tenets of the Populist party to attract all the voters of that party, and then to nominate Teller, thus combining in one party all the forces that make for free silver. The certain prospect of a bolt by the gold States of the East did not alarm them in the least for they well understood that not one of them could be carried for silver, whether the Democrats there bolted or not. They were counting on the South and West. Of their whole programme, the least important point was the nomination of Teller. It was easy to drop Teller, and when Dubois and the other representatives complained that the Tellerites might nominate a ticket of their own, Senator Jones replied:

"Go ahead and do it. Your people are not fools. They want free silver in the mining States and we are going to give them a platform to suit them. They will vote for it, and not waste any votes by throwing them away on another ticket."

The Tellerites saw the force of the argument and subsided. The Populists, however, could not be turned down so contemptuously. Their followers had no direct interest in silver and were liable to nominate a ticket and vote for it. It was easy to make a platform to suit them, but to nominate a man who would be acceptable to them and at the same time acceptable

CAME BACK TO ROOST

BOY ORATOR'S OLD LETTERS BROUGHT OUT TO FLAG HIM.

The Populist-Democratic Camp Simply Panicked-Stricken by the Disclosure in Chicago.

THE ATMOSPHERE WAS BLUE

UNTIL BRYAN COULD BE SEEN AND THE LETTERS DENIED.

For a Time All Jden of His Being Indorsed at St. Louis Was Entirely Abandoned by Stewart.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 12.—An alleged letter from William J. Bryan to the New York World in the issue of July 10 created a profound sensation here yesterday. The paper containing the alleged communication reached Chicago while the Populist leaders were writing dispatches to their associates urging them to indorse Bryan's nomination. All steps looking to this end were temporarily abandoned and the wildest excitement prevailed in political circles and committees were sent to Mr. Bryan for the purpose of securing either a confirmation or denial from him. The reply came that the letter was a forgery and that no such communication had ever been sent to the World or any other newspaper.

The head of the Chicago bureau of the World denied that any such communication had ever passed through his hands and in other ways the genuineness of the communication was disproved, and with this information at their disposal the Populist leaders proceeded with their work and will to-morrow formulate an address urging the members of their party to indorse Mr. Bryan at St. Louis and denouncing the World for purposely attempting to deceive the voters of this country.

The temporary upsetting of all the Democratic and Populist plans by the communication was the sensational conclusion of a most remarkable convention. Senator Stewart, of Nevada, I. N. Newlands, of the Populist executive committee, and L. P. Pence, the Populist ex-chairman from Colorado, were seated in Senator Stewart's room at the Auditorium busy engaged in sending dispatches to the Populist leaders throughout the country this morning. In these dispatches the Populists were urged to organize at once in order to secure an indorsement of Bryan at the St. Louis convention, July 22. Before the three Populist statesmen was a book containing 5,000 names of third party leaders. The night before the Populist executive committee had formally concluded to urge Bryan's nomination and the three men were appointed as a committee to organize for the fight.

After the dispatches had been started over the wires some one brought to Senator Stewart a copy of the New York World of the issue of July 9, containing what purported to be a letter from William J. Bryan to the editor of the New York World. The article in question was conspicuously displayed and run in double leads and double columns. The Nevada senator stopped his work long enough to read half a dozen paragraphs. Turning to Pence, he said: "What in the—do you suppose this—means?"

SENATOR STEWART SWEARS.

The patriarchal-looking Senator from the Pocket Borough State was beside himself with indignation. He swore a few minutes longer, and then Pence asked him: "What is it?" Inquired the Colorado Populist.

"Only this," he said. "Bryan has made a — as out of himself and the Populists will never indorse him in a million years."

Pence, who is of excitable nature, rushed over to Stewart and asked what new development had caused this. The two men had been engaged in trying to stampede the Populists to Bryan only a minute before.

Stewart braced himself, and in a voice which could be heard in the corridors beyond, he said: "I am not a Populist nominee. I am not a believer in either free silver or gold, but am an out-and-out bimetalleist. It is clearly apparent to me that financial stringency does not hinge on the amount of money in circulation, but on the amount of the money in circulation. The very best times we ever had occurred when there was a very low rate of money per capita in circulation."

"What is that supposed to be?" asked Pence.

"A letter from a damned fool whom the Democrats have nominated for President to the New York World," said Stewart.

"Let me see it," said Pence, and he grabbed the paper from the hands of the pocket borough Senator. The Colorado Congressman, coming straight to the point, made a second discovery. He found that Bryan, in his alleged letter, had placed the reform before free silver, instead of an issue in the campaign.

"If Bryan wrote that, we can never nominate him at St. Louis," was the only comment Pence made. "And until we find out something more about the authenticity of the letter we would better stop sending dispatches."

This was exactly what was done. Messengers were sent to notify the members of the Populist party not to send any of the dispatches not already placed on the wire, and to stop sending any more. The three men spent the day with Governor McKinley, and Governor McKinley went to church this morning, walking both ways, the weather being so hot that the old family horse was left in the stall.

Telegrams are coming in large numbers, congratulating Governor McKinley on his address last night. The consensus of these messages is that the address is taken as the keynote of the campaign, and that they properly approve of the sentiments thus briefly, but plainly expressed.

Messages received indicate a busy week commencing to-morrow, when a large part of the Populist men are expected to depart en route from the Chicago convention.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 12.—The Chattanooga Times is firmest in its determination to hold off for a nominee with Democratic principles.
