Let the Journal Follow You. Are you going away for the summer?

The most effective helpers of the coal operators are the mobs of miners, one of which brutally beat forty nominal men at Hazelton on Sunday night.

Until it is announced by what authority and for what purpose General Miles goes to the Philippines the announcement of his going at an early day will cause considerable curiosity and some newspaper conjectures.

The purchase by Indian Territory Indians of 1,000,000 acres of land in Mexico shows that even the intelligent and educated red man is not more anxious to live in the immediate neighborhood of his white brethren than is the untutored savage.

That any organization of fairly intelligent men should take action upon the assumption that Congress could in any way put an end to the anthracite coal strike betrays a deplorable ignorance of the powers and limitations of that body.

The Bryan Democrats in Wisconsin are disposed to resent the officiousness of the Gold Democrats who are returning to the party.

The report comes from Washington that an agreement has been reached between Senator Spooner and Governor La Follette by which the Governor will not oppose the reelection of the senator, and the senator, in turn, will give the Governor's platform cordial support.

The "soft-coal eye" has made its appearance in great numbers in Boston and New York, where anthracite has until recently been the common fuel.

If the committee calling the primary election last spring made a mistake as to the number of justices of the peace to be nominated by declaring that five places were to be filled instead of four, the committee should simply revise its declaration of nomination by declaring the four candidates having the highest number of votes duly nominated.

The Hartford (Conn.) Courant congratulates the United States upon the appointment of Mr. Charles Denby, Jr., of this State, by the vicerey of the province of Pe-Chi-Li, as his chief foreign adviser.

A curious situation has arisen in Germany, where an order of expulsion against a score or more of Mormon missionaries has been held up through the representations of the American ambassador.

A commission appointed by the British Iron Trade Association which recently visited the United States has made a report which contains several points of interest.

The impression which prevails that American employes work much harder than do the British has been found to be false by the commission; indeed, it comes to the conclusion that they do not work so hard.

They have to be attentive in guiding operations and quick in manipulating levers and switches when work. They are different from the British workmen in that they are much more desirous to turn out large quantities. American workmen are much better paid and are more regular in their attendance, loss of time through drinking habits not being tolerated.

The special session of the Ohio Legislature which began yesterday is of more than ordinary interest to people beyond the boundaries of that State, because it will consider the subject of municipal government.

Unexpectedly the Supreme Court made a decision which makes every city charter in the State unconstitutional, not because of their provisions, but because of the Constitution adopted over fifty years ago.

The billion-dollar issue. The latest "parliament issue" bears the caption "A Billion-Dollar Session."

Men who will take the pains to examine the appropriation bill will discover at the outset that the aggregate is a little over $300,000,000, or nearly $250,000,000 short of a billion dollars.

The appropriations actually made aggregate a little over $300,000,000. Of this sum $300,000,000 is for the Panama canal and $90,000,000 more is for the sinking fund.

There is $100,000,000 disposed of which has nothing whatever to do with current expenses. This reduces the aggregate appropriations to $200,000,000.

The appropriations actually made aggregate a little over $300,000,000. Of this sum $300,000,000 is for the Panama canal and $90,000,000 more is for the sinking fund.

There is $100,000,000 disposed of which has nothing whatever to do with current expenses. This reduces the aggregate appropriations to $200,000,000.

Now, consider the already oft-repeated statement of an increase of appropriations this year over last year of $70,000,000.

First, there is the $50,000,000 appropriated for the isthmian canal, as already intimated. To this should be added the increased appropriation on account of the postal service.

There is a large saving of $44,000,000 in the army appropriation, while the appropriation for rivers and harbors is large, because none was made by the last Congress.

No one who has any information upon the subject will deny that appropriations are made for which no justification can be given.

It will doubtless always be so long as there is a public treasury which can be tapped, but there were no more of such appropriations by the last session of Congress than heretofore.

Where were the Democrats in Senate and House when they denounced as extravagant or unnecessary appropriations of money were made?

Who were more zealous for the passage of the river and harbor appropriation bill than Democrats in both Senate and House? So long as they did not denounce these expenditures while pending and voted for them on their passage, Democrats in Senate and House are equally responsible with the Republicans.

The Legislature of Minnesota of 1899, in response to a strong sentiment in the cities of the State, enacted a primary election law.

A short story in one of the September magazines has for its hero a writer of novels. This was his method of procedure: "He spent nine months in writing this story and clothed it in words that had a taste in the mouth; * * * then went out and sought the luxury of a Turkish bath."

Readers of some of the current novels feel the need of a bath when they are through with the books, but who would have suspected that the authors felt the same way?

Aristocratic circles of Philadelphia have been put into a state of collapse by a Bidde. A Bidde is not, as ignorant and benighted persons born and reared far from the Quaker City might suppose, an inmate of the zoo, or an automobile, or an infernal machine, or any common, vulgar thing.

It must appear to most men that a primary law which permits a man who belongs to one party to assist in nominating candidates for the other party gives legal sanction to the practice most objected to in the old system of primaries, namely, the packing of those of one party by men who belong to another party.

It seems that the most important object to be attained by primary elections under the sanction of law is that only Republicans shall vote in Republican primaries and only Democrats in those held by the Democratic party.

Nothing so trifling. This astonishing Bidde, "the most eligible bachelor in Philadelphia," had actually gone and married a young woman of family so obscure that the smart set never heard of it, and is boldly and without embarrassment enjoying life with her at Atlantic City.

Anything more awful than this reckless act could hardly happen in the Philadelphia aristocracy. No wonder it is shaken to its profound depths. To think that a Bidde should do so!

THE HUMORISTS. Must Respect the Forms. "Let's go on an play in de sand pile, Pinkie," suggested the dirty-faced little girl.

Abundant Sympathy. "Don't you sympathize with the people who are complaining of high prices?" "I do," answered the monopolist. "It shall never be said that I was derelict in the matter of sympathy."

Such Is Life. The Old Man—Young man, when you take my daughter, I trust you with the dearest treasure of my life. No, I couldn't lend you my auto for a little spin. I value it too highly to risk it in strange hands.

Bad Example. The Moon. McFarrich—Mon, it's awfully late. McCrete yonder's gang clean dirt; aw, see him wif ma sin er e'g's aw' s'xence ta a begar man.

Brave Man. Boston Globe. Employer—Well, what did he say when you called on him? Clerk—That he would break every bone in my body and pitch me out of the window if I showed my face there again.

Came at Last. Philadelphia Inquirer. "I should think you people out here would be cured of the idea by this time that it does any good to pray for changes in the weather," said the tourist from the East.

A Recommendation. Life. A faithful colored servant had recommended a friend to take charge of her mistress's delicate little girl.

There is one thing upon which the widest apart Democrats are agreed, and that is that it is inexpedient for the Democrats to carry the next House.
