AMUSEMENTS.
Papinta is giving a series of new "fire" dances at Proctor's Fifth-avenue Theater, New York.
"Richelle's Stratagem" is the title of a costume playlet which J. E. Dowson is presenting with great success on the New York vaudeville stage.
The history of Joan of Arc, in twelve scenes, or tableaux, is being presented at the Eden Musee, New York, by the moving picture machine.
The Grand Stock Company will appear in a one-act comedy to-night and the remainder of the week in a rich production of Sardou's brilliant drama, "Diplomacy." The result of the election to-morrow will be brought direct to patrons of the Grand in the shape of telegraphic dispatches received and read on the stage of the theater to-morrow night.

Indications are that George W. Lederer will have to give up the New York Casino Wednesday. Mr. Lederer declares that if he is compelled to vacate the house so long associated with his name he will shortly build a new theater.
Olga Nethercole will present "Sapho" four weeks at Wallack's Theater, New York, beginning Nov. 12, after which she will start on the longest road tour ever made by her. She will go into California for the first time in her career.
Charles T. Aldrich, well known in the continuous vaudeville theaters as "the tramp juggler," has been engaged as the leading comedian of Edna May's support in the new musical comedy, "The Golden Cup," written for her by Morton and Kerker.
Bertha Galland will continue to support James K. Hackett in "The Pride of Jenkins" the remainder of the present season, and about the 1st of September, 1901, will make her debut as a star under Danol Frohman's management at the Lyceum Theater.
Mme. Bernhardt received an immense ovation in Paris last Wednesday night on the occasion of her last appearance in "L'Aiglon" prior to her forthcoming tour of the United States in conjunction with Constant Quelin. Since the play's first presentation the recitals are said to have averaged $2,100 nightly.

Rice & Barton's Burlesque Company begins a week's engagement at the Empire this afternoon. The company is well known to patrons of the house. An additional attraction has been added for to-morrow night. Election returns will be received and there will be two performances, one commencing at midnight.
"The Royal Box" will be presented at English's Opera House to-night and to-morrow night by a company of capable actors, headed by Andrew Robson, who succeeded the elder Coghlan in the title role last season and made a distinctly favorable impression upon the public. The play is an adaptation of a work of Alexandre Dumas and abounds in delicate and delightful humor. Election returns will be read from the stage to-morrow night.
Mme. Modjeska's admirers in this city are greatly pleased to learn that the distinguished Polish actress has decided to add a matinee to her forthcoming engagement at English's Opera House Wednesday afternoon. Mme. Modjeska will appear in her great character of Mary Stuart Wednesday afternoon, and at the final performance Wednesday night will display her magnificent new revival of "King John," in which she assumes the intensely tragic role of Lady Constance.

Maclay Arbuckle begins his starring tour in "The Sprightly Romance of Marsac" in Washington, D. C., to-night. Mr. Arbuckle is supported by a cast of great strength. The names of the members here are printed in the Journal hereafter. The tour will include an engagement at English's Opera House in the near future.
The New York Telegraph is authority for the surprising statement that the Liebers have decided to abandon the presentation of "The Adventures of Francois," on account of Mr. Mitchell's refusal to play. The Liebers will, it is said, secure another piece in which to continue the starring tour of Henry E. Dixie, who this week has himself summarily deprived of a matinee in which to exploit his ability as a comedian.
Helene Mora and Rose Coghlan, with Hyde's Comedians, constitute the big offering of the entire week at the Park, commencing this afternoon and continuing twice daily. Miss Mora and Miss Coghlan are said to display some unusually rich and handsome gowns in their acts. Miss Coghlan is presenting a new playlet, entitled "Between Matinee and Night," in which she is assisted by Louis Massen, a talented young actor, and a selected company. Election returns will, of course, be received to-morrow night by special wire.

The Broadhurst farces, of which there are by now a goodly number, have heretofore been of such uniform excellence that it is fair to presume that the latest, "The House That Jack Built," is clever and sprightly in character. This new farce, which will be presented for the first time at English's Opera House Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday afternoon of the current week, is provided with the most of more than ordinary strength, headed by Thomas Wise, the eminent English comedian, Mrs. Annie Yeamans, whose peculiar style of funmaking is known and loved by all American theatergoers, and Miss Jennie Yeamans, an equally renowned comedienne.
Local theatrical attractions for the current week present a number of surprising and interesting coincidences. Rose Coghlan will be at the Park all week with Hyde's Comedians. The stock company at the Grand will be the entire week in "Diplomacy," the play in which Miss Coghlan and her brother Charles gained so much popularity some years ago. The production is rendered still more interesting by the fact that to-night and to-morrow night at English's and Robson will present "The Royal Box," which was adapted from the French by Charles Coghlan and which was the last play in which Mr. Coghlan appeared before his death about a year and a half ago.
The Zoo has all the earmarks of a permanent success. The attendance has increased slightly from day to day and out-of-town people have figured in the increase. The citizens of Indianapolis have found out that the Zoo is free from anything objectionable. It is more than a mere place of amusement, for it takes on the character of a public institution for the public good. It is educational in its results, presenting the real lessons in natural history. The bill for this, the Zoo's third annual fund-raising dinner, given by Director General Bostock, Baby Ida in Cuban dances, and with her caprice, Mrs. Morrell with her jaguars; election returns by special wire to-morrow night; McKimley and Bryan souvenirs given away all week; voting contest for the ladies to decide which of the animals will be the mighty Bovaianus from the River Nile. Its like was never in this country before. For five months it attracted widespread attention at Mr. Bostock's Scotland Zoo. The Zoo is open from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.—morning, afternoon and night. The management prides itself on the care and attention extended ladies and children.

Lieut. and Mrs. Guy Austin Boyle will be at home to their friends informally from 8 to 9 o'clock Wednesday evening at their residence, 616 North Meridian street.

The house was decorated in autumn leaves, cornstalks, thistles and other signs of the season. Japanese lanterns, comic transparencies and jack-o'-lanterns were used. At 9:30 supper was served.

THE PARENTS ARE ANGRY

DISMISSAL OF CULVER STUDENTS CAUSES INDIGNATION.

It is Not Thought Any of the Boys Will Return to the School—One Cause of Trouble.

Indignation over the action of the authorities of the Culver Military Academy in dismissing 105 students recently is running high in this city, in which reside the parents of ten of the young men. A number of meetings have been held and plans of action discussed in an informal way. It is understood that a formal meeting of parents and friends of the boys will be held Thursday night of the present week, at which the affair will be thoroughly canvassed in all of its phases, and a plan of procedure definitely decided upon. Prominent in one of the gatherings yesterday to discuss the matter were Dr. J. A. Houser and John B. Cocker, general counsel for the Lake Erie & Western Railroad Company. The gentlemen present agreed upon a formal statement of the case in its various bearings, which they gave out for publication, as follows:
"The action of the Culver Military Academy in dismissing 105 boys from that institution recently has been the subject of a great deal of discussion among citizens of this city who are friendly and interested in the young men belonging here, and who were summarily sent home. The consensus of opinion among all the people is that the action of the Culver authorities in dismissing the boys was hasty and ill considered; that, while technically the rules of the academy had been violated, yet all of the circumstances surrounding the affair did not justify the harsh means used by the academy authorities in taking the action they did. Ten boys from Indianapolis were sent home. These boys are worthy, honest fellows, who are representatives of some of the best families of the city, and they were sent to the school to prepare themselves for college, and to get the benefit of the discipline and physical culture that the school affords.
"The people of this city are generally of opinion that the parents of the boys in dismissing them when he found them out of bounds was in all respects unfair and unjust. The action of Col. A. F. Fleet in dismissing the young men as he did is believed to be the result of a desire to stand by the major.

DR. QUAYLE WILL REMAIN

THE OFFICIAL BOARD REFUSES TO ACCEPT HIS RESIGNATION.

It is Said Dr. Quayle Will Abide by the Decision and Remain in This City.

At a meeting of the official board of Meridian-street Church, held in the church parlors yesterday morning at 10:15, the question of accepting Dr. Quayle's resignation as pastor was finally acted upon by the adoption of the following resolution:
"Resolved, by the official board of Meridian-street Church, that after having carefully considered the resignation of Rev. William A. Quayle as pastor of the church, as well as the situation and needs of the church, and the fact that Dr. Quayle has but fairly entered upon the term of the pastorate of this church, which we had anticipated when he came to us, and believing that the good which he has accomplished, and the success which he has attained in the past two years are but the promise of much greater things before him in this field, and after having carefully considered the wishes expressed in his resignation, and having due regard to the desires of the congregation of Grand-avenue Church of Kansas City, yet we feel constrained to decline; that in our judgment it is Dr. Quayle's duty to remain with this church, and that we cannot recede our sense of duty to the congregation which we represent with the acceptance of his resignation, and we do hereby affirm, but in a Christian spirit, decline to accept his resignation."
This action was unanimous, and the chairman of the meeting was directed, by telegraph, at once to communicate the action to Bishop Cranston and also to the official board of the church in Kansas City.
The official board of Meridian-street Church understand that this closes the incident, and that Dr. Quayle will cheerfully accept the situation. Doubtless this will be the result, for from the beginning Dr. Quayle's attitude has been that the church here had the right to decide the question whether he ought to remain, and that he would acquiesce in that decision, whatever it might be.

ARREST OF JAMES HARPER

James Harper, who has been wanted by the police for some time on a charge of embezzlement, was arrested yesterday at East and Minnesota streets, where he was creating a disturbance. Persons residing in the neighborhood complained of his actions on the street, and insults offered when he was requested to go away or keep quiet. Harper furnished a revolver, which was thrown during the approach of the police upon a woodshed.

STORY OF SPECIAL TRAIN

IT WAS USED TO GET SENATOR BURROWS TO PORTLAND, IND.

A Promise Had Been Made and It Was Kept at the Cost of $450 —A Great Meeting.

The story of how certain ardent Republicans of Portland, Jay county, Indiana, secured a brilliant orator for their big rally last Saturday is unusually fascinating and strongly suggests the incident of the woman who by her persistence obtained an unjust decision from a judge, related in the Scriptures.
The Republicans of Portland making arrangements for their end-of-the-campaign rally several weeks ago made up their minds that they must have Senator Marcus A. Hanna as the principal orator of the occasion. Accordingly, a body of representative citizens of the town boarded a train for Chicago and went directly to the headquarters of the Republican national committee, on Michigan street. Senator Hanna was at the time in Nebraska, making his well-remembered campaign tour of the West. The disappointment of the Portland delegation scarcely knew bounds. They stated their case as strongly as possible to Mr. Payne, chairman of the executive committee, telling him how much they wanted Senator Hanna to deliver the chief address of the day set for their grand rally. Mr. Payne and another member of the national committee told the delegation that it would be utterly impossible for the senator to leave his post of duty on the last Saturday before the election, but the more insistent the men from Portland became in their demands for Senator Hanna. When they left the headquarters of the committee they asserted their intention of returning when Senator Hanna should have completed his speechmaking trip.
BACK TO CHICAGO.
Sure enough, they came back to Chicago in a few days. Again they were told that it was of no use to see the senator, because he had stated positively that he could not and would not be away from national headquarters on the Saturday preceding election day. They were so persistent, however, that they were finally taken into Senator Hanna's private office and presented to the distinguished Ohioan. The gentlemen were given a cordial greeting by the senator and half hour was spent in pleasant conversation. They were at last convinced that the granting of their request was out of the question and took their departure sorrowfully.
A short time afterwards, when a member of the national committee came to Indianapolis for a brief visit, he dropped in at Republican State headquarters in the Majestic building, and was surprised to meet a part of the Jay county delegation, with whom he had become quite friendly during their trips to Chicago. They were imploring the speakers bureau to provide them with an orator for their rally, but without much success. In despair, they again turned to the gentleman from Chicago and begged him to use his best efforts to secure a speaker of national repute to address the Republicans of Portland, Saturday, Nov. 3. He gave them his word that he would provide them with an orator. On his return to Chicago he began the task of finding an orator who would be disengaged on the day in question. To his dismay, he discovered that he had undertaken a larger contract than he had at first dreamed of. Apparently, every speaker under the direction of the national committee was booked for last Saturday.
APPEALED TO SENATOR BURROWS.
Every possible avenue of investigation was gone over again and again. Only a few days before the day set for the great meeting the committee happened to

BOYS LEAVE HOME

Lester and Vernon Folsom Are Seeking Adventure.

Lester Folsom, twelve years old, and Vernon Folsom, eight, left their home, at 918 Olive street, Wednesday morning, and have not since been seen. They are sons of Ed M. Folsom, a painter on the Lake Erie & Western Railroad, who is now out of the city. Their mother left them at home Wednesday morning when she went to work. When she returned at night she found a note on the table saying they had gone to Versailles, their former home, but it did not state when they would come back. The boys also told children in the neighborhood they were going to Versailles. No cause can be given for their leaving, but it is believed a spirit of adventure seized the elder boy, from reading sensational literature. The mother has communicated with Versailles, but as yet has heard nothing from the boys.

FROM BUENOS AYRES.

Senior Juan M. Caballero Is Now in the City.

Senior Juan M. Caballero, of Buenos Ayres, South America, has been in the city for the past few days, visiting the leading manufacturers and making arrangements to act as their representative in the Argentine and Uruguayan republics. While here Senior Caballero has been the guest of Capt. William H. Armstrong at the latter's home in Woodruff Place. Senior Caballero became well known to Captain Armstrong's daughter, Mrs. Garrett T. Ryan, and her husband, during their residence in South America. Mr. Ryan was for four years vice-consul at Colonia, which is across the river from Buenos Ayres, and he and his wife only recently returned to Indianapolis.

Said He Was Held Up

Jesse Vinyard, colored, was arrested yesterday upon complaint of Henry Gay, colored, who said Vinyard had held him up at Missouri and West streets Saturday night and relieved him of his watch, a small amount of money and other valuables. A portion of the property Gay claimed to have lost was found on the prisoner.
