PAWNSHOPS CONDEMNED

By Colonel Brewer, of the Salvation Army, in His Lecture.

Colonel Brewer, of the Salvation Army, spoke in Plymouth Church last night, the Salvation Army having charge of the services. His subject was "The World in Pawn, or Modern Resurrection." He said there were various forms of worship, but it was the broken and contrite spirit that was wanted by God. He said it did not matter to God what form of worship we choose so long as we strive to serve him, no more than it does to a mother the way her child expresses its love. "The world was pawned for a consideration," he said, "and that consideration was sin. Christ came to redeem the pawn." In going over the form of pawning he severely consemned the pawnshops. He said that they are a reflection upon the society of the nation, as it is in these places that drunkards pawn their last belongings for the price of a drink, the wife leaves a plece of furniture to buy food, or the young man, who is supposed to move in the best of society, leaves his clothing to get money He said that by following the men in the last named class newspaper reporters could get some good scoops.

GOVERNOR MOUNT'S ADDRESS

HE INTRODUCES THE EVANGELIST IN WELL-CHOSEN WORDS.

Rev. M. L. Haines Talks Briefly but Eloquently-The Church Beautifully Decorated.

Three men received enthusiastic receptions at the opening of the series of Murphy gospel temperance meetings in Meridian-street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, Francis Murphy, Governor Mount and Rev. Matthias L. Haines, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. With them on the platform sat Joseph Taggart, president of the local Murphy League; Rev. Elijah P. Brown, the well-known paragraphist and former editor of the "Ram's Horn;" S. J. Wilson, chaplain of nolds. The large rostrum was such a EASTER MONDAY BARGAINS the speakers of the afternoon could scarcetended to the pipe organ, which was ornamented with a profusion of Easter lilies. Except on occasions when he has spoken in Tomlinson Hall, Francis Murphy has MOUNT never before addressed a larger concourse of people in Indianapolis. All the pews were filled to their utmost capacity, rows surrounding the platform was also filled with extra seats, each one of which held EASTER MONDAY--Eggs-actly so an eager listener. Mrs. Mount was present, and seemed to take great interest in

"I assure you that I esteem it an honor. and it is to me a very great pleasure to attend this meeting. I rejoice that so many of the good people of Indianapolis are interested in temperance work and that you have come with your presence to encourage Mr. Murphy in beginning this gospel temperance service. As good citizens we can render no better service to the city, to the State, to the country and to our homes than to be deeply interested in the cause of temperance. He who engages in temperance work has enlisted his energies in a noble service, and they who sympathize with those who have been overtaken by an appetite for drink, sympathize with them and are endeavoring to lift them up, are doing a service that the master would approve. I am glad that the work. Let the women, let the mothers be encouraged in temperance work and let your field be the home, for it is the most evils of intoxicating drink that my heart is in full sympathy with all efforts to promote the cause of temperance. No evil has blighted so many homes and caused so much suffering as the evil of intem-

And all the ills from which we shrink Are centered in that dread enemy, Drink. "I am glad that Mr. Murphy has come, in his persuasive way and in God's power, to do what he can for this city against this evil. I hope the people of Indianapolis will second his efforts and that this will be the beginning of a temperance revival that shall prove a blessing to our city. But I must not take up your time. It is not necessary that I introduce to you Francis Murphy. His name is a household word. He is known everywhere. I will now turn this meeting entirely over to him, so he shall be speaker and programme and have general charge of this meeting. I now pre-sent Francis Murphy." [Great applause.]

MR. MURPHY TALKS. Mr. Murphy responded to Governor Mount's address in his characteristic manner, saying, among other things, the fol-

"My Dear Governor, Brother Taggart, Dr. Haines, Chaplain and Dear Friends-I deeply grateful in the gracio dence of God that I am permitted to come back again to this beautiful city of Indianapolis with my good wife, to stay with you for a few days in promoting this blessed and holy cause of gospel temperance and to be presented to you by this distinguished Christian gentleman whom you know and love, and love him because you know him. God bless him. It is a great deal for the Governor of a commonwealth to stand upon a platform and present and commend this gospel, and not only commend it as he does, but to practice it in his life. That is he remarkable part of it." [Applause.] Mr. Murphy paid a glowing tribute to the memory of Oliver P. Morton, stating that ne spoke from personal knowledge of the man. He also took occasion to congratulate the people of Indianapolis upon having such a garden spot as Woodruff Place and such a wonderful poet as James Whitcomb Riley in their midst. Of Poet Riley he said: "This strange and beautiful-and, I was going to say, this divine-man, this Riley, has sung so sweetly of Woodruff Place. What a beautiful character he is-remarkable. Oh, he is a genius, he is a seer, he is, and the sweetest and most beautiful things that thought can gather up around the altar of human hearts he has transferred them to paper, and read them, if you please, and get a blessing and let God get into your lives." [Applause.] DR. HAINES HEARD. After Mr. Murphy had spoken about five minutes a restlessness in his manner became noticeable, which shortly proved to be due to his intense desire to have a few words from his friend, Dr. Haines. With the humorous observation that possibly the evangelist wished to get him out of the way so he could have a clear track, Dr. Haines gave an extemporaneous appeal for total abstinence that was conspicuous for its elegance of diction, its eloquence, amounting at times to brilliance, and its fund of subtle, refined humor. This talk proved an excellent introduction to Mr. Murphy's second exhortation on the subject of gospel temperance, which was delivered in his own peculiar style, each one hearing it thinking the address intended for his especial benefit. Some of the evangelist's characteristic utterances follow: "I think sometimes that the splendor of our presentations of Jesus Christ kind o' alienates us from Him. You must not forget the society He lived in, the poverty that He assumed. "We are putting on our nice clothes and standing on parade and looking at ourselves and crimping our hair and putting on such a gait that-Lord save us-none of our neighbors can keep up with us. We are special trotters. "When a man is in love he is a good fisherman. He never thinks about himself. it is what the girl likes. How is that, Governor? (Governor Mount replied, 'That's all right'). I am certified to by no less authority than the Governor of the State. (Governor Mount: 'I will indorse every proposition'). I tell you that is great. "You talk about the ministers filling the churches. That is a mistake. Go to work and fill them yeourselves. Now, say, we have got to take off our clothes and come down and shake hands with people.

The engine has been manufactured in this city for about a year, at Barth avenue and Sanders street, and sold for the usual uses of gas engines.

and use their present equipment, the only change being in the forward trucks. The absence of valves in the De Frees engine is said to be of the greatest importance, it having shown that in all other gas or gasoline engines used for automobiles or other transporation service the valves, which become filled with dust and other substances, have proved a great source of annoyance and expense. Several months ago a man started to go from New York to San Francisco in an automobile. One week after the start he arrived at Rochester, N. Y., and was obliged to lay up for repairs on account of damage to the machine resulting from the valves. The engine is said to be almost noiseless. there being almost no noise perceptible to passengers and to those outside the engine shows less noise than the usual street-car motor. The engine which is attached to the "Keystone," and which will be built for regular similar service, is a three-cylinder engine, and is controlled the same as steam engine. FOUR LARGE FACTORIES. The plans of the company include the building of four large factories for the manufacture of the engines, heavy draft trucks and automobiles. One of the factories will be in Russia and another one near London, England. There will be two in this country, one at Chicago and one in Indianapolis. The Indianapolis factory will be the first one put in operation, and it is learned upon good authority that a deal has been practically completed between the company and the J. B. Allfree Manufacturing Company, of this city, for the purchase of its plant at Twenty-first street and Northwestern avenue. The plant will be enlarged and car engines alone will be manufactured here. The capitalization of $5,000,000 is said to be only for the purpose of promoting the car engine appliance, and that an equal sum is now on deposit with two trust companies for the purpose of promoting the business of manufacturing heavy draft trucks and automobiles, with another $5,000,000 available for additional capital. Work upon the improvements planned here will begin in a short time, and special machinery costing $200,000 will be installed in the plant at the first opportunity. The company now has men in Russia and London looking over the ground for the establishing of plants there.

Into the Woods to See Jack Cullen and Ollie Chill Fight.

About 200 faithful followers of the prize ring rode over dusty roads to a point about seven miles southwest of the city yesterday afternoon to witness a scheduled finish fight between Jack Cullen and Ollie Chill, both of this city. The men were to meet at 128 pounds and were to fight for the receipts. In a corner of a woods was pitched a tent where the battle was to take place, and the managers of the two principals were wreathed in smiles at the sight of many hacks and other conveyances coming into view, each carrying its delegation which would add to the coffers of the two fighters. When everything seemed lovely and the word was given to prepare for the festivities, and the fighters were awakened from their sleep and told to don their fighting trunks a pall seemed to come over the crowd and from many voices could be heard the utterance "It's all off." Sheriff Clark and several deputies, with Detective Thomas Dugan, of the city force, rode into view and then the cause of the de jected cries was known. The crowd stood about the grounds eyeing the stern agents of the law for some time. After riding into the country as far as they had they were eager for a fight and suggested that the party go six miles further into Hendricks county and there settle matters. Chill and his manager were against going any further, and after much arguing with the principals, and then with the sheriff, it was decided to postpone the fight indefinitely.
