

THE FUNERAL

MEETING HELD AT THE HARRISON HOME TO ARRANGE DETAILS.

Acceptances Received from Some Ex-Cabinet Officers Selected for Honorary Pallbearers.

FUNERAL SUNDAY AFTERNOON

IT WILL BE HELD AT THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN AT 2 O'CLOCK.

The Rev. M. L. Haines, the Late Ex-President's Pastor, Will Have Charge of the Services.

ORDERS TO NATIONAL GUARD

THE MILITARY DISPLAY WILL TAKE PLACE TO-MORROW.

Meeting Presided Over by Governor Durbin Discusses Arrangements—Body to Lie in State.

Arrangements for the funeral services to be held Sunday afternoon over the remains of the late General Harrison were discussed at the family residence last night by Private Secretary Tibbott, Mr. W. H. H. Miller, Col. D. M. Randall and Mr. Chapin C. Foster, but nothing definite was decided.

A list of active pallbearers was made up, but this is only tentative as yet, and the names were not given out for publication. As previously announced, the members of the late ex-President's Cabinet have been invited to act as honorary pallbearers, but word has been received from only a part of these.

Redfield Proctor, who was secretary of war in President Harrison's Cabinet, will not be able to get to Indianapolis for the funeral, as he is on his way to Cuba.

There will be no services of any kind at the home of the dead ex-President. The party, consisting of the family, immediate relatives and friends, and, it is understood, President McKinley and Private Secretary Cortelyou, will go from the house direct to the church shortly before 2 o'clock, the hour set for the ceremonies to begin.

The funeral ceremonies will take place in the First Presbyterian Church, and will be conducted by Rev. Matthias L. Haines, who was General Harrison's pastor.

A committee, of which Chapin C. Foster is chairman, has been selected from the officers and deacons of the church to supervise the draping and decorations of the church, including the family pew.

Among the members of this committee are Charles Latham, Fielding Lee, Joseph H. Patterson, John F. Wild, James W. Lilly and Charles Dwyer.

It is thought likely that a portion of the front of the church will have to be reserved for the family and friends, including the President and such of his official family as may attend him.

ADMISSION OF PUBLIC. Among the matters discussed last night was the best method of admitting the general public into the church Sunday afternoon.

Several of those present recalled that at the funeral of General Harrison's first wife, in the same church, there was such a crush of people eager to do honor to the memory of the distinguished woman that a number were injured in the rush to enter the church after the funeral cortege passed through the doors.

The interment will be in the lot owned by General Harrison in Crown Hill cemetery. In which his first wife, Mrs. Caroline Scott Harrison, is buried. The lot is situated in a slight rise, and is in one of the picturesque portions of Crown Hill.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE For the Lying in State and Military Display To-Morrow.

It has been decided that the funeral of General Harrison, on Sunday afternoon, will not be attended by military display. To-morrow, however, the entire National Guard of the State will be here to do honor to the dead statesman and soldier.

Yesterday was a day of deep mourning for General Harrison in this city. His death brought sorrow to the people of the Nation at large, but here at his home, where he came into almost daily contact with his fellow-citizens and was regarded with feelings of affection by them, the termination of his great life was felt the most.

Every flagstaff in the city had its banner floating at half-mast. Flags of heroic size depending from tops of buildings and draping their fronts were caught in the middle with ribbons of crepe. Whenever a group was formed, whether on the street, in a store, office or private dwelling, the sorrowful faces and hushed voices told that the topic of conversation was the tragic removal of America's greatest private citizen.

At the family home on North Delaware street a solemn quiet prevailed throughout the day. The sorrowing widow and near relatives of the deceased passed the time in comforting wishes in this direction of the family, in a room adjoining that which held the form of the one they loved so well.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—President McKinley left Washington at 7:45 o'clock to-night, by the Pennsylvania Railroad, for Canton, O., whence he will proceed, Saturday night, to Indianapolis, to attend the funeral of General Harrison.

With him are Mrs. McKinley, Secretary Cortelyou and Dr. F. M. Rixey. Mrs. McKinley will not go to Indianapolis, but will await the President's return at Canton. The return trip from Indianapolis will be made Sunday night, and, although the matter has not been finally determined, the probability is that the chief executive will make only a very brief stop at Canton, and come back promptly to Washington.

Invitation from the Columbia Club. A telegram received last night from George B. Cortelyou, private secretary to President McKinley, stated the President would leave Canton for Indianapolis to-morrow evening, probably arriving here at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Senator Fairbanks's Tribute. He came on from Washington after hearing of Gen. Harrison's illness. Senator Fairbanks arrived at his home on Park avenue late yesterday afternoon, having come direct from New York. Senator Fairbanks left Washington a day earlier than he had intended. This was occasioned by a great shock to the state of Indiana, and Mrs. Lemcke, who are passing the winter in the Hotel Del Coronado, at Coronado beach, California; John R. McLean, Washington, D. C., editor and proprietor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, and George W. Boyd, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Philadelphia.

President McKinley's Condolences. Mrs. Harrison early yesterday morning received the following telegram: "Executive Mansion, Washington, March 13. 'In the death of General Harrison the country has lost a distinguished statesman, a devoted patriot and an exemplary citizen. The people of the Nation mourn with you. You have the heartfelt sympathy of Mrs. McKinley and myself in this our overwhelming sorrow in your home.' WILLIAM MCKINLEY."

Nation Notified of General Harrison's Death—Other Official Action. WASHINGTON, March 14.—The national capital is in mourning to-day for ex-President Harrison. Flags are at half-mast not on all the public buildings alone, but upon the hotels, stores and many of the private residences. The act of 1863 inhibits the draping of public buildings in black, as was the custom formerly upon the death of ex-President President McKinley, who was deeply affected by the death of General Harrison, directed that the doors of the executive mansion be closed to visitors and denied himself to callers except those who had business of urgent importance.

At 10:30 this morning President McKinley issued a proclamation formally notifying the people of the country of the death of their former chief magistrate and directing the observance of a period of mourning for thirty days. In pursuance of this proclamation the flags on every public building in the United States, at every army post in the United States, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines and on every American warship in whatever quarter of the globe will fly at half-mast for thirty days.

CASTELLANE ENTERS AN EDITOR'S DEN AND BOXES HIS EARS.

M. De Rodays the Victim of an Assault Committed by the Titled Husband of Anna Gould.

DUEL MAY BE THE RESULT

COUNT BONI TO HAVE THE CHANCE TO SHOW VALOR ON THE FIELD.

Trouble Due to a Paragraph in Le Figaro, Which Intimated Castellane Was a Go-Between.

ONE OF DEROULEDE'S CHARGES

STATEMENTS BY COUNT BONI, HIS FATHER AND M. RODAYS.

Swiss Authorities Attempting to Prevent a Duel Between Paul Deroulede and M. Buffet.

PARIS, March 14.—Count Boni de Castellane thrashed M. Ferdinand de Rodays, editor of the Figaro, to-day, for stating that he (M. Castellane), had betrayed the Deroulede plot on the occasion of the funeral of the late President Faure, Feb. 23, 1899. A duel is expected.

Count De Castellane interpreted a paragraph in the Figaro as alluding to him. He was accompanied to-day by his father, the Marquis De Castellane, and a newspaper friend, M. Moret. They proceeded to the residence of M. De Rodays, in the Rue de la Chaussee d'Antin, situated in the center of Paris. The count asked to see M. De Rodays, and was ushered into the writing study. M. De Rodays later received the party in his dressing room. Count De Castellane said: "You published in the Figaro this morning an abominable paragraph about me."

M. De Rodays replied that he did not understand what the count meant, to which the latter retorted, hotly: "Will you retract or not?" To this M. De Rodays replied by explaining that the paragraph was innocently couched, and that no mention was made of the name of the Count De Castellane. Then, without further ado, Count De Castellane boxed M. De Rodays's ears severely. M. De Rodays, who was seated, him up and slapped his face again. The Marquis De Castellane and Moret then intervened and protected M. De Rodays from further harm. The Castellanes then withdrew.

M. De Rodays, later in the day, said he had decided to send seconds to Count Boni de Castellane. They are MM. Prestat and Perrier, who called at the residence of M. De Castellane this evening. The representatives of the count are not publicly known, but it is understood the four seconds will meet to-morrow to make arrangements for the duel.

THE SENATION OF THE HOUR. The affair is the sensation of Paris. Since the speech of M. Deroulede, at San Sebastian, last month, in which he intimated that the Royalists of Paris had notified the police of his intended coup d'etat, after his refusal to allow the Duke of Orleans to appear in the ranks of the agitators, very great interest has been aroused respecting the identity of the Royalist emissary who approached M. Deroulede and M. Marcel Habert on that occasion, the names suggested including Jules Guerin, the hero of Fort Chabrol, while the Royalists denied that the emissary acted in behalf of them. The duel arranged to take place, possibly to-day or to-morrow, near Lausanne, Switzerland, between MM. Deroulede and Buffet, the agent of the Duke of Orleans, is a direct outcome of the discussion on the subject of the coup d'etat which failed.

The paragraph in the Figaro, which was the immediate cause of the assault upon M. De Rodays was as follows: "People have been asking who is the person M. Deroulede wished to designate. It appears that he is a member of Parliament, and it is affirmed that he is the young deputy whose name is best known, and who, on the eve of starting for America, with his young wife, last week, very loyally delayed his departure in order to reply, if necessary to the polemics which may develop."

Count De Castellane has written the following letter to the newspapers here: "Reading the Figaro, I was filled with indignation at the perfidious insinuation accusing me of treachery. I immediately begged my father and a friend, M. Moret, to accompany me to the residence of M. De Rodays. The latter received us, and, after a few brief observations, to which he gave unsatisfactory responses, I intimated on him merited correction. I
