THE HIGH SCHOOL CLASS

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Subbins Day have returned from a visit with Mrs. Day's INTERESTING EXERCISES AT ENG-LISH'S OPERA HOUSE.

> Over One Hundred Graduates This Year - The Undergradutes Had Lots of Fun.

The graduating exercises of the class of 900, Indianapolis High School, drew to English's Opera House, last night, a much greater audience than could possibly be accommodated with seats. That many stood through the entire programme was a high tribute to those who contributed the varied entertainment of the evening. The arrangement of the graduates on the stage was extremely artistic and effective. The Miss Zelda Read entertained a few friends twenty-five young men of the class occuinformally last night in honor of Miss Nelpied the central section of the rising banks of seats and were flanked on either side by forty-three young women, disposed in like manner-111 in all. It was a large class, even for a city of the size of Indianapolis, and made a truly splendid appearance. Each of the young women carried a bouquet of generous proportions, and the combined perfume of eighty-six bunches of roses and carnations was perceptible to a delightful degree in the heated atmosphere of the theater. The constant, gentle movement of scores of dainty white fans added greatly to the picturesqueness of the scene. The "drop," which provided a background for the graduates, was appropriately a woodland view. A spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm was evoked from a group of undergraduates in the balcony when the ascending curtain lifted from the stage and brought into plain view a handsome banner of green silk, bearing the inscription "1900" in large pink figures. Pink and green are the "colors" of the class of

THE PROGRAMME. The programme opened with a musical number, executed in the best style known to the Indianapolis High School Orchestra, which is a group of competent and exceedingly well-trained musicians, whose work is almost good enough to lift them clear out of the amateur class. The invocation was offered by Rev. Thomas J. Villers, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Miss Ruth Allerdice, who ranks next to the highest in the class in point of scholarship, delivered a charming address on "Children's Books," which received close attention and liberal applause. Alice Scott, who enjoys the distinction of being the class poet, chose for her subject "The American Girl in Art," and made out a fine case for the typical young woman who occupies such a large share of the public attention at present

Cathro, captain of the celebrated company of High School Cadets, showed himself to be full of the military spirit in a well written description of Pickett's great charge up Cemetery Ridge. By a curious and leasing coincidence the essays of Katherne M. Mulry and Lulu Mattheus bore striking relation to the countries of their ancestry. Miss Mulry talked delightfully and with evident patriotic pride of "Irish Bards," while Miss Mattheus dilated with equal intensity of devotion upon the marelous courage and fortitude of William of Orange, her subject being "Dutch Hero-An interruption that was most agreeable and greeted with enthusiasm was the song, "Sing, Oh Sweet Bird, Sing," by Miss Louise K. Of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb Held Yesterday. The fifty-sixth annual commencement of the Indiana Institution for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb was held yesterday in the school chapel which was simply but attractively decorated with palms, flowers and flags. The graduating class was composed of nine girls and five boys. The programme, which was in charge of Superintendent Johnson, consisted of essays and recitations in concert. Amos W. Butler, secretary of the State Board of Charities, addressed the class and his remarks were interpreted by Dr. De Motte. Samuel A. Bonner, president of the board of trustees, made the presentation of diolomas. The class motto was: "Strength of mind is exercise-not rest."

The exercises were attended by a large umber of the parents of the students. There have been, during the year, three nundred pupils, and many of them prepared to leave at once for their homes,

EX-COUNTY CLERK JOHN E. SULLI-VAN WILL GIVE HIMSELF UP.

Absconded in 1889 After Embezsling About $80,000-Trying to Fix a Bond.

John E. Sullivan, former county clerk, to the amount of about $80,000, returned to Indianapolis yesterday afternoon and surrendered himself to the authorities, it was said; but he has not yet given himself up. He left here Jan. 9, 1889, having served but a little more than two years of his term. and went to Toronto, Canada. He came to Greencastle, Ind., last March and engaged in the poultry business under his real name, but was never detected.

Sullivan was elected to the office of county clerk in 1886 after an expensive campaign. He conducted a large poultry busiress on West Maryland street, but the proceeds were not sufficient to meet the enormous expense of being elected. Debts began to press upon him and he appropriated became known in January and he was advised to leave the city. Experts were put to work and it was found that his shortage amounted to about $80,000.

TOOK TRUST FUNDS. His method of doing business was to de posit funds held in trust in the bank and appropriate them to his own use. Most of the funds were deposited with the Meridian National Bank, and there are suits still ending for these funds Sullivan was also implicated in the tally sheet forgeries which stirred up such a commotion, and in the litigation that fol-

He asserts that he did not try to conceal his identity at any time, and it is said that he visited Indianapolis, but was not recognized on account of a beard. It is also said that persons at Greencastle asked him if he had not at one time been clerk of Marion county and he replied the affirmative. Notwithstanding this pub-

In addition to paying his share of the bond a large amount was paid out for other securities and money loaned Sullivan. Mr. Renihan is not pleased with the statement of an afternoon paper that Burton paid nearly all of the bond, and says he can show a receipt that he paid $700 within the last year in settlement. HE SPENT MONEY. Sullivan was a money spender and was regarded as an easy mark by his political friends who needed financial assistance His liberality is said to have been responsible for his embarrassment, and it is belived by many that he took the money for temporary relief, believing that he could repay it. He also borrowed money, and Mr. Renihan advanced him $5,000, taking his property on North Capitol avenue for se curity. When the crash came mechanic's liens began to be foreclosed on the prop erty and he sold the place for $2,500 Henry Spaan, who bought up the judgments for whatever he could.

Feb. 15, 1889, the grand jury returned three indictments against Sullivan for embezzlement, and May 14 two more were returned. Four of these are now on record in the Criminal Court, but will not be made public until he is in custody. No bond was fixed yesterday, as was stated in an afternoon paper, but an attempt will be made to lower any figures to within reach when a bond is secured. Sullivan's attorneys-Henry Spaan and Newton W. Hardingwere in the Criminal Court trying to arrange for the bond yesterday. One of the dictments is missing and cannot be found. Sullivan says he has returned to face his shame and believes that he will yet be given an opportunity to repay his creditors and do what he can to correct the wrong he

CITY ENGINEER JEUP GOES ON A INSPECTION TOUR.

Disintegration of Iron Work Caused by Leakage of Water-Board of Works Affairs.

Yesterday afternoon City Engineer Jeup made a trip to the tunnel under the Union Station to make an investigation of reports to the effect that several of the iron girders and posts, supporting the overhead work of the tunnel, were in an unsafe condition, owing to disintegration of the iron by the rust caused by the leaking of water through the tunnel. As a result of the investigation the city engineer will make recommendations to the Board of Public tendent of the Orphans' Home at Westfield. Works, as soon as he can prepare his estimates of the cost of the work, to have necessary improvements made at once.

A Journal reporter accompanied City Engineer Jeup to the tunnel yesterday afternoon and was shown the damaging process being wrought by the disintegration of the iron. About two months ago Mr. Jeup made a thorough inspection of all the iron and brick work of the tunnel and then saw the necessity of making improvements, directors were elected for the ensuing year: but after the inspection yesterday he said Abe Kemp, of Tipton; Rev. H. S. Hilton, he would prepare his estimates of the work of Brooklyn; R. O. Hawkins, of Indianapnecessary and submit his recommendations olis; J. F. Elliott, of Kokomo; Byron K. to the Board of Works, probably next Mon-Elliott, of Indianapolis; Mrs. Jason Henley, of Portland; Dr. William R. Stewart, of day. The south end of the tunnel is in the Indianapolis; Mrs. S. E. Morss, of Indianworst condition, as more water has leaked through at that place. Mr. Jeup tested several of the supports and could peel off the iron crusts in layers nearly an eighth of an inch in thickness. "Something will have to be done to stop the disintegration," said Mr. Jeup. "There is no real danger at this time, but if nothing was done to counteract the effects of the rust eating the iron supports there might be danger within a few months. The street commissioner examine the tunnel but a short time ago and he also saw the necessity of making improve-

> NOT UNSAFE. Mr. Jeup stood in the tunnel while trains passed overhead and he watched closely for any vibration of the iron work. He was satisfied that the iron work had not b come weakened sufficiently to be unsafe. He also examined the iron girders that span the arches and while there was disintegration on the lower part of the girders he said he was satisfied that the body of the girders was sufficiently incased in the brick and mortar work to prevent them from rusting. He explained that what leakage existed came through the brick and did not effect the girders, excepting on the side exposed to the atmosphere. At the north end of the tunnel large layers of the rust could be easily picked from the iron posts but the condition was not so bad as at th > south end. The tunnel was reconstructed in 1887 by the city, and there has been neglect in not pre venting the rusting of the iron work by oc casional painting of the iron posts and girders with metallic paint. Whitewash has een used frequently, but, it is claimed iron. Mr. Jeup said he was convinced that the evil can be remedied by scraping from the iron work all of the rust and applying several coats of good paint, and this what he will recommend to the Board Public Works. It may be found that it wil be necessary to take out some of the iron work and replace it with new.

Mr. Jeup said the specifications for the rearrangement of the tunnel with elevated tracks called for an entirely different plan than the one now in vogue and one reason why the tunnel has not received attention before this is that the agitation over th elevation of tracks caused the city officials to delay any improvement.

FOR A NEW TUNNEL. The plans for the new tunnel, should on be constructed providing tracks are ele vated, call for a tunnel, much wider and one which will be used as a general passageway for vehicles as well as street cars. It will be as wide as Illinois street from the curb lines and there will be no center posts. There will be a slight depression explained Mr. Jeup, in the new tunnel, but be done easily as the tracks will all be elevated according to the specifications. The many floods that have caused the tunnel to be under water have also had great deal to do with the disintegrating process of the iron posts, explained Mr. eup, and not long ago he prepared plan for a sewerage system to carry away the water, even during the heaviest rains His idea is to place catchbasins on th Illinois street end of the tunnel at frequen intervals on the approach so that the water that flows down the incline will be carried away before it can flood the tunnel Nothing was done with this scheme, however, owing to the agitation over the elevation of tracks. The matter may yet come up and be accomplished as it will be years before the tracks are elevated even should the city win in the suits to be filed by City Attorney Kern to compel the railroad comanies to elevate their tracks accord the ordinance passed by the City Council. A prominent architect of this city inspected the tunnel a few days ago and he says the condition of the iron work is even more dangerous than stated by City Engi neer Jeup. The architect explained that the water leaking through the top of the tunnel affected the main part of the iron girders and should the brick work be torn away the girders may be found to be in a weakened condition. He said, however, that should the city make repairs at once t would be saved the expense of thousands the course of eighteen months the from work will have become so disintegrated that it will be necessary to tear it out and replace it at a great cost. WORKS BOARD AFFAIRS.

Street Sprinkling Contractors Fined-

Waste Paper Contract. The Board of Works gave several sprinkling contractors an object lesson yesterday by "docking" them two days' pay for fail ing to sprinkle streets according to contract on one day. Shover & Austin were docked for nineteen streets, Henry Nolting for four streets, George W. McCray for two streets and Frank Kennington for

The board received an opinion from the city attorney to the effect that the board can proceed with street improvements when all the property owners affected sign a waiver of their right to contest payment, on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the city charter provisions in regard to assessments. The city attorney also gave an opinion that the board can compel the nusmen of J. Harry Roberts to complete work of constructing sidewalks West New York street, according to his contract. Roberts says he will do the work himself. Mayor Taggart was also served with an opinion that he must sign all contracts made by any of the boards under his jurisdiction The Board of Works made a contract with the Indianapolis Clean Street Company to place receptacles about the city fo waste paper and refuse. Four hundred will be put in use and the company will pay the city 15 per cent. of its gross receipts. SCHOOL BOARD GAS BILL.

Its Merits Discussed in the City Controller's Office. The question of $1,151.60 being deducted from the bill of the Consumers' Gas Trust Company came up in the form of a trial in City Controller Johnson's office yesterday, Mr. Johnson is auditor of the Schoo Board and he refused to draw a warrant for $3,994.92, the natural gas bill of the Consumers' Company, claiming that $1, 151.60 should be deducted, as that amount was spent for coal owing to shortage of gas. R. N. Lamb and Bement Lyman were present to represent the company and J. P. Dunn, deputy auditor of the School Board, acted as prosecuting attorney. Mr.

There are three classes in the Deaf and Dumb Institute. The money for the support of these schools has been collected in small amounts and last year amounted to $8,346,79, $500 of which was appropriated by the County Commissioners. The attendance from April 15, 1899, to April 15, 1900, was 3,976, making a per capita expense of about $2.10. The board reports a satisfactory visit and recommend that the city appropriate $1,000 for the in-

INCREASED SALARIES

For Thirty-Seven Employes of the Postoffice.

Word was received from Washington vesterday by the local postoffice authorities granting an increase in salary to thirty-seven officers and clerks in the Indianapolis postoffice. Application was made for the increase by Postmaster Hess, and all but one received the increase. Inquiry will be made regarding the other applicant for increase, as it is believed there was a mistake in arranging the increases in Washington. The total increase of salaries amounts to $3,900 a year, and will take effect July 1. The increases run from $100 to $200 a year. Postmaster Hess also has a request on file in Washington for more carriers, which he believes will be granted James C. Wheat, a distributer, was one o the clerks who was increased, but he ma not enjoy the advance, as his dismissal from service has been recommended by Postmaster Hess for conduct unbecoming a government employe. Wheat is now under suspension

They Paid the Fine.

The announcement at Butler College that the under classmen would not be admitted to classes until the assessed damage to the wearing apparel of the seniors had been paid resulted in the payment within a vershort time. The bill was reduced to $28. The under classmen have planned an entertainment to reimburse themselves for the "assessment," but this, it is though will not be done, on account of the preparation for final examinations.
