

END OF CITY CAMPAIGN

IT PRACTICALLY CLOSED WITH THE MEETINGS HELD LAST NIGHT.

Republicans Are Well Organized—An Enthusiastic Gathering in Sixth Ward—Gas Meter Trash.

Although both great political parties will do some work to-morrow and to-morrow night, the city campaign practically closed last night. Both sides are claiming victory at the polls next Tuesday. The Democrats, it was known last night, had $40,000 in cash in the city committee treasury. It is generally admitted that the present campaign has been an unusual one, with more than the usual amount of crookedness charged to the Democrats.

The Republican organization, it is felt, is in fine shape for the final struggle on Tuesday. While the Democrats are claiming that Mr. Taggart's chances were never better than at the present time, there is every indication that the disaffection in the party is bound to work disastrous results for the mayor. It is believed that Tuesday's election will end his political career.

A FALSE CIRCULAR ON METERS.

Malignant Statements Issued by Democrats as Campaign Closers.

For more than a week Mr. Bookwalter in his speeches has been telling the voters that he had information that the Taggart machine was preparing to flood the city with malicious statements that the Republicans were in a conspiracy with the gas companies to introduce the meter system and rob the people if the Republicans were successful at the polls next Tuesday. Thousands of voters found yesterday that Mr. Bookwalter's information was correct, for they received circulars signed by all the Democratic candidates alleging the conspiracy. The columns of the gas-meter fakes, which the Sentinel, the press agent of the Taggart machine, has been printing have not been taken seriously, for it is recognized that it is only "campaign stuff." The gas-meter question is not an issue in the campaign. Elijah B. Martin, chairman of the joint committee of the Commercial Club and the Board of Trade, which investigated the meter system, declared in an interview several weeks ago that as both political parties were opposed to the meter proposition, the committee would not make a report at this time, it being apparently useless to do so. Mr. Bookwalter has persistently denied that he would introduce the meter system in the event of his election. The Taggart machine's circular is strikingly "yellow," and bears the stamp of falsity in every line. It is as follows: DO YOU WANT NATURAL GAS METERS?

"Dear Sir—Your attention is earnestly called to a most serious question which directly affects the welfare and comfort of your family. You have doubtless observed that the natural gas companies, without regard to politics, are siphoning off every cent they can get by putting forth every effort to secure his election. The reasons for this must be apparent. Look at these facts:

"Two years ago both parties stood together on this question. Both conventions declared against natural gas meters, and Mr. Harding, the Republican candidate, pledged himself against any such thing. Mr. Taggart, this year the Bookwalter convention met, and he, too, pledged himself for some strange reason omitted all reference to the meter question. One week later the convention met, and Mr. Bookwalter, in its platform, declared clearly and unequivocally against natural gas meters and pledged himself to oppose any such increase in the cost of natural gas fuel.

"It being claimed by some that the subject was omitted from the original Republican platform by oversight, the press of the city called a Republican convention, which was called to meet still a week later to nominate candidates for councilmen large, and Mr. Bookwalter declared himself on the subject. But that convention met and adjourned without uttering a word on the subject. The result of the adjournment of that convention the gas companies commenced the work for the meter, and are making the most strenuous efforts to secure his election.

"During the last session of last winter the gas companies commenced the agitation in favor of natural gas meters. They kept us up with every kind of question, and the Board of Trade and Commercial Club appointed committees to investigate the question, and the result of their committees are now being prepared. As soon as they are prepared, they will be ready to snow files, the question of natural gas meters will have to be decided. In the face of this, Mr. Bookwalter first declared, when confronted with the question that the meter question was not one of the slavery question, but, finding that the people regarded it as an important issue, he began to dodge the question, and up to this hour has not given a direct answer. For weeks he has been endeavoring to induce him to say 'yes' or 'no' to the question. 'Will you pledge yourself, if elected, to veto any bill authorizing the introduction of natural gas meters?' He refuses to say either 'yes' or 'no,' but in speeches and interviews talks all around the question and evades it. His answers are satisfactory to the gas companies. It is safe to say they are working for his election. But what about your interests? The proposition is that instead of your paying for the average $12 per year for your cook stove you will be compelled to pay from $30 to $45, in other cities where the gas meter has been introduced. If your yearly gas bill under the present ordinance amounts to $30 you will be required to pay under the meter system over $10 or be deprived of the use of natural gas.

"Winter is coming on. The effort will be made to freeze the people into the support of the meter system. The gas companies will be made to suffer from the cold in order to coerce public sentiment in favor of gas meters and to induce the people to vote for these great corporations taking an active part in this campaign for Mr. Bookwalter. Can you have any doubt where your interest is? The following is the written pledge of Mr. Taggart and his associates on the ticket: 'I pledge myself to oppose the introduction of the gas meter system, and if elected, we will oppose at every step and every proposition to introduce natural gas meters in the city of Indianapolis and every proposition to change or modify, directly or indirectly, the existing natural gas contract as it increases the price to the consumer.'

WIND-UP IN THE SIXTH.

Mr. Bookwalter Speaks on an Ardent Meeting of Indians.

The winding up of the campaign in the Sixth ward brought out a large number of Republicans to hear their candidates speak. The meeting was held in the colored Odd Fellows' Hall on Indiana avenue, and with enthusiasm displayed a few equals during this campaign. Mr. Bookwalter was late in arriving at the hall, and the crowd was kept in a jovial mood by the Bookwalter quartet singing.

Guilty Brewer Elected Chairman of the Meeting and Made a Speech that Kept the Audience in Rapt Attention, and he was frequently interrupted by applause. He spoke on the so-called "independent" movement among colored men, which he contended is a disgrace to the Nation. While Mr. Brewer was speaking Mr. Bookwalter entered the hall and received a warm applause that was deafening. He spoke of his duty to the people on the issues of the campaign and said that they did not believe on next Tuesday they would be sure to have the whole Republican ticket elected.

POLICY HEADQUARTERS.

The Places Brascally Conducted in This City.

The policy companies operating in this city are doing an enormous business uninterrupted by the police. James Ross operates one company on the third floor at 135 South Meridian street. This place was raided Feb. 11 and several men arrested, but they were not convicted by Police Court. Joseph Humphrey and Gus Rahke run a policy joint at 133 East Court street, on the third floor. "Bill" Kissel and Ollie Lanham run the "Springfield International," on the second floor of the old Seminal building, on North Meridian street. Each of these companies employs a large number of runners, and their rooms are crowded with the cash is turned in. Other kinds of gambling are prevalent and any kind of a game may be found the instant one opposite the entrance to the fair grounds. At Harston, councilman at large, and one of the most notorious gamblers of the city, is one of the proprietors of the fair grounds place.

THE TALK OF 'REPEATERS'

GRAND JURY DID NOT CONSIDER EVIDENCE SUFFICIENT TO INDICT.

Sherman Mott and Democratic Officials Called Before the Board of Twelve Inquisitors.

The county grand jury adjourned yesterday without making an official report of its investigation of alleged Democratic "crookedness." The jury had under consideration a story to the effect that Democratic leaders have been planning to vote "repeaters" at the election on Tuesday. Sherman Mott, an attorney, gave the jury considerable information. American citizens summoned before the jury were Fred Heiler, Ollie Lanham, W. F. Kissel, Joseph T. Fanning and Albert Salm. Some of the witnesses declared that Mott had been "kicked" out of the "committee" of the Democratic party. After devoting a day or more to this investigation, the grand jury decided there was not sufficient evidence to indict any one at the present time. However, the jurors were impressed with some things they heard, and the investigation will be taken up again at the next session.

It is understood that a statement was made to the grand jury to the effect that Sherman Mott, who is a Democrat, made a deal with a Republican challenger in one of the precincts in the Seventh ward, by which "repeaters" were to be allowed to vote. Mott first went to Albert Salm with his plan, and Mr. Salm declined to have anything to do with it. It is also declared that if such a scheme was worked, it might not be done by the city committee. Mott, it is claimed, then went to Chairman Lanham and advised him of what was going on, and issued subpoenas for a number of Democrats.

GRAND JURY INDICTMENTS.

One of These Is Against John Turner for Murder.

The county grand jury adjourned yesterday after making a final report to the Criminal Court. During its session the jury examined witnesses, heard the indictment against John Turner, a colored man, who killed his wife, Laura Turner. He stabbed the woman in the throat on the night of Aug. 23 at their home on Shepard street, West Indianapolis. She lived until Sept. 13, dying at the City Hospital, where she was taken the night she was assassinated. The jury recommended that Robert Hayman, son-in-law of Nicholas Filbeck, of Terre Haute, be discharged for lack of evidence on which to find an indictment. Hayman was charged with having signed his Republican meeting and listened attentively to Charles Goss, Joseph Bauer and Henry Marshall discuss the issues of the campaign. There was no disorder and no beer drinking. Thirty men, women and children attended the Democratic meeting. It was reported that the speaker, Goss, was drunk and was making a "sloppy" speech. Politicians say this example negates the situation in the Fifteenth ward.

Taggartites Wasting Money.

A Republican who is taking an active part in the canvass of the Sixth ward says that the Taggartites are giving the colored voters, particularly those who are thought to be influential, a great deal of money. One man went to the dispensary of Taggart and pleaded with the Republican managers and displayed $10 which he had given him to take care of the other day. The man who has this money says that they do not intend to vote for Taggart, but will take care of the other day. The information of the Journal's informant is of the opinion that the Taggart people are wasting their money. He is of the opinion that the Taggartites obtain the large amount of money they are using to corrupt voters.

The Sentinel Commends Negley.

A Republican, in commenting on the fact that the Sentinel is persistently attacking Harry E. Negley, the Republican candidate for Council in the Eighth ward, by inserting in its columns a clipping taken from the Sentinel on April 12, 1898, it reads as follows: "The Sentinel commends Negley, by appointment, on the bench of the Criminal Court as special judge. Mr. Negley is a man of high character and of honorable exception could be taken to his administration of justice from the bench yesterday."

THE LIGHT THAT SAVES.

One dark night the light of a searchlight from a Spanish Torpedo boat darted out under cover of darkness to launch its deadly missile against an American war vessel. If she had been struck she would have gone to the bottom. What saved her? Was it her big 13-inch guns? No, it was her searchlight, the dazzling white beam of light that shot straight out like a sword-thrust through the darkness, revealing the lurking danger.

What is it that saves thousands of men from death every day in the year when the deadly foe of disease is creeping unsuspectingly about them? It is the light of science; the educated understanding that reveals the source of danger and indicates the exact point of attack. While the ordinary doctor gropes around, with the feeble tallow-candle light of stereotyped, conventional routine treatment, a physician, like Dr. F. Y. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., instantly illuminates the subject with the clear day-light ray of practical knowledge; the irresistible search-light of advanced and life-sustaining scientific "Pellets."

"I was afflicted for four years," says John F. Zingsheim, Esq., of No. 9 Lark St., Amsterdam, N. Y., in an earnest letter to Dr. Pierce. "My suffering was extreme and the trouble gradually increased notwithstanding the fact that I tried many different remedies. I was unable to do any work at all, and after much hesitation, I wrote to Dr. F. Y. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and he sent me a box of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also 'Frissonat Pellets.' I must here state that they have cured me. I wish to thank you most heartily for your kind and successful treatment. I have gained about twenty-five pounds in weight. I used only one bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one trial of the 'Pellets.'"

Do not hesitate to write to Dr. Pierce. He will send confidential advice absolutely free. Send one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, for paper-covered copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Clothing-bills, ten stamps extra. Address Dr. F. Y. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A GREAT MINSTREL SHOW.

Primrose and Dockstader Here with a Lot of Bright New Acts.

The Primrose & Dockstader Great American minstrel, which has been running with a rush of sweet melodies, clever specialties and a huge crop of fresh, crisp jests that set two audiences at English's Opera House to violent laughter. It was all a great shock to the man who thought American minstrelsy was deteriorating, for it was the assurance that the line that Indianapolis theater-goers have seen in many years. For an organization as suddenly and as rapidly peripatetic as a minstrel show, this troupe carries an unusual quantity of scenery, including several dazzling sets. The opening scene was gorgeous, scintillating with hundreds of incandescent, electrically lighted stars. In the center was an organ, an innovation in minstrel shows, and this instrument added immensely to the sweet blending of voices and light band instruction. Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader, as usual, are entire shows in themselves, and they are simply backed up by capable men. They find and make new jokes so fast that what they have to offer hasn't time to get stale. They have a large enough new things added to keep Indianapolis counting rooms and social gatherings looking for a shock. Dockstader's happy faculty of working local material up to a point at a moment's notice, was displayed effectively in his comments on the local political situation set by his audience regarding the election. He was the latest phase of national politics, Dewey and Wheeler combination for 1900, and it was one of the best of the night. They will have to get more votes than that, if they are elected, commented the man in black. The troupe has been Dockstader was breezy. For instance: "I've been in the merry-go-round business," which closed the first act, and was very novel. The following close on the merriest, stilled the audience. The scene is the exterior of a cathedral and the sound of a voice inside continues, the man in black says that he has been in the merry-go-round business.
