Over-caution is usually yoked to failure—in advertising.

Slump here and slump there, but has your house rent slumped?

Many of the poor covet the rich man's wealth, and most of the rich men covet the poor men's health.

A Prescott minister advises all girls over 25 years of age to pray for good husbands. Here's a fine chance to test the efficacy of prayer.

A young woman in Illinois who sent an improper postal card has been indicted by a grand jury. This offense is not as safe as some who use the mails imagine.

The New Jersey monkey recently sent to jail for drunkenness is again at liberty, thus making room for some man who is foolish enough to make a monkey of himself.

In Nebraska the statisticians are now trying to discover how many marriages lead to divorce. In South Dakota they may soon be trying to find out how many divorces lead to marriage.

Gambling runs high in Reno, Nevada. There are nearly 100 places in the city where games are run and $90,000 in salaries go each month to those who run the business. It is said that over one million dollars changes hands each year at the games. Reno has a population of 10,000.

Postmaster General Meyer states again that he will recommend an improved parcels post in his annual report. The fact that an American pays fourteen times as much postage per pound as a German in mailing a parcel suggests that the rate in this country is absurdly out of proportion.

That yarn about an Arizona cowboy holding up people in Chicago for a joke, and not knowing that it was against the law to carry pistols in Chicago is a libel both on Arizona and Arizona cowboys. It is the publication of such rot which makes eastern people think that Arizona is a semi-civilized country.—Prescott Courier.

Pope Pius X has granted a special dispensation making All Saints day an occasion for feasting this year instead of fasting. The reason for this is that All Saints day falls on Friday and the pope is following the rule of the olden times when Christmas, then a fast day, was made a feast day if it came on Friday. All Saints day is a day of obligation among Catholics and special services will be held at all the churches of the denomination.

STATEHOOD ASSURED

"President Roosevelt assured me while I was with him on the trip up the Mississippi that he is personally in favor of admitting both Arizona and New Mexico as separate states and that Arizona stands just the same show that New Mexico has to enter the Union."

This was the statement made today by Governor Joseph H. Kibbey in an interview. Governor Kibbey returned to Phoenix yesterday evening from the east where he had been in a trip up the river with President Roosevelt. Governor Kibbey accompanied President Roosevelt for six days, having joined him at Vicksburg, Mississippi.

"Following the statement which President Roosevelt made to me personally, he wrote a letter which I received since his return to Washington where he conferred with a number of the Congressional leaders." Governor Kibbey added, "In this letter the President stated that he had informed these leaders of his views on the statehood proposition, favoring single statehood for Arizona and New Mexico but the leaders have not as yet taken this view and there are indications that there will be opposition to the project which will likely beat it."

"While I had never believed the newspaper reports that President Roosevelt would favor the admission of New Mexico and leave Arizona to remain a territory, nevertheless it was extremely gratifying to hear the President say that Arizona stood the same chance for statehood that will be accorded New Mexico," continued Governor Kibbey.

"President Roosevelt was under the impression before the statehood election that the citizens of Arizona and New Mexico favored admission as a joint state, just as the citizens of Oklahoma and Indian Territory did. He saw clearly, however, after the election here that he was mistaken in view of the overwhelming majority against jointure."

"The president stated that he has always taken a keen interest in the two southwestern territories and is willing to do everything in his power to aid in their development. He would much prefer to see both New Mexico and Arizona added to the roster of states than have them remain as territories."

Governor Kibbey is hopeful that statehood may be secured at the coming session of congress, but he is not certain that this can be accomplished, owing to the fact that some of the Congressional leaders may enter objections.

In this event Governor Kibbey believes that statehood at the outmost will not be delayed more than one year, and he is very certain that both Arizona and New Mexico will go into the union at the same time and add two more stars to the flag.

A Disgrace to Her Sex.

"Our women are on the whole spoiled, extremely idle and underserving the maudlin worship they demand from hard-working men." So declares a woman writer in a popular magazine. "The American girl," she concludes, "is over-educated on all subjects but wifehood. She marries blindly and then rebels when she finds out what is expected of her. The relation between the sexes is a mere slipshod, unchivalrous companionship."

Curiously enough, this indictment of American wives is identical with that brought by a distinguished French writer in a recent article against the wives of Frenchmen. Probably the "authorities" of the article on American wives simply got things confused having in mind the domestic conditions in France. Certain it is, says the Kansas City Journal, and we take pleasure in endorsing the sentiment, that the American wife, as a class, is the last to deserve such a diatribe. Of course, the whole article is, like the peddler's razors, "made to sell." Every sociological fact refutes the statements of the writer, except, possibly that relating to imperfect preparation for marriage and undue and ill advised haste. But even these are extreme cases. There is no country in the world where the wife is more of a companion, helpmate, counselor and homemaker than in our own America. Her devotion to her husband is proverbial; her assistance in fighting the battles of every day is most effectual. She does her share and more, and the melancholy statistics of the divorce court show that where one wife fails in her whole duty many husbands go wrong. But taking the wives and husbands of America as a class, they refute every essential statement of the woman who broke into print to slander her sex and slur her country.

EDUCATION

Some parents grieve because their children do not get on rapidly in their school work. In most cases the parent is wrong.

The old idea of pushing children in their studies is no longer held by the best educators.

Most teachers hold with President G. Stanley Hall, who says, "today children need retarding in their development more than they need pushing forward."

The utterance of such a statement would have been accounted heresy a few years ago.

President Hall says, "Precocity is the great danger now. Our children rush ahead and become adults before they should. The best way to broaden is to retard, to delay, to allow children to linger in their paradise and get the full benefit of the rich and manifold benefits of heredity."

This age is a faster one than that in which the child's parents were reared. There is danger lest the child learns too much—matures too rapidly.

Above all, it must be remembered that education is growth. Growing requires time. Education is development. Development comes by slow process.

It is little less than criminal to cheat a child out of its childhood. And a child may be pushed out of the paradise it deserves to occupy by cramming it with information it cannot digest, by trying to force a culture that comes only with years.

The first thing to be looked after in the education of a child is its physical health. First of all, make it a good, strong animal. You can't get mental power without physical power. Build up a good body. The strain of after years will test it to the utmost. There's danger in forcing the child's mind. You are likely not only to stunt the body, but also to blunt the faculties and even lower the moral strength of the child.—Albuquerque Citizen.

A STRANGER TO YOURSELF

Every man is a stranger to his greatest strength, his mightiest power, until the test of a great responsibility, a critical emergency or a supreme crisis in his life calls it out.

Work on a farm, hauling wood, working in a tannery, storekeeping, West Point, the Mexican war, doing odd jobs about town, were not enough to arouse the sleeping giant in General Grant. There was no probability that he would ever have been heard from outside of his own little community but for the emergency of the civil war.

There was a tremendous dynamic force in the man, but it required the concussion of the great civil war to ignite it. No ordinary occasion touched his slumbering power, no ordinary experience could ignite the dynamic power in this giant. Under common circumstances he would have gone through life a stranger to his own ability, just as most of the great dynamite shells now in existence will probably never be exploded because of the lack of a war emergency great enough to permit their use.

Farming, wood chopping, rail-splitting, surveying, storekeeping, the state legislature, the practice of law, not even the United States Congress furnished occasions great enough to ignite the spark of power to explode the dynamic force in Abraham Lincoln. Only the responsibility of a nation in imminent peril furnished sufficient concussion to ignite the giant power in perhaps the greatest man that ever trod the American continent.

There is no probability that Lincoln would have gone down in history as a very great man but for the crisis of the civil war. The nation's peril was the responsibility thrust upon him, which brought out the last ounce of his reserves, his latent power of achievement, the resources which he never would have dreamed he possessed but for this emergency.—Orison Swett-Marden in Success.
