Judge Day's Address at Canton-Special Litanies in Catholic Churches -Other Exercises.

Day delivered the chief McKinley memorial day address here to-day in the First Methodist Church, of which the late President was a member and in which the funeral CONDITIONS AT PANAMA was held on Sept. 19, 1901. The only decorations were flowers and a portrait of the late President, around which were the folds of the stars and stripes, emblematic of the patriotic spirit of McKinley.

In addition to the tribute paid by Judge Day, who was secretary of state in Mc-Kinley's Cabinet and a close friend and adviser to the martyred President, there was a general observance of the day in Canton, which claimed him as its own. From almost every pulpit there was reference in prayer or in address to him and his work. His favorite hymns were used.

In the Catholic churches of the city speciai mass was said, tribute was also paid sonally, they could not forbear.

Cemetery was taken this forenoon and she interruption of traffic. laid love's offering of flowers on the casinto the McKinley tomb and also laid a were many visitors at the McKinley vault.

Judge Day's tribute to his martyred chief was in part as follows: "This tragedy which fills our hearts with grief has a lesson for the living, and calls upon lawlation and courts can do for the suppression and punishment of those who teach or lawlessness and ruin."

Alluding to the early life of McKinley, the call of his country to her sons, and at once stepped into the ranks as a defender of the Union. His associates in arms, officers of his regiment, included such lawyers as Hayes and Matthews, and in their companionship, while a valiant soldier, he determined to adopt the legal profession of war."

Speaking of the Spanish-American war, to better the condition of the Cuban people, prise would be too much for his army. to relieve the strain upon our country, and if possible to accomplish these ends without an appeal to arms. These purposes are the key to his Cuban policy, steadily pursued, with much accomplished, when the unlooked-for happened in the treacherous anchoring of the Maine where she became the easy prey of malicious persons bent on her destruction. The President realized that he could no longer hope for a peaceable settlement which did not include the withat Madrid that only such a settlement would be satisfactory, and that no assistance could be afforded to further plans of so-called autonomy under Spanish rule.' William McKinley never consciously wroged a fellow-being," said Judge Day. "It was his rule not only to refrain from inflicting pain, but to scatter joy wherever he could. He would step aside from a march of retreat to assure a weeping mother, who loved the Union, that defeat was but for a day and would be turned into victory. Steadfast in his friendship, he would swerve from loyalty for the glittering prize of the presidency. Enduring the burdens which carge before and during and after the war. ne word of impatience ever escaped him. and he met the people with a smile of welcome and a word of encouragemenet. He would turn from the most important affairs of state to give a flower to a little child, or to say a kindly word to some visitor for whom he could do no more.

"Resentments he had none. He believed life was too short to give any of his time to cherishing animosity. Sensitive to critism, no one ever heard him utter an unkind word of another. He met calumny with silence and unfair criticism with char-His was the gospel of cheerfulness. His presence was sunshine, never gloom: his encouraging word dispefled trouble and nerved others to their duty.

In conclusion the speaker said: "If the youth of the country learn from his life that the surest foundation of the state is upright character and that the path of duty is indeed the way to glory, then may this great life 'live beyond its too short living with praises and thanksgiving' that such a character was given to the world."

sary of the death of William McKinley was generally observed in this city to-day. The pastors in all the churches paid tribute to the memory of the martyred President and the congregations sang his favorite hymns. "Nearer, my God, to Thee," and "Lead, Kindly Light," were sung by the worshipers in small chapels and missions and gloriously intoned on the great organs in the larger churches, seemingly with special significance and fervor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.-The first anniversary of the death of President William McKinley was specially observed to-day in a large number of the churches of this city, while it was alluded to by the pastors of almost all the others. The Rev. Charles L. Thompson preached at the Fifth-avenue Presbyterian Church on "Religious Elements of National Strength." This is the church which President McKinley attended when his visits to this city included Sundays. In this church, as in all the others, the hymns "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer, my God, to Thee," were included in the programme of congregational singing. The sermons were laudatory of the public acts and private character of the dead executive. In the Church of Christ (Christian Scientist). after the programme of reading, a special service was held and Governor Odell's proclamation calling for the observance of the day was read to the congregation.

Dr. Francis Edward Marsten, one of Mr. McKinley's personal friends while pastor of a Columbus, O., Presbyterian Church, and now pastor-elect of the Bethany Presbyterian Church of this city, indulged in many personal reminiscences of the President and spoke of the home life and lovable character of Mr. McKinley. Fifteen thousand persons gathered around the band stand at the Mall in Central Park and Sermons at New York. NEW YORK, Sept. 14 .- The entire congregation of the First Union Presbyterian Church of this city to-night at the service voted on and adopted a resolution calling upon the coal operators and miners to end the strike. The resolution reads in part: "We demand of the contending parties a recognition of the rights of the community and we earnestly request, in the interest of the general welfare, that they at once endeavor to adjust their differences; and we recommend that if they are unable to come to any agreement among themselves they submit the matter for final and peaceful adjustment to arbitration. In his sermon, "Christ and the Religion of the People," the Rev. George C. Lorrimer, pastor of the Madison-avenue Baptist Church, discussed the coal strike. The refusal of the coal operators to agree to arbitration, Dr. Lorrimer said, would awaken the people to speedy action. The entire American people, he declared, should compel the operators to arbitrate, whatever the cost. He summed up the rights and the duties of the operators, and said the strike situation had grown far too serious to talk about rights. Duties to the poor men, women and children in the coal regions were far more important to con-sider. The Rev. John Lloyd Lee, of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, also referred to the coal strike, saying in part: "If those who have large money power in connection with the coal strike would regard | 2 p. m.; Albert J. The Entries in All Departments Said to Be Greater than Ever Before in Fair's History.

HE SAYS EACH DAY'S ATTRACTIONS

WILL BE FIRST CLASS.

The Steam and Electric Roads Have Prepared to Handle Big Crowds-The Week's Programme.

The State fair grounds presented a busy scene yesterday, but there was such a system about getting the exhibits in place and everything in ship-shape for the opening of the Jubilee State Fair to-day that the hustle and excitement so frequently seen on the Sunday prior to the fair was not in evidence.

Thousands of people journeyed to the fair grounds, but they were not admitted unless they possessed an exhibitor's ticket. The crowd inside the grounds was comparatively small and as a consequence the men employed in placing the exhibits in position were not bothered or molested by curious sight-seers.

By nightfall nearly all the exhibits were in place and the finishing touches will be put on this morning, so that the fair can be formally opened at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Such a gathering of exhibits in all departments was never before seen at an Indiana exhibition. So great is the number of entries in every department of the fair that additional buildings had to be constructed and tents were brought into use. The fair grounds yesterday presented the appearance of a white city. The large exhibiting halls had been freshly painted white and scores of tents sheltering displays were located in all parts of the grounds. The rich golden color of the administration building presented a beautiful contrast to the general color scheme of the collection of buildings and tents. LOADS OF EXHIBITS. A steady stream of wagons loaded with exhibits poured in at the main gates during the afternoon. The side tracks of the Monon road were loaded with cars carrying farming implements, cattle and horses for the races and the horse show. Noticing the crowded condition of the exhibiting halls, people wondered where the extra exhibits were to be placed. The exhibitors began arriving early last week, and during the latter part of the week there was a general hustling about the grounds. Nearly all the available space was occupied by poured into the grounds. "We will have the greatest fair in the history of Indiana and the best that will ever be given," was President M. S. Claypool's optimistic manner of predicting a most successful week for the jubilee fair yesterday afternon. His eyes wandered in all directions over the grounds, and he wore a satisfied smile as he looked upon the busy scene about him and the already well-filled exhibiting halls. "Every department of the fair will be larger and more pretentious this year than ever before," continued President Claypool. "The great breeders of the East and West will meet in competition with the The exhibit of Shorthorns and Herefords will be the special attractions in the cattle department, while the Aberdeen Angus cattle display will be the best ever seen in Indiana. David Wallace has personally superintended the cattle department, and he has interested breeders from all parts of the country to send their fine stock to this sota, Iowa, Missouri and all the leading breeding States in the country. "The total premium list for the Hereford exhibit amounts to $2,600 and this has attracted the best breeders. The Hereford Breeding Association offered $1,300 to be distributed in premiums and the State board added $1,300 to the premiums. Hereford Association has worked hard to make the display a notable one. The Shorthorn Breeders' Association offered $1,100 and the State board gave the same amount, making a total of $2,200 for the premiums for that breed of cattle.

ADDITIONAL BUILDINGS. "The state board has an additional cattle barn erected during the summer, but the additional space will not be sufficient to accommodate the exhibits. Five tents will also be needed to show the cat-

"All the available space set aside for exhibiting the show horses has been occupied and we will have to use tents to accommodate the rest of the exhibits in that department. The sheep barns are full and we will have to put many exhibits under tents. An additional barn was built for the exhibit of swine, but we haven't the room and will have to utilize "The implement halls are full and overflowing. Thresher people from all parts of the world have exhibits here. All the available space that could be set aside is being used by manufacturers of carriages, buggles, etc. The art, horticultural, agricultural and poultry departments are crowded and we will have to use tents. The speed department offers the public the best lot of races that have been given at a state fair for a number of years. The track is now in fine condition and with the indications for warmer weather during the week the races should be very exciting. Nearly all the horses entered in the various events are now quartered at the track. A large number arrived last night and more will come to-day. There were many interesting workouts yesterday, although no sensational performances were recorded. The west end of the grounds is again utilized for the sideshows and refreshment halls. A great number of attractions were in place yesterday, including trained wild animal shows, and other attractions that could hardly be named, as the "barkers" were not following their usual vocation yesterday, but were doing the workingman's part in helping to get everything in readiness for the opening to-day.

ATTRACTIONS EVERY DAY. At previous fairs a special day has been known as "Indianapolis day," but Prestdent Claypool said yesterday that every day will be an "Indianapolis day," as well
