MR. WHITE ON TRUSTS

Col. Ingersoll Failed to Attend the Progress Club Meeting.

Colonel Ingersoll did not accept the invitation of the Progress Club to attend the regular Sunday afternoon meeting yesterday and there was some disappointment at his absence.

It was announced that the meeting of the club next Sunday will be the last of the season, John F. White, a member of the Board of Public Safety under the Denny administration, and before that a member of the Council, spoke yesterday on the evils of trusts and how to contract them.

He regarded the trust as the single tax levy. This indirect way would also cure corporate abuses, he thinks, particularly with reference to corporations relying largely for speculative benefits upon grants to the use of public highways, etc., inasmuch as the single tax applied to them would have the tendency to do away with fictitious values, inflated and watered stock and kindred evils.

Mr. White sees no particular danger in corporations that are legitimate in their operation, even though they may receive small subsidies out of existence, but looks upon them as the inevitable result of progress in trade, and as machinery in the result of progress in industrial life, and in his estimation it is no harder for small dealers to have to do away before concentrated capital, than it is for labor to have to succumb before advanced methods in manufacturing industries. What he does particularly deprecate is the influence of those trusts that control the natural products of the soil, coal, iron, etc.

Mr. White's paper was followed by a discussion of the subject.

THE PLUMS FOR INDIANA

BIG ONES IN WAY OF FEDERAL PATRONAGE ALREADY TAKEN.

Two Internal Revenue Collectorships Seem to Furnish Trouble-Governor Mount Has His Hands Full.

Since the adjournment of the Legislature the politicians have found much to talk about in the distribution of federal and state patronage.

The big plums in the way of federal patronage that will come to Indiana are pretty well taken already, probably by the assistance of assistant postmaster general, which falls to Perry S. Heath, of Muncie. Mr. Heath has had a long and honorable career in journalism, but had comparatively little to do with politics until last year.

He graduated from a printer's case and finally became a correspondent for the Journal at Washington. In this capacity he served a number of years, besides the Journal and acting as the Washington representative of a syndicate of New York brokers.

By his success in accumulating a very comfortable fortune and finally assisted in the formation of the syndicate that purchased the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. He acted as its editor for about a year and sold his interest just prior to its consolidation with the Tribune.

The opening of the last campaign found him foot loose, and he became active in organizing the McKinley forces in Indiana. When the campaign closed he was placed in charge of the McKinley bureau of the national committee, and his friends are not surprised that an excellent appointment of importance falling to Indiana is that of John K. Gowdy, chairman of the State committee, as consul general to Paris.

Mr. Gowdy was also active in organizing the McKinley boom in Indiana, and it is understood that he had his choice of a number of places and chose Paris. Some irreverent newspaperists indulged in a gross innuendo against this appointment of "Farmer" Gowdy, the Nation's representative on the subject of the Paris exposition, but it is hardly necessary to say that a great many of the tales that have been published are pure hoax. It is susceptible of proof that Mr. Gowdy has upon some state occasions worn a necktie, but he does not rub the lard in his hair, and he is not a member of the "Ladies' Aid Society," originating in the envious mind of some enemy.

It is true that his studies in the time that he gets to Paris he will be able to talk French just as well as any of these "Ladies' Aid Society" members are also slanders. The truth is that he usually eats with a fork and uses a knife, and he is not a member of the "Ladies' Aid Society," originating in the envious mind of some enemy.
