TUESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 25, 1860.

AUCTION SALES THIS DAY.

E. Roger & Co. sell at 10 o'clock, at Nos. 45 and 47 Old Levee street, between Customhouse and Bienville streets, a large assortment of dry goods, etc.

Gardner Smith & Co. sell at 10½ o'clock, No. 246 Gravier street, between Carondelet and Baronne, etc.

☞ Particulars in advertisements under auction heads, 3d page.

☞ We are indebted to Mr. J. J. McKeever and his gentlemanly assistants for dates in advance of the mail.

☞ Somebody has taken, carried off from this office, the Cincinnati Price Current of the 12th inst., containing the annual review of the commerce of that city. Bring it back, we want it.

HAS ARRIVED.—We are happy in being enabled to chronicle the arrival of our friend, Dr. Clarke, the avant-courrier of Rumsey & Newcomb's Campbell Minstrels. "Pidlo" looks about one year younger than he did last season, and as handsome as ever. We know what's coming when we see him, for he goes ahead and blazes the track for the greatest troupe of music makers and funny fellows that ever took a town by storm. They were good enough for anybody last season, but the Doctor says that they are even better this, having received sundry accessions in number and talent. They open at the Academy of Music on Monday next, and if the thousands of people who will be in attendance look sharp about the auditorium and office, they may possibly get a glimpse of the Doctor, which, though an attraction not in the bills, there will be no extra charge for, even if it is worth any price.

KENTUCKY BELL AND EVERETT CLUB.—This is the name of a new club, which has just been organized, and meets at No. 215 Magnolia street, in the Second Ward. The list of officers is advertised in another column. Hurrah for Old Kaintuck, the State that has already barraded for Bell.

EVERETT GUARD, FOURTH DISTRICT.—At the next regular meeting of the Everett Guard of the Fourth District, the fair and patriotic young ladies of the Garden District will present a banner to that fine association of gallant gentlemen. All clubs connected with the cause are invited to attend, by notice published in this morning's Crescent.

CONSTITUTION CLUB.—See the notice of Mr. Secretary Cenas, published by order of President Duplantier, that the club known by the glorious name "Constitution" will hold its weekly meeting at the Orleans Ball-room at 7½ o'clock this evening.

MINUTE MEN OF '60.—The vigilant Minute Men of '60 are elsewhere notified to attend a special meeting of their body, which will be held at their hall, corner of Nayades and Polymnia street, at 7½ o'clock this evening.

CARD OF THANKS.—See the card of Mississippi Fire Company No. 2, acknowledging certain grateful considerations presented for their services by Messrs. John Henderson and H. A. Schuermann.

CITY RAILROAD.—J. L. James, Esq., engineer and superintendent of the City Railroad, advertises for proposals for furnishing lumber of quality and in quantity and in manner duly specified. See his publication.

MORFAT'S RESTAURANT.—Bon vivants, gourmands, those adverse to five as well as those who live to eat, will all be glad to know that that favorite refreshing emporium, Morfat's, on Canal street, will throw wide its hospitable doors for the season on the 1st of October. The establishment has been washed, repaired, scraped, cleaned, painted and fixed up generally, besides being renovated, repaired and put in order, and will continue to be, as it ever has been, famous for the delicacy of its fare both in the matters of material and preparation. See advertisement.

FETCH OUT YOUR TORCHES.—Messrs P. & L. Piffet, the great fancy and variety goods dealers of 138 Canal street, have on hand and advertise for sale through our columns, a very light, convenient and lasting kind of torch, just the thing for parties to carry round town at night in processions. See advertisement.

PARTNER WANTED.—The proprietor of an eligibly located and well patronized family grocery store advertises for a partner in the business.

☞ Chills and Fever!--Chills and Fever!--One of the greatest remedies that has ever been laid before the public for Fever and Ague, and which have received the highest encomiums from the press and the people, is Dr. J. Houtter's Celebrated Bitters. Who would endure the torture arising from this terrible disease, when it can be so easily cured? Who would endure sleepless nights, burning fevers and icy chills alternately, when a remedy can be obtained for a mere trifle? And yet how many families linger out a painful existence under its deadly blight, and do nothing but gulp down quinine, until it becomes as common as their daily meals, and yet they are not relieved. None but the foolish and weak would hesitate to procure these valuable Bitters, and save themselves from an agony.

Sold in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by J. WRIGHT & CO., 2, and 151 Chartres street, sole agents for the Southern States, to which all orders should be addressed, and by druggists and dealers generally everywhere. se21 2p0;&W

☞ Experience teaches us that delicacy prevents many females from applying for the means to alleviate suffering and save life. That objection is obviated in the case of "Sir James Clarke's Female Pills, prepared after the prescription of Sir James Clarke, Physician to the Queen of England, and well known to be the only sure and safe remedy for female difficulties and obstructions from any cause." They can be sent to a bottle containing 50 pills, post free, by enclosing $1 and six postage stamps in any agency.

☞ Why is the Silent Sewing Machines so busily situated by agents of other machines?

Because the public have pronounced them the best, having superseded all others. The sales still continue to increase at No. 97 Canal street.

☞ Two Verdicts, from very Important sources, in relation to CRISTADORO'S HAIR DYE. The first of these decisions is from the pen of Dr. Chilton, who has no equal in this country as an analytic chemist, and declares the Dye to be absolutely free from deleterious ingredients. This may be called the Scientific Verdict.

The second decision is a popular one. The thousands who use the Dye are unanimous in recommending it above all others, for the exquisite naturalness of the blacks and browns it imparts and the rapidity of its effect. This is the Public Verdict.

The documents which constitute these verdicts may be seen at the establishment of CRISTADORO, No. 6 Astor House, New York.

Sold everywhere, and supplied by all Hair Dressers.

For sale in New Orleans, wholesale and retail, by J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres street, General Agents.

☞ Western Report--Lima, In., July 5,'58. Messrs. W. E. Hagan & Co.--Gents: I am enjoying my youth for hair at fifty, and we have with us many instances of the same kind. I feel just as sure that your Hair Coloring has straightened my eyes, as that it has changed my hair. Three years ago I was gray. By accident I came across a bottle of your Restorative, tried it and found it what it was recommended--hence our trade. I am satisfied that with a little attention to directions almost can be said, for the worth of the article is only to be known to those in use in almost every family in the country. I have but a few dozen left of the five gross received in January last. I wish some more this week.

Yours, truly, H. W. WOOD.

Remember that this result was produced by Helmstreit's Indestructible, the original and only reliable Hair Restorative.

Price 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold everywhere.

Sold by J. WRIGHT & CO., 21 and 151 Chartres street, New Orleans. se17 2p1mW

☞ Union Guard, Second District--This Club meets EVERY FRIDAY EVENING, at 7½ o'clock, at the Orleans Ball Room, on Orleans street, between Royal and Bourbon streets. All persons favoring the election of JOHN BELL for President, and EDWARD EVERETT for Vice President, are respectfully invited to attend and join said Club. se24 3t0

R. D. HUBBARD, Sec'y.

☞ Bunker Hill Rangers--The regular weekly meetings of this Club will be held at their hall, school house corner Canal and Franklin streets, on MONDAY EVENING, at half past 7 o'clock. By order of the President:

se24 3t0 GEO. O. SEARES, Secretary.

☞ Why does the Wheeler & Wilson concern publish so many unless statements against the Silent Sewing Machines?

From the fact that they are a great improvement on theirs, and does away with the feather pads and loop check.

The Silent Machines still continue to more than double the sale of all others, at No. 97 Canal street.

SEWARD'S SPEECH.

Mr. Seward, whenever he makes a public speech, affects the oracular style. His speeches are all studied--generally written beforehand, and often in print before they are delivered. Having none of the graces of an orator about him--too cold-blooded, selfish and heartless to become excited, no matter what the provocation--he seeks to entertain his audience with what he supposes to be new discoveries in politics and morals, and to impress them with a sense of his profound wisdom by oracular predictions of the future. His style is thoroughly artificial. Most public speakers feel some little glow of excitement when addressing a popular assembly--there is a sort of electric sympathy between the orator and the people. Seward, on the contrary, is as cold as a glacier from the North Pole. He announces the irrepressible conflict with a diabolical indifference and a calm assurance that impresses you with the conviction that he has not a nerve or a drop of blood in his body. He proclaims the speedy extinction of slavery, knowing that it can never be accomplished without the sacrifice of thousands and tens of thousands of lives, with an easy carelessness that is quite apt to make the listener believe there never lived a profounder philosopher, or one who could see into the future so far, so clearly and so easily. All this, however, is affected. It is put on for the occasion. Seward has made a study of this sort of thing, and the ars celare artem is his in all its perfection.

His latest harangue, a brief report whereof we gave yesterday, is in the old style. "He looked," we are informed, "to the acquisition of British America, Russian America, and Spanish America--and declared that the man was born who would live to see the American people come to the harmonious understanding that this is the land of freedom and free men--that it is the land of the white man--and that whatever elements there are to disturb its peace will, before long, pass away without endangering this Union."

Here is something new for Seward. Here we have him in the role of a filibuster. He looks to the acquisition of British America, Russian America, and Spanish America. How this "acquisition" is to be made he does not inform us. He knows well enough, though, that it is next to impossible to obtain any of these possessions by purchase or treaty. But Seward is not, in his own proper person, nor in his political faith, a filibuster. He merely assumes this role before the backwoodsmen of Minnesota, as the boys say, "for grandeur." All that sort of talk, coming from William H. Seward, is simply unadulterated humbug. Would Seward vote in the Senate for the confirmation of a treaty by which Spanish America, on honorable terms, would be added to the possessions of the United States? Hardly.

But "this is the land of the white man," he says. So it is. But one would suppose, from the racket he and his followers are making, that it was anything else but a country for white men--that it was designed for "niggers" equally with Caucasians--not in their own proper sphere of slaves, but on terms of political and social equality with all others. If it be a country for white men, why not legislate for white men and their interests, instead of seeking to destroy those interests in one-half of the Union? Why not let slavery alone, instead of continually predicting its downfall, and deceiving the people by telling them that that downfall will be accomplished in the lifetime of "a man now born," and by peaceable means too? Mr. Seward, we are afraid that you are a bit of a humbug--that you know it yourself, and if you are not particular, your followers will soon find it out too.

But he is not afraid of a dissolution of the Union. Oh, no! "Who's afraid?" he bravely asks. And then as if to reassure himself and prop up his sinking courage, he responds, "nobody is afraid." The truth of the matter is, Seward is himself afraid. He trembles whenever he thinks of it. The man who, in a tone of defiance, asks his companions, "who's afraid?" is generally quaking in his boots at the very moment. Seward is apprehensive that the South will dissolve the Union--in which event his own occupation would not only be gone, but a blow, the extent and damage of which he knows how to calculate, would be given the material interests of his section of the country. One would suppose that if slavery were such a disgrace to the nation as Seward pretends to believe, he would be glad to get rid of a Union which recognises it. On the contrary, he is in daily dread of its dissolution. He wishes the Union preserved, first that he may keep perpetually in power on the political capital he makes out of slavery, and, secondly, that the Federal Government and the Northern people may always have the South on hand, to plunder her of her property, and impose upon her in respect of her political rights. That is all.

POLITICAL ITEMS.

BARBECUE AT NEW IBERIA.—The New Iberian, a neutral paper, gives a glowing account of the great Bell and Everett barbecue held at that place on the 15th. Two thousand people, says the New Iberian, were present, and the finest spirit of enthusiasm prevailed. The ball was opened the night before by a torch-light procession, together with music and fireworks. A flag was presented by the ladies to the Bell and Everett club. Speeches were made in English by Adolphus Olivier, Hon. John Moore, Thomas H. Lewis, Esq., elector for the District, and John E. King, Esq.; and in French by Adolphus Olivier and J. E. Mestayer. The speeches were all able, but the New Iberian speaks of Mr. King's address especially as "an unabated stream of impassioned eloquence, and one of the most splendid political efforts we ever heard on the stump." Altogether, the meeting at New Iberia appears to have been one of the greatest political demonstrations, outside of New Orleans, that ever took place in Louisiana.

MASS MEETING AT JACKSON.—We acknowledge the compliment of an invitation to "a grand mass meeting and barbecue" of the friends of Bell and Everett, to be held at Jackson, Mississippi, on the 4th and 5th days of October.

KENTUCKY.—The Great Union barbecue near Independence, Kentucky, was attended, a correspondent of the New York Express says, by five thousand people. "Such a gathering" he says, "has never been known since the days of Henry Clay. There were no mute voices or indifferent countenances among the vast concourse, but one grand swelling tide of patriotism flowed from heart to heart, and turned it into a mighty live feast of patriotism.

There were oxen roasted whole in real Kentucky barbecue style--there were baskets laden with choice eatables--there were noble matrons and blushing girls, who insisted on distributing the food, and preparing it.

There was present the venerable John J. Crittenden, his fine countenance glowing with the inspiration of the occasion. Wherever he went, throngs pressed upon him, and vied with each other in doing him honor.

Mr. Crittenden made one of his happiest efforts. For more than one hour he held his audience spell-bound. After showing the inconsistency and mad fanaticism of the Republican party, he made a brief sketch of the history of politics from the days of Jefferson, proving that the Union party represented the principles of the fathers of the republic, and that our country's permanence depended on the triumph of 'Union' principles."

ALABAMA.—A grand barbecue (Bell and Everett) is to be held at Selma October 10th and 11th. 20,000 persons are to be provided for.

A PORTRAIT.—Carl Schurz reviewed the political and personal pretensions of Douglas in a speech delivered at Cooper's Institute, New York, a few days since. The Cleveland Plain Dealer publishes the following reply:

Carl Spirits.—The hair-lipped renegade who left his country for his country's good, has been furnished money and means by Black Republicans to stump the country for Lincoln. He is a Red Republican, all but his heart, that is black. He is in favor of the equalization of estates: claims that every one has a right to an equal division of the things of this earth, whether he acquires it himself or not; repudiates all religion, the Bible, the Sabbath; and talks about God as "that ideal gentleman beyond the stars." He is a model or rather a mongrel Republican--half Red, half Black.

OWEGO, Y. Y., Sept. 15.—Ex-Gov. Hunt and Gen. Washington Barrow, of Tennessee, addressed a spirited Bell and Everett meeting here last evening. The undertone of sentiment is beginning to show that our citizens are desirous not only of hearing the "other side," but are preparing to vote for the "Union, the Constitution, and the Enforcement of the Laws."

The Ouachita Bell Ringers held a meeting on Wednesday evening last, at which time a committee was appointed to take under advisement the expediency of holding a Bell and Everett mass meeting in Camden. [Camden (Ark.) Herald.

THE 8TH OF OCTOBER IN TENNESSEE.—The next monster Union meeting will be held at Memphis, Tennessee; commencing on Monday, the 8th of October, and continuing through the week. It will be the great meeting of the South-west.

MR. CRITTENDEN AT NASHVILLE.—Hon. John J. Crittenden is now on a visit to Nashville, Tenn., on the 24th instant., and the Union men of that city are preparing to give him a reception in keeping with his honors and services. Mr. Crittenden has not been at Nashville since 1844, when the great Convention was held, and Henry Clay was there with him. The old elm tree where the great orators spoke to the assembled multitude is still pointed out, in the western part of the city.

JOHN BELL'S PLATFORM.—I doubt whether the power and resources of this country would have attained more than half their present extraordinary proportions, but for the so much reviled institution of Slavery. [JOHN BELL in 1850.

A PATRIOTIC DEMOCRAT.—Last week a Union Club was organized at PAXTON'S School House, in Rockbridge, Va. Some gentleman nominated Mr. Henry Amole for President of the Club. Mr. Amole, who is now about 65 or 70 years of age, and who has been a Democrat all his life, got up and said he would accept the office--that he was a Union man, and that the ticket of Bell and Everett was the ticket for him. [Richmond Whig.

A SOUTHERN BOOK.

POEMS: By HENRY LYNDEN FLASH.

Yet another book, creditable to the literary genius, taste and cultivation of the South, has emanated from our neighbor city of Mobile, which may properly claim to be the "Athens of the South." A fair Southern city of the extreme South, a queen of the Gulf--our peculiar Southern sea--noted for the public spirit, the refinement and the wealth of her citizens, and the elegance of her society, Mobile adds to these attributes of a polite and enlightened community, strong and sufficient claims to be considered a favored haunt of the muses and a stronghold of the republic of letters. It cannot be otherwise while she boasts such laborers in the delightful cause of belles-lettres and literature as Requier, Flash, Meek, Miss Evans and M'me Levert, a shining galaxy of authors, whom the city and South may well claim with pride and exultation.

The latest who has made his mark upon the literary times in the legitimate shape of a volume, though his name has long been familiar in connection with minor poems of much merit which appeared in the columns of newspapers, is Mr. Henry Lynden Flash. The dainty tainted paper and neat style of the volume, from the press of Budd & Carleton, in which his poems are offered to the public, consist well with the polished and artistic finish and delicate beauties of its contents. The poet is not betrayed into those eccentric vagaries of nameless measure which too often disguise or sacrifice sense and argument, that the ear may be tickled with the harmonious jingle of a musical rhythm; but in simple and unaffected meter each little poem tells its story, its beauty unadorned save by the exquisite choice of the words in which the poetic ideas, fancies and imagery are arrayed.

We approve this feature of our author's work. Since the wild, mystic, and sometimes almost maniac music of poor Poe's pen sang the paeans of his genius in the ears of men are he shot like a star from his sphere down into the night of death, a host of smaller humanity have sought in ragged feet and with deliberate intent to emulate him, and have put forth their poor thoughts in such fantastic trickery of versification as to make their nothingness more ridiculous by contrast with their fanciful and elaborate trappings. Another man, with the strange, peculiar genius of Poe, may not be found--he wrote from his poet heart and brain. Poetry can't be invented; it is the spontaneous effusion of the soul--a blossoming forth of the delicate or gorgeous flowers of the intellect. Whatever the nature of the flower is, so let it bloom--Poe's in their own way, another's in their own way, Flash's in their own way--and we like their way, as we said above. For the most part he adheres to simplicity of style, and when he occasionally departs from it the effort is not generally as successful as his other work.

A tropic fervor of imagination pervades these poems, as if the author's nativity of the land of the sun was quite as much of the soul as of the body, and the warmth of a fiery temperament continually struggles through the artistic limning of words, as the gleamings of a lurid sunset through the tamer hues of shielding clouds. Passionate warmth is made exquisitely subordinate to delicacy of sentiment, and felicitous imagery shadows forth the nice conceits of imagination. We regret that we have not space to extract at length from the book, and we close this notice of it by transferring to our columns the under given beautiful little poem, "What She Brought Me," and a gem of album poetry--not because it is more worthy special attention than other and longer pieces, but to show how successful the poet is in the management of little simple and unassuming things in the sonnet way, remarking that to our appreciation he is in his happiest vein in such and kindred verse--lyrics and emotional sketches:

What She Brought Me.

This faded flower that you see,
Was given me a year ago,
By one one whose little, dainty hand
Is whiter than the snow.

Her eyes are blue as violets,
And she's a blonde, and very fair,
And sunset tints are not as bright
As is her golden hair.

And there are roses in her cheeks
That come and go like living things:
Her voice is softer than the brook's
That flows from hidden springs.

She gave it me with downcast eyes,
And rosy flushes of the cheek,
That told of tender thoughts, her tongue
Had never learned to speak.

The fitting words had just been said,
And she was mine as long as life:
I gently laid the flower aside,
And kissed my blushing wife.

She took it up with earnest look,
And said, "Oh! prize the flower"—
And tender tears were in her eyes—
"It is my only flower."

She brought me Faith, and Hope, and Truth,
She brought me gentle thought, and love—
A soul as pure as those that float
Around the throne above.

But earthly thing she nothing had,
Except this faded flower you see:
And though 'tis worthless in your eyes,
'Tis very dear to me.

To Melanie.

WRITTEN IN AN ALBUM.

Perchance upon some summer day,
When lively friends are far away,
You'll wander by a shady brook,
And stop within some verdant nook,
And, gazing on the sweet wild flowers,
(Those gems that deck this world of ours),
You'll say, "I doubt there's aught so bright
As blooming flowers to the sight."
In fancy now I see you glance
Upon the glassy stream's expanse,
And all at once is put to rout
That modest, unassuming doubt:
You blush, to see reflected there,
A human flower twice as fair.
