

THE NEW ORLEANS DAILY CRESCENT, OFFICE NO. 92 ST. CHARLES STREET.

FOR THE WEEK END, THE CRESCENT WILL BE PUBLISHED ON SATURDAY AND SUNDAY.

WHIG TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS, FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.

THOMAS G. MACKAY, Parish Plaquemine.

ABOVE CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, THODORE G. HUNT, of Orleans.

THIRD CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, PRESTON FORD, Jr., of East Feliciana.

FOURTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, JOHN BLAIR SMITH, of Natchitoches.

FIFTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, JOHN E. KING, of St. Landry.

SIXTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, JOHN N. HAWTHORN, of Orleans.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF THE PUBLIC EDUCATION, A. H. LAMON, of West Baton Rouge.

STATE LEGISLATURE—FIFTH OF ORLEANS, M. C. EDWARDS, JULIUS LAYVERNE.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE, H. H. SUMMERS, I. W. CAMPBELL.

SECOND REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, JAMES BROWN, ROBERT M. KARNNEY.

THIRD REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, H. J. LAUNDREAU, J. H. WINGFIELD.

FOURTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

FIFTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

SIXTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

SEVENTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

EIGHTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

NINTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

TENTH REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT, J. H. WINGFIELD, J. H. WINGFIELD.

FOR SENATOR, JAMES P. FRERET.

FOR GOVERNOR, JOHN YOUNES.

FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT, JOHN WOLFE.

DOINGS OF THE DISAFFECTED.

No little consternation was created among the leaders of the democratic whigs and factions down town, when yesterday information reached them that Mr. Thos. G. Mackay, the whig candidate for Congress from the First District, had declined running.

What must have been their consternation when they learned that Mr. Mackay, unambitious of the reputation of obtaining only a respectable vote, had abandoned the canvass leaving the field to be contested by Mr. Gayarre—a gentleman in many points not objectionable to the whigs, and who had before secured a very strong detachment of the disaffected who had determined to vote for him in opposition to the candidate of the ruling clique?

But bugle to the side, there is more in the retirement of Mr. Mackay and the persistence of Mr. Gayarre than our opponents are willing to admit. He is no hide-bound democrat, but on the contrary, a man of liberal views, and is extremely favorable to the whigs. He would not, if elected, impose a tariff for the protection of the sugar interests. In the matter of the establishment of a navy yard in New Orleans, he would not stand idly in the House, after a bill for the purpose had passed the Senate, and from mere inertia and inattention permit it to fall still-born, as was done by his predecessor.

With all these favorable qualities in the scale against the legal hero of Mr. Dunbar, a gentleman by the by whom we would delight to honor, we can not hesitate to fix our choice upon Mr. Gayarre.

OH, TEMPORA! OH, MORES! We have taken occasion heretofore to refer to the fact that there are suspicious circumstances attending the proceedings of the Sixth District Court in conferring papers of naturalization upon persons desiring to become citizens; and in doing so, we have intimated the general belief that illegality to an alarming extent had been resorted to in the present number of applicants, in the shortest possible space of time, in having done so, we were actuated by no motives of ill will towards the actors in these unlawful proceedings, but called attention to the facts as journalists, feeling ourselves obligated to warn the public of whatever occurrences that might tend to a trenching upon their privileges.

What we have intimated to be a democratic meeting, was held on Friday last, in John Gullion's coffee-house, in the Third District, in order to bring out other candidates in opposition to the regular business for the offices to be filled in the District at the ensuing election. Sixty-five men (say sixty-five) were gathered at that meeting, mostly Irishmen, who could not stomach the idea that the District Convention had not all Irishmen, and them exclusively, on the ticket.

In order that both sides of a vexed question may be heard, we give place to the following communication. [The Editor of the Crescent:] I note an article in your issue of this date which is calculated to place in an unfavorable light, with respect to the whigs, the conduct of the Council, in relation to the consideration of a public work, which you admit to be of great importance.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is precisely the moral condition of the masses at the present, that prevailed in the era previous to the downfall of the greatest Republic of ancient times. Including within its limits an immense and heterogeneous population, unenfranchised in manners as they were debased in intellect, they were the advocates of every fresh innovation in the established form of government, and were ready to follow the lead of any daring demagogue who could minister to their appetite for excitement, or flatter their hopes of spoil.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.

It is not our intention to enter into a long and weary controversy with you, but to point out a few of the errors which you have committed, and to show that the whigs are not the enemies of the public good, as you represent them to be.