PLAQUEMINE REVIDIVUS!

The word Plaqueimine has become notorious throughout the country, as a synonym of fraud upon the eligible franchise. Wherever and whenever it is mentioned, an expression of disgust or mortification fills over the countenances of honest men.

We have taken occasion to say, several times, that a repetition of these frauds would be prevented. They will be prevented, just as sure as they are contemplated, and that they are contemplated, we are just as sure as we are of our own existence.

The coloring process is going on gradually, not by the steamboat load, as in former halcyon times—the steamboats, possibly being required for the transportation of the better citizens to St. Tammany and Livingston—particularly St. Tammany, the people of which parish we again warn to be on their guard.

The coloring process, although gradual, is none the less corrupt and dangerous. In fact, it is pure demagoguery, and should stimulate our friends in Plaquemine to unusual exertions to protect their parish from the inroads of foreign, would-be purporting voters.

Gangs of foreigners, principally Irish, are continually finding their way into the parish of Plaquemine. Adjoining, or not far off from the plantation of one of the American candidates, is a crowd of about one hundred!

Now, in this a pretty state of affairs—in fact, a decidedly untenable state of affairs—state affairs very becoming an American parish, having laws for its own guidance, and a legal population to enforce and obey those laws.

We understand, also, that up to the latest information there were about one hundred and fifty more foreigners scattered about the neighborhood of the various precincts! This would make some two hundred and fifty votes in all, supposing these people only voted once, but as they have a proclivity to vote an indefinite number of times whenever the opportunity presents itself, there is no telling to how high a figure the vote would swell were they permitted to vote at all.

Now, for a few plain words to these people, to those who sent them to their friends, if they have any, and to all upholders of law, order, the purity of the ballot-box, and the public peace. We speak in all earnestness and sincerity. These men are not entitled to vote. They have gone on a fraudulent mission, which has for its object the trampling under foot of every principle a freeman holds sacred.

Let none of our readers fail to peruse the article headed as above, to be found in another column. It proves conclusively two or three propositions: 1st. That because Benedict Arnold was a native traitor, all natives are not necessarily tainted with treason.

2d. That because Lafayette was a glorious patriot and friend of liberty, it does not follow that all foreigners are patriots or friends of liberty. 3d. That because some foreigners are adopted citizens have shown themselves as true as steel, and have rendered good service to the country, it does not follow that this nation would have been any thing at all but for the skill, intellect and self-sacrificing devotion of the natives of the soil.

We epine the examiner after truth will come to those very same conclusions, after reading over carefully the article to which we have referred. Again, we ask for it an attentive perusal.

For obvious reasons, which every responsible gentleman will readily understand, the junior editor of the Crescent has no reply to make to a communication which appeared in the Courier of yesterday, headed "To the Public." Neither would he have replied to it, if instead of an unwarrantable use of his name, the same parties had coupled it with disgrace instead of falsehood. When parties so using it are worthy of notice, a solitary meagre notice will suffice for a truthful and explicit answer.

A band of glorious American patriots, while passing up Camp Street last evening, halted in front of our office and gave the "Crescent" twice three rousing cheers. Thanks, gentlemen, for the compliment. Would we could have been with you! It would have been far more pleasant, we assure you. But our aching eyes, head and body, had another task to perform, and so the gratification was denied us. Go on, gentlemen! Yours is as noble a cause as that which led our revolutionary fathers on to victory, and is worthy equal sacrifices.

It is supposed by many that the Assessors for the city of New Orleans are elected by districts. Such is not the case; they are elected by general ticket—are voted for all over the city—and when elected they form a Board of Assessors.

ANTI-AMERICAN REASONING.

The Courier, yesterday, contains an elaborate article from which we shall quote with the view of connecting together a series of paragraphs and whole sentences, which explain our position on this subject.

But when the wise and logical Crescent goes on to say that any information we may have is available and obtained from traitors, we beg leave to deny its inference. The question is not whether we have information, but whether we are bound to disclose it.

It strikes us the Courier has made admissions in the foregoing which are fatal to its cause, and very damaging to its character as a newspaper. We will proceed to demonstrate our position.

The Courier objects that the anti-American has had the American Ritual in their possession! No other inference can be drawn from the language used, with respect to the ritual. Then it says that the American Ritual had been secured by an "agent," and that it was "produced by the leader at a New Orleans meeting."

Now, are these points involved, and they all intricate and subtle points. "The American Ritual." This is not, as the Courier says, a book, but a set of forms, and was made up by the honest, frank, and patriotic, and was used by the honest, frank, and patriotic.

But, it was obtained dishonestly, and righteously as we do that our neighbor of the Courier, who has always respected, while conferring to a knowledge of the "Ritual," fails to mention it, at the same time charging the author of the ritual with being "a self-confessed traitor."

To this "Ritual," Judge Derbigny, Major Hulff, Col. Darville, all the American candidates, ourselves, and a large majority of the legal voters of New Orleans and Louisiana, were allowed to see, and we were allowed to see, and we were allowed to see, and we were allowed to see.

Before the Courier makes any more charges against American candidates, which "hundreds of Democrats" have read and are not disposed to believe, we would advise it to publish the names of the "traitors" who are the authors of the ritual. Don't keep the people in the dark. Don't buy your candidate under a false name. Don't try to make the people believe that a traitor is a friend of the country.

But the Courier makes no more charges against American candidates, which "hundreds of Democrats" have read and are not disposed to believe, we would advise it to publish the names of the "traitors" who are the authors of the ritual. Don't keep the people in the dark. Don't buy your candidate under a false name. Don't try to make the people believe that a traitor is a friend of the country.

For instance: The Article charge, and have continued to charge from the opening of the canvass up to the present moment, the same charge, and we are opposed to Catholics. In vain, we pointed to the names of Catholics and respectable Catholics—Charles Desha, who heads our State ticket, as a practical and triumphant refutation of the false and calumnious charge.

And at this time they have been protesting unceasing devotion to Catholics—have set themselves up as special defenders of a faith not assailed or endangered—when they took special pains to calumniate Catholics from their State ticket, so far as any office of importance or eminence was concerned.

While they publish the reports and reply upon the state of the Republic, and upon the rights of the American and invariable—romances from the ranks of the American, perhaps—to give color to allegations proven to be false, they beg to be assured, encourage, give countenance to, and do not do so, pay for, the testimony of those who would not be counted as honest and true men.

These in want of housekeeping articles are referred to the advertisement of L. A. Levy, Jr., use of fish China sets, Britannia ware, etc., at 10 o'clock this morning.

SAM IN ALGERS!

GREAT ENTHUSIASM ON THE RIGHT BANK! Seven Speakers in the Field! The final grand rally of the American party in Algeria, previous to the election, was held last night.
