Fremont's Withdrawal.

General Frewort's withdrawal, remarks that i was a necessity imposed upon him by the progress of events, but his siding at last with Mr. LINCOLN against the Democratic party is not consistent with his letter of acceptance. Now, for the first time since '76, the question of constitution liberty has been brought directly before the people for their serious consideration and vote. The ordinary rights secured under the Constitution and the laws of the country have been violated, and extraordinary powers have before the people now to hav whether or not the principles established by the Revolution are worth

It, as we have been f ight to believe, those guarantees for liberty a made the distinctive also and glory of or.. . hery are in truth inviolably sacred, then there must be a protest against the arbitrary violation which had not even the excuse of necessity. The sebism is made by those who force the choice between a shameful silence or a protest against wrong. In such con-siderations originated the Cleveland Convention. It was among its objects to arouse the attention of the people to such acts, and to bring them to soil with the best blood of the country in th name of liberty, we have really parted with military dictation, without its unity of action and vigor of execution. Ad administration marked at home by disregard of constitutional rights, by its violations of personal liberty and the liberty of the press, and, as a crowning shame, by its abandonment of the right of asylum, a right especial ly dear to all free nations abroad Its course has been characterized by a feebleness and want of principle which has misled European powers and driven them to a belief that only commercial in terests and personal aims are concerned, and that no great principles are involved in the issue. The admirable conduct of the people, their readiness to make every sacrifice demanded of them, their silence and forbearance under the suspension of everything that could be suspended, their many acts of heroism and sacrifices, were all rendered fruitless by the incapacity, or, to speak more exactly, by the personal ends for which the war was managed. This incapacity and selfish ness naturally produced such results as led the European powers, and logically enough, to the conviction that the North, with its greatly superior population, its immense resources and its credit, will never be able to recover the South. Sympathies which should have been with us from the outset of the war were turned against us, and in this way the Administration has done the country a double wrong abroad. It created hostility, or at least indifference, among those who would have been its friends if the real interests of the people should have been better known, while, at the same time, it neglected no checks. occasion for making the most humiliating con-
