

boats and the steam launches and under the hot tropical sun. It was learned that the boat was a schooner, and that there is a reef, visible in the day time, at the Cape Toleof, or modern entrance to the bay, and that there is deep water everywhere in bay and gulf.

The Baltimore held some little communication with the natives on shore inside the bay. One day a canoe, or raft, was seen approaching from the land. It came along very slowly because the men who propelled it stopped every three strokes of their paddles to wave a white flag. When they finally got on board, the men were armed for garrison to protect them from the depredations of the alleged bands of insurgents operating in that vicinity.

Another day a launch from the Baltimore was running down the southern side of Casuarin sound, taking the depth of the water and studying the shore. It had got pretty near the historic town of Baler, when the engines broke down and boat and crew were left at the mercy of the waves, which broke hard on the rocks to leeward.

Every effort was making to repair the damage to the machinery, but the launch was again before the launch stopped. The crew was blown up on the rocks, when the crew noticed a large crowd of half-naked natives, armed with bows and arrows, and boats concentrating on that part of the shore where the wind was rapidly driving the helpless craft.

Insomuch as Luzon will undoubtedly be most valuable as a naval station, and that good harbors on the island add materially to its value in this respect, the United States navy is making a study of the island, and the discovery and sounding of Casuarin sound and gulf is of particular interest.

Modern Improvements Help to Make Single Life Easy. "There's nothing clearer to me," said the woman who thinks about things, "than the fact that society will ultimately perish by reason of the modern conveniences it has invented."

There's nothing clearer to me, said the woman who thinks about things, "than the fact that society will ultimately perish by reason of the modern conveniences it has invented. The fact is, I take it, marriage is sapped. In our grandfathers' day people were compelled to marry for the sake of their comfort.

ton, some one called to see the minister. "He is not here," Mr. Labouche informed the visitor. "He is out of the city. He shall wait till he comes," said the gentleman, much annoyed. He waited for about a couple of hours, and at last grew absolutely furious. "Will he be here at all today?" he asked at last. "I don't think so," said "Labby" with a yawn. "Fact is, his excellency sailed for England yesterday."

What Science is Doing to Help Solve the Hen Problem. New York Sun. Alchemy, or hen-science, is making progress like all other branches of knowledge. There are few amusements more costly or more laborious than the raising of luxurious hens of high descent, and hen farms often lure the amateur into plunges almost as deep as those of the fancy stock market.

For the warning and instruction of those who are simple enough to believe that hen science is simple, we might take from a recent publication of the Department of Agriculture an account of a "Nest Box" for keeping individual records. It is used at the Maine Experiment Station in the case of such sacred fowls as light Brahma, White Wyandottes and Barred Plymouth Rocks.

We believe that in Hartford, Conn., the best hen raiser is Mr. J. W. Hays, who has the happiest results. The amateur must not forget that the science of hens is long and complicated. The Telegraph and the Theater. New York Evening Post. Everybody must have noticed how prominent a part the ordinary telegraph plays in the lives of the people of this country.

It is not that he would be impossible, even if it came within the province of this note, to examine the probable motives which have led him to remain single. He has never met the girl of his heart; perhaps he met so many he lost all confidence in his heart's choice; perhaps, even though surely such cases must be very rare, he was born without any heart worth mentioning.
