From the Hawaiian Islands.

The bark Yankee arrived at San Francisco on the 13th ult., bringing news from Honolulu to the 8th.

The Alta California publishes a letter, from which we extract the following:

The American Guano Company have taken possession of Jarvis Island, and named it Williams' Island. It has a large amount of guano on it.

The schooner Far West, Capt. Porter, will run between here and Baker's Island, in the employ of the American Guano Company, the same as the Jennie Humphrey, employed in the same capacity to Jarvis Island. As both these islands are now colonized, we will be hereafter they being supplied with the necessary material, this interchange of intercourse is highly desirable.

Since my last, the masters of whale ships have been very busy procuring recruits, shipping their men and closing their accounts, preparatory to their leaving for their several seasons' cruising, either leaving for their several seasons' cruising, either leaving for their several seasons' cruising, either
