gars are steady, the raw market having gained enough strength to avert a decline without improving sufficiently to bring about an advance. Coffee is slow during the summer, but there is demand sufficient to keep prices from declining. The only change in canned goods is in tomatoes, where prices reached the highest point of the season about the middle of the week, only to verify the old adage that "pride goeth before a fall," prices proving top-heavy, and going back to figures prevailing at the opening of the week. Consumers simply refused to pay the advanced figures and they had to decline. There has been a decided cut in prices of new pack tomatoes, which has helped to pull down spots, and jobbers will not be surprised to see still further declines this week. Dried and evaporated fruits are steady and unchanged. Fruit and produce are moving fairly well, subject to only the seasonable fluctuations which vary with stocks held from day to day. Irish potatoes are weak, but prices are much the same as for a week past. Green apples, if choice, are firmer.

But few cherries or raspberries are offered. Blackberries and huckleberries are in good supply and watermelons and canteloupes are abundant and cheap. Peaches are becoming quite plentiful, some very good Kentucky fruit being offered. Butter is coming in more freely, but choice commands the best price quoted. Eggs are very firm for July. Poultry is a fast mover at prices quoted, young chickens especially being in good request. The provision market

PETITION FOR A PARDON.

Influences at Work to Secure Harry

A petition for a pardon for Harry Wilson. of Bristol, Elkhart county, was filed with the Governor yesterday. Wilson's father is a liveryman at Bristol. Two or three years ago the elder Wilson got into a dispute with Richard Sherwin, a rival liveryman. The argument became so violent that $275 young Wilson took a hand and struck streets, $4,000. Sherwin with his fist. The latter fell to the sidewalk and his skull was fractured. As Wilson was convicted of involuntary man-

Historic Battleground Now a Park.

STONY POINT, N. Y., July 16 .- The capture of British fortifications by General Anthony Wayne, in the American revolution, was celebrated to-day, the 123d anniversary of the event, by the dedication of a public park at the scene of the conflict. The site which overlooks the Hudson river, is an ideal one. For years the American Scenic and Historical Society has been engaged in making improvements, and the reservation to-day presents a beautiful appearance. Through the action of the Legislature the hill where the battle was fought has been turned into a state reservation and hereafter will be taken care of by the State.

stems. This habit and its winged seeds make it exceedingly difficult to eradicate. None of our domestic animals can be induced to touch it, much less eat it, and it never has been, and never can become a forage plant. The so-called Russian thistle is an entirely different plant. It is really not a thistle at all, but a tumble weed, resembling in appearance the Western weed of same name. It has insignificant thorns or spines on ends of leaves, and nence its name of "thistle." It is exceed-
