NEW ORLEANS:

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 15, 1858.

Particulars of Foreign News.

PER STEAMSHIP ATLANTIC.

The steamship Atlantic left Liverpool on the 23d ult. and reached New York on the 5th inst., bringing four days later intelligence.

A false report having found its way into some of the English papers, to the effect that the steamship Atlantic, on her outward trip, had passed the Vanderbilt in a disabled state off Queenstown, Capt. Eldridge, in a letter to the Underwriters' Association of Liverpool, says:

"Had the Atlantic seen the Vanderbilt in such a condition, she would not have left her until she had assisted her safely into harbor. I cannot understand whence the report has arisen, as the Atlantic left the Vanderbilt in New York, not intending to leave for some months. At first my report obtained great publicity, and may occasion some anxiety, I will thank you to contradict it."

Great Britain.

President Buchanan's Message attracted great attention in England. It was telegraphed entire from Liverpool to some of the London journals, being the longest dispatch ever sent by telegraph in England.

The London Times, in its review of the message, confines itself to two topics—the financial crisis and the Central American question. It construes Mr. Buchanan's remarks on the latter subject into a hitch in the monetary system of England, and recommends them to the attention of its readers, that they may see how the system of currency, which has been so pertinaciously attacked at home, is viewed by the most enlightened men of another country. On the Central American question the Times says:

"We have much pleasure in receiving the assurance from Mr. Buchanan that the interests of the two countries are identical, being confined to securing a safe transit over all the routes across the Isthmus.

"Let the American Government give proof of this, and we are sure that matters will be speedily settled. Common sense must tell the Americans that in these questions we are strictly on the defensive, and the most lukewarm partisan in England cannot deny the conciliatory spirit in which she has treated them. But we can hardly be asked to give up the treaty of 1850, without a guarantee that all its important provisions shall be re-enacted, and the whole series of irritating disputes brought forever to an end."

The London Morning Post lauds the message generally, and says:

"The great State paper, both from the friendly spirit which it breathes to foreign nations, from the determination which it expresses to put down the arch-heresy of Mormonism and to repress the iniquities of filibusterism, is highly creditable to the moderation, judgment and public spirit of Mr. Buchanan."

The Daily News praises the frankness of the foreign policy of the President, and says that:

"In tone and feeling, as regards England, nothing can be more unobjectionable than the language of Mr. Buchanan's message."

It also endorses his views on the commercial crisis, but says that the shuffling tone of the message on the affairs of Kansas is in painful contrast with the frank and manly tone of that portion which treats of foreign policy.

Further attempts to launch the Leviathan were postponed until the spring tides at the commencement of January. The hydraulic power was to be more than doubled. The ship remained even and fair on the ways, and at high-tide had nearly 6 feet of water under her.

Rumors of ministerial changes were again in circulation. The London Advertiser understands that Mr. Vernon Smith will succeed to the Control, and be succeeded by Sir C. Wood; and that should Mr. Smith retire, his patron, the Marquis of Lansdowne, will probably withdraw from ministerial life.

Mr. James Coppock, the celebrated parliamentary agent, is dead.

The London Times continues its agitation in favor of importing free labors in the West Indian Islands.

The marriage treaty of the Princess Royal of England with the Prince of Prussia had been signed by the Prussian Minister and Lord Clarendon, and also by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS.—In London on the 19th the funds were quite buoyant under the favorable returns of the bank, money was easier, and 2½ per cent was the best paper in the discount market, and at 4 to 6 per cent on the stock exchange.

At Hamburg, a further recovery of confidence was reported, and the rate of discount for the best paper receded to between 5 and 6 per cent.

The suspension of Messrs. Schwabe & Co. of Glasgow was announced. Liabilities, £30,000.

On Monday, the 21st, there was increased buoyancy on the London Stock Exchange, under the influence of the large arrival of specie from New York and the news of the rapid recovery going on at Hamburg. Consols, railroad shares and other securities shared in the upward movement.

On the Stock Exchange loans were obtainable with ease at 5 per cent. At the Bank the demand continued the same in the discount market the rate for best bills receded to 8 per cent.

The suspension of Messrs. Klingender Brothers of Liverpool was announced. Liabilities about £340,000.

A deputation from the Governments of Sweden and Norway had arrived in London with a view of obtaining financial aid to the extent of (it was supposed) £500,000, with which to prevent the permanent break-up of some of the principal establishments which have lately failed in these countries.

LATER.—(By Telegraph from London.)—Consols fluctuated somewhat on Tuesday, the 22d, but finally closed at an advance, the latest sales being made at 93¼ to 93¾.

The money market was still easier; good bills were sought after at 8 per cent., and in some few instances they were done at 7½.

The Times' (city article dated Tuesday evening) says: "Little doubt is entertained that when the Bank determines to reduce their rate of discount it will be to 8 per cent., and the probability now is that even that step will speedily have to be followed by another of a similar kind, although the state of the market would apparently justify it at once. Some uncertainty is expressed as to the movement being made on Thursday next, owing to the desirableness of accumulating a large reserve before the payment of the dividends. There is no question, however, in any quarter that it will be announced before the close of the year.

At a meeting of the Joint Stock Banks Committee it was resolved to recommend a reduction to 6 per cent. of the interest allowed on deposits.

The suspension was announced of Charles Nicholson & Co., warehousemen, London—liabilities rather large; also of Lee & Brothers, picture dealers and exporters to the United States—liabilities stated; and of William Reid, wholesale grocer, Edinburgh—liabilities £30,000. The bills were likewise returned of Pinto, Basto & Co., Spanish merchants, and Van Specht, foreign merchant,—liabilities small.

The Bank continues to accumulate gold in large quantities. Over £200,000 was received on the 22d.

At Hamburg the rate for best bills ranges from 4 to 6 per cent.

The rebound in consols from the lowest point in October has been equal to 7½ per cent., and it has been rather more rapid than in 1847.

THE CROWN JEWELS.—We find the following in a letter from Hanover, of Dec. 19:

"The hearts of the King and royal family of this country have been much rejoiced by intelligence which has just reached them through the Hanoverian Minister at the Court of St. James, that the long dispute between the King of Hanover and the Queen of England respecting the right of certain jewels of enormous value, the possession of the Sovereign of England, and forming a considerable portion of what have been hitherto called the British Crown jewels, has been decided in favor of Hanover. Many of your readers are no doubt aware that when the Kingdom of Hanover was severed from the United Kingdom by the accession of Queen Victoria to the throne, a claim was made by the late King of Hanover, formerly Duke of Cumberland, to nearly the whole of the jewels usually worn on State occasions by the English Sovereign, on the ground that a number of them, which had been taken over to England by George I, belonged inalienably to the Crown of Hanover, and that the remainder had been purchased by George III out of his privy purse, and had been left by him and his Queen Charlotte to the royal family of Hanover.

"As the jewels thus claimed are supposed to be worth considerably more than £1,000,000, a single stone having cost nearly £29,000, they were not to be relinquished without a struggle; and I am assured that every possible expedient was resorted to by England to baffle the claimant. Ultimately, in the time of the late King, the importunity of the Hanoverian Minister in London drove the English Ministry of the day to consent that the right of the Sovereign should be submitted to a Commission composed of three English Judges; but the proceedings of the Commission were so ingeniously protracted that all the Commissioners died without arriving at any decision; and until Lord Clarendon renewed the suit on the part of Hanover after all the efforts of the Court of Hanover to obtain a fresh Commission were vain. Lord Clarendon, however, seems to have perceived that such attempts to stifle inquiry were unworthy of his country, for he consented that a fresh Commission should be issued to three English Judges of the highest eminence who, after investigation, found the Hanoverian claim to be indisputably just, and reported in its favor. The Court here consequently is in high glee this Christmas at the prospect of removing the Crown and regalia, so jealously guarded in the Tower of London, almost bodily to Hanover." [London Globe.

France.

The extraordinary trial of Madame de Jenfosse, her two sons and her gamekeeper, for the murder of M. Guillot, had terminated in the acquittal of all the prisoners. The affair was a very complicated one, and attracted great attention throughout France.

It was stated (but contradicted by the Patrie) that the Emperor, in consequence of representations made by England, had consented to submit the question of the exportation of negroes from Africa to the French colonies to a conference to be held in London.

It was expected that the Bank of France would lower their rate of discount to 5 per cent. before the end of the year.

In Paris, on the 22d, the funds closed at 67.70 for money, 67f accounts.

The French ships-of-war intended for China were appointed to leave Toulon between the 20th and 25th of December, and would proceed direct to Hong-Kong with 500 troops on board. The projected expedition to Cochin China is understood to be adjourned.

Commercial affairs in Paris had slightly improved. Spirits had risen in price since the imposition of a duty on foreign brandies. Wheat and flour had slightly declined.

Spain.

The Espano of Madrid denounces, with some vehemence, the supposed projects of the United States against Cuba, and accuses President Buchanan of personally encouraging them. With regard to the proposition for purchasing the island, which, it says, the new Minister of the United States who is about to arrive in Madrid is expected to make, the Espano declares that Spain cannot entertain it without dishonor. That the United States will seize the first opportunity, either "by piratical expeditions or exciting insurrections, or any other mode what'ever," of possessing themselves of the Island, the Espano does not doubt, and it compiains that under such circumstances the Government displays a great want of caution, and an inexplicable security.

Switzerland.

The Swiss Federal Council has officially laid before the authorities of the Canton de Vaud the question of the cession of the Vallee Dappes to France.

Germany.

The intelligence from Germany still represents the financial embarrassments as very great, although it was thought that the crisis was decidedly approaching to its termination.

The reduction of the Austrian army was proceeding with great rapidity.

In view of the fact that it was unlikely that the King of Prussia would be able to resume his governing functions at the expiration of the three months during which the Prince of Prussia was appointed to the conduct of affairs, the question of how the Government should be carried on was claiming attention. Official communications from Berlin represent that it had not been decided to create a regency, and it was supposed that "extraordinary powers" would be conferred on the Prince of Prussia.

Naples.

The Neapolitan Government has declared the steamer Cagliari to be a fair prize of war. The Minister of Foreign Affairs has published a statement supporting this view. The English prisoners are included in the impeachment, to be tried immediately.

An earthquake took place on the night of the 17th throughout the whole Kingdom of Naples, but its effects were most severe in the towns of Salerno, Potenza and Nola. At Salerno the walls of the houses were rent from top to bottom. Numerous villages were half destroyed. In the Provinces of Basilicata and on the main land, the dead (says the dispatch) are reckoned at several thousands. This is considered an exaggeration. The authorities had erected huts for the houseless families.

The City of Naples experienced three violent shocks, and the population had encamped in the open country. The northern parts were exempt.

Russia.

An imperial decree had been issued, providing for the partial enfranchisement of the serfs. The decree institutes very important changes in the relations between the peasantry and landed proprietors of the country.

A SCRIPTURAL MOTTO.—Down at St. Genevieve is an old stone church, and built to last a thousand years. The sculptor was directed to engrave above the grand entrance this passage of Scriptures: "My house is the house of prayer." And so he did; but having read the Evangelists to some purpose, he went steadily on with the chisel and graver and completed the verse, adding to the part already in the work, when it was discovered by the architect, who ordered him to fill up the offending clause with cement. This done, the beautiful inscription was read of all men: "My house is the house of prayer." But as the years went on, even like the writing on the wall with an unseen hand, new words appeared one day, and the passage ran, "My house is the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves." Then the plaster fell, and there the picture like the White Nile, was lost to view. The months elapsed, and with the sentence, still the wonder grew, as the cement fell out particle by particle: "My house is the house of prayer, and ye have made it"—another writer finished up the work—"a den of thieves!" [B. F. Taylor.

Gainsborough was once examined as a witness on a trial respecting the originality of a picture, and a counsellor endeavored to puzzle him by saying, "I observe you lay great stress on a 'painter's eye;' what do you mean by that expression?" "A painter's eye," answered Gainsborough, "is to him what a lawyer's tongue is to yourself."
