for arrears and interest makes the amount seem very large. An appeal still lies to the Supreme Court of the United States, with a probability, however, that the judgment of the state court would be affirmed.

A MOVEMENT TO BE GUARDED AGAINST.

The considerable vote cast by the Socialists in the recent election is attracting some attention. It is claimed that they cast some 400,000 votes throughout the country. This is a small proportion of the total vote, but the fact that it was a considerable increase over that of any former year has some significance.

THE HUMORISTS.

Chicago Post. "I see the scoundrel in your face!" exclaimed the angry man.

"That," replied the other calmly, "is a personal reflection."

"Not at all," replied Skorchner. "I like it best when you're coasting."

"When I'm coasting?"

"Yes, when you keep your feet off the pedals."

Accouted For. Boston Transcript. Martha—That horrid Mr. Roamer kissed me in the hall last night.

Constance—You don't mean it! How did it happen?

Martha—It was pitch dark in the hall and I mistook him for a coat rack.

Constance—Ah, I see. That accounts for it, dear.

Chicago Tribune. Litigant—You are Mr. Nott, the handwriting expert, I believe?

Other Man—Yes, sir.

Litigant—I would like to have you as a witness in the case of...

Other Man—Very pardon, I know what case it is. I am retained on the other side.

Quite Precise. New York Weekly. Mr. Farwell—I met my old schoolmate, Lake-side, to-day, for the first time in an age, and I thought of you that you and he must have had some romance or other before we met.

Mr. Farwell—No romance about it. We were married for a few years, that's all.

ORGANIZED LABOR.

Dr. Lyman Abbott's Treatment of the Topic in the Outlook.

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal. The Outlook of Nov. 22 contains an interesting editorial on the labor question under the head of "The Trust Problem," which is evidently from the pen of the editor-in-chief. It is broad and liberal in its tone, with characteristic incongruities liberally scattered through it.

But a stronger than any personal reason for placing the names of candidates for Congress on the state ticket is that they are representatives of the State in the federal Congress. Their election by districts is for convenience merely. The theory of the Constitution is that Congress is an assembly representing the whole population of the country, as if it were all in one great State.

But a stronger than any personal reason for placing the names of candidates for Congress on the state ticket is that they are representatives of the State in the federal Congress. Their election by districts is for convenience merely.

There is nothing to prevent a State from electing all its representatives in Congress at large, or by vote of the whole people, if it sees fit to do so. The district system of election is convenient, and it has the advantage that the candidates are likely to be better known by their neighbors than if they were elected at large, but it is not obligatory.

Without discussing the merits of the case against the Vandalla Railroad Company, which has just been decided by the Supreme Court, it is worthy of note that the clause in the original charter of the road under which the suit was brought is one of the earliest instances on record of a State demanding an equivalent for a franchise.

BERNHARDT NOT A JEWESS.

The Great Sarah Tells of Her Birth and Says She is a Christian.

New York Sun. The Staatsburger Zeitung and some other German journals recently claimed that Sarah Bernhardt was the daughter of a Frankfort Jewess; that she passed the first portion of her youth in that city, the home of her mother. Some of the French papers denied the story with little or no comment. The story was picked up by a blushing mad. She picked up her pen, wishing to be a hater, and, in a Mme. Naton, wrote a long and interesting article.

they still felt for the North and its institutions. One impassioned speaker said that the healthy board excluded from school was she gave him but one admission. "I told him," she said, "that if he should receive a vote from women and children, he left me to take care of the Northern body and die in his holes that color of gray in the world. He fought against the convention and said that the women carried Confederate flags and waved them over the orator."

their children to be vaccinated, in school or out, and the children were, upon order of the health board, excluded from school. The report refers to the Harrison day exercises; the course of lectures upon pedagogic subjects for the teachers by the Principals' Club, a voluntary organization, and the essays written by pupils for the Commercial and Municipal Schools. The report then alludes to the school accommodations and mentions the increased accommodations provided during the year. Dwellings were pressed into service, and in nearly all cases the rooms were small, ill-shaded, poorly lighted, inadequately ventilated and generally inconvenient.

SCHOOL BOARD ROUTINE.

A New Disposition to Be Made of the Grogg Fund.

The session of the School Board last night, outside of the acceptance of Superintendent Kendall's report, was taken up with ordinary business. On the recommendation of the superintendent, Blanche C. Williams was appointed a teacher in the McCulloch school and J. M. Ashby in the evening schools.
