

The City's SOCIAL LIFE

Events, Gayeties and Personal Activities of the Week

Society has now fairly entered upon its summer solstice. There has been an unusually large number of June brides this season and the usual entertainments given in their honor. But the last June bride has now showered her bouquet in exchange for rice. Graduates have declaimed upon weighty questions enough to furnish the country with thought for the next twelve months and so all the fuss and feathers of the social season is abandoned and people are making plans for their summer outing. Change of scene means rest usually, but a new environment has, for many, gradually come to imply only a fresh code of social ethics. Americans grow to love formal festivity over much and maintain an almost disheartening standard. Summer villas in the country or mountains or watering places admit of privileges and home comforts galore, but the sojourners thus domiciled are expected to untriflingly entertain, until summer existence implies all the exactions of town life, and society returns to town at the end of the season as worn out and unrefreshed as when it went away. The question naturally arises can such tireless outpouring of nervous energy be safely met and is the summer probably passed under this new regime?

was printed a number. Pencils were distributed, and the guests were given half an hour to guess the identity of the maps, the names of which were to be written on the backs of the plates. The couple most successful in this were each presented with an immense cannon fire-cracker, which, however, was not as dangerous as it seemed at first sight, for it was nothing worse than a clever imitation of the real thing filled with bonbons.

The Summer Girl—1900. Afraid of no mood of the weather. And shod in the stoutest of leather. She can handle an oar with another. She is as quick as a cat on her feet. She is wholesome and dainty and sweet. Her fair head is crammed full of knowledge. She takes all the honors in college. In the social world of Paducah, Ky., she makes her own book-plates by stippling. Reads Barrie and Browning and Kipling. And is the answer by heart. She rides, and she drives, and she dances. And simply and wholly entranced. The lady and the maid in the prime; The latest and loveliest singer; Queen rose of this wonderful summer. And pride of an exquisite time. —Collier's Weekly.

Personal and Society News. Mr. and Mrs. Addison Bybee are at Lake Maxinkuckee. Mrs. and Mrs. A. E. Dietrichs have gone to New York. Miss Alma C. Watts has returned from a visit in Edinburgh. Miss Brownback, of Pendleton, is visiting the Misses Shover.

Curious Ceremonies. A curious but extremely pretty wedding is reported by London papers as having lately taken place in that city. The young couple were children of wealthy German families, and no doubt the novel ceremony that began the wedding came over from the old country. During the first part of the rites the bride stood in the center of a ring made by her eight bridesmaids, holding in their hands a rope made of the loveliest flowers. When the moment came for her to put on the ring the bride softly broke the rope and joined her husband, thus showing that she left her girlhood behind her. On leaving the church the bridesmaids preceded the bride, strewing her way with the flowers that had made the rope. It is a wonder that so pretty a custom is not adopted.

But to return to the Korean bride. She had her erasils pasted together so that she was quite blind, and there sat the poor bride until she had been married for five days. This blinded she cannot see her bridegroom as he is under his erasils, and she is quite dumb and dared not speak to her bearers. But to return to the Korean bride. A Unique Invitation. Here, according to the Chicago Post, is a decidedly original invitation sent out by a young woman of that city whose first book is in its second edition, and who has another volume of verse under way. It came in the form of a sort of schedule, with the blanks filled in, like those things the census taker uses when we are out. The recipient of this invitation says indeed he "will be at it," if for nothing else, for the pleasure of beholding the guest of honor "just washed and in a new dress!"

Fourth of July Picnic. At a Fourth of July picnic were passed around to the company wooden plates of generous dinner-plate size, says a writer in the Woman's Home Companion. On these were pasted various odd-shaped pieces of red, white and blue paper. These, it was explained, were intended to represent in their general outline the maps of the thirteen original States (as they now appear), and with them, to avoid the unlucky number, was also the map of Cuba. At the top of each, instead of its name, CHANGE IN FOOD Works Wonders in Health. It is worth knowing that a change in food can cure dyspepsia. "I deem it my duty to let you know how Grape-Nuts food has cured me of indigestion. "I had been troubled with it for years, until last year my doctor recommended Grape-Nuts food to be used every morning. I followed the instructions and now I am entirely well. "The whole family like Grape-Nuts. We use four packages a week. You are welcome to use this testimonial as you see fit. I am willing to give any information to anyone who desires to see or write me regarding Grape-Nuts." Respectfully, Mrs. C. A. Lowe, 851 Parker street, Roxbury, Mass.

When the nervous system is run down, the machinery of the body works badly. Grape-Nuts food can be used by small children as well as adults. It is perfectly cooked and ready for instant use.
