

THE ELECTION—THE POLICE.

We notice that several of our contemporaries seem disposed to find fault with the Police because the members thereof did not put down the various rows, important and otherwise, which occurred at some of the election precincts of the First District on Monday last.

For their special information and enlightenment of the public generally, we will simply state, in the first place, that there was no City Police in New Orleans on the day named, and that there could have been no City Police, the paramount authority of the State having suspended their functions absolutely, so far as all matters pertaining to the election were directly or indirectly concerned.

The duties and powers of the Superintendent of Elections are unambiguously and rigidly defined in the 10th section of the "Act Relative to Elections in the Parish of Orleans," approved as aforesaid. That section reads in this wise:

Section 10. Be it further enacted, etc. That it shall be the duty of said Superintendent of Elections to take charge of and superintend, under the control of the Central Board of Commissioners, and in the execution of all other parts of the laws relating to the parish of Orleans and city of New Orleans, for the election of the General Government, members of Congress, Parish or Municipal officers, and for any other office, Federal, State, Parish or Municipal, whose election devolves upon the people; to prescribe and arrange the hours to be observed from the polls to preserve tranquility and order during elections; to prevent and suppress riots, tumult, violence, disorder and any improper practice tending to the intimidation of voters, or the disturbance of elections, and, in general, to take care that all elections are so conducted as to be free, fair and honest, and that the rights, franchises and constitutional rights of the citizen shall not be impaired or defeated by violence, tumult, intimidation or other improper practices.

Also, the provisions of the foregoing law, with a grain of common sense or candor can be found which will say that the police of this city, who have been so generally and so justly praised for their efficiency and good conduct in the past, were in the slightest degree blameable for not suppressing the few disturbances which exclusively occurred in the First District, to mar the harmony and good feeling which, as a general thing, prevailed throughout the city.

The police were powerless; they could not make a legal arrest; the election law disarmed them for the time being, and took all, every particle of power out of their hands, and placed it in the hands of the Superintendent of Elections and his Deputies. The whole section we have quoted above is as rigid as iron in its arbitrary enactments, and as comprehensive in its length as the language would allow it to go.

If the Superintendent of Elections and his Deputies fail to discharge their sworn duty in the most efficient manner, it is their own fault, and not that of the law. If they fail to preserve tranquility and prevent violence, tumult, intimidation, or other improper practices, it is the fault of a Police Department rendered powerless for the time by the supreme law of the Legislature—who have been directed of every law of legitimate authority by the same power which created and which can abolish the Police of New Orleans? Of course not.

We have been thus particular in this matter to show that no blame, either direct or indirect, can be made to prejudice it in the minds of the unprejudiced and investigating. Blotted out of existence for the time being by the supreme law of the State, it could only look on and regret—not act.

Within a few years we believe there will not be a finer "patch" of city on the continent than up town New Orleans. There is no prettier piece of city now than this, with its pleasant and elegant residences unobscured in the luxuriance of tropical vegetation, and its charming and beautiful urban aspects; but there are a few "back" blocks which enterprise must join hand with capital in mitigating. The enclosures are delightful when you are in them, but at some times, in some seasons, you get to hate them, or rather how to get to them, is the question, for the streets approaching them may be "hogsheads of despair," with their accumulations of mud, the residences and their immediate surroundings standing in a sea of mire.

It is a short-sighted economy, for we believe there is no better investment for money than square blocks laid in a growing part of the city. Every dollar put into square blocks in a city with such a soil as New Orleans has pays ten, fifteen or twenty per cent. in the consequent appreciation of property. A square block pavement makes a street popular, unimproved property is rapidly bought up and buildings command higher rates. Large owners of property in the upper part of the city, the property fronting on the main streets, have been paying taxes on it for so many years that they have almost equalled the amount of its appreciation while in their hands, and there is yet no prospect of its coming into favor; whereas, were the streets improved, the judicious expenditure would soon be many times repaid, for "a tide of emigration," so to speak, would set toward them and the property would be rapidly taken up in single lots or larger quantities at high prices.

Some wealthy residents up town object to having the streets paved on which they live, on the ground that they will become noisy and dusty thoroughfares, and they prefer a quiet life to having their property increased in value. It is true, that if only one street in a dozen were to be thus improved it would become a noisy thoroughfare; but we do not advocate any such partial paving. We go for general paving, and we think that then no street will be more so thoroughly paved than another, because of the superiority of road-way. However, the number of those who fancy quiet life is stronger than for making money, and if the majority who differ with them only second their own sentiments by practically recognizing the excellence of square block pavements as investments, up-town will be the finest as well as the prettiest "patch" of city on the continent.

TALK ON CHANGE.

The talk yesterday was of a diversified character. It is really laughable to hear some of the denizens of our metropolis talking as though the war in Europe would be of a very brief duration; or to a long talk about this absorbing question, we assume the point that no opinion, not even of the most shrewd, intelligent, talented and best informed citizen can be received of the progress, length, or duration of hostilities; and to enter into large commercial or financial investments, under the expectation that peace will follow after two or three battles, would be one of the wildest and most preposterous moves of the age.

The telegraph must be credited for an attempt to connect a shipping agent with the telegraph office. The London Times calls the engagement at Montevideo a fitful truce. The Thunderer is about right once. The engagement cannot be called even that. In the meantime, the talk is that it is astonishing that well-informed persons, merchants, can construe the intelligence received by the City of Washington as possessing ameliorating features. Cotton held the quotations of the week ending the 21st May; and it will be well to note that the cotton market is very quiet, but we hope the next advice will quote an advance. The gathering on Carondelet street were as large as usual at this season of the year, with the main talk being about the late failure in New York, for which King Cotton has to stand the reproach, or possibly the actors and promoters of the war in Europe can assume the charges. The correspondence received yesterday's mail was anything but favorable; but our community is not to be frightened by a half dozen failures in New York, nor three scores or more in London, with a great excitement on the Paris Bourse. We are becoming familiarized with almost daily flaming proclamations of the telegraph. While the talk was going on a few showers of rain passed over, which, it is hoped, cooled the ardor and retarded the inditing of falsehoods by letter writers to the detriment of our city.

The police were powerless; they could not make a legal arrest; the election law disarmed them for the time being, and took all, every particle of power out of their hands, and placed it in the hands of the Superintendent of Elections and his Deputies. The whole section we have quoted above is as rigid as iron in its arbitrary enactments, and as comprehensive in its length as the language would allow it to go.

The Nicaragua Route to be Opened.—Senator Jones, the Nicaragua Minister, was to leave for home on the steamer of the 5th to make arrangements with his government for the settlement of the Transit difficulty in order that the route may be opened by October 1st. A letter from the Secretary of the Nicaragua Steamship Company, dated May 25th, says that corporation that the Administration will protect its interests against any arbitrary action of the part of Nicaragua. This intimation of a show of teeth will materially aid the force of Senator Jones' representations to his government.
