THE CAMPAIGN CRESCENT.

During the current canvass I shall publish a weekly Democratic paper, under the title of THE CAMPAIGN CRESCENT.

The first number will be issued during the first week in August, and the publication will be continued until the election in November.

The CAMPAIGN CRESCENT will be devoted exclusively to politics. It will support the platform and nominees of the late National Democratic Convention. It will advocate Democratic principles, and oppose political heresies in all forms and under all disguises.

The CAMPAIGN CRESCENT will be sent only when the price of subscription shall accompany the order. All journals friendly to the great cause of Democracy will confer a favor by inserting this circular, and our friends who may receive it by mail are requested to act as agents and to send the names of as many subscribers as they can obtain.

In order to insure a very extensive circulation, the CAMPAIGN CRESCENT is offered at the following rates:

Single copy, One Dollar. Six copies to one address, Five Dollars. Twelve copies to one address, Ten Dollars. Twenty-five copies to one address, Twenty Dollars.

Advertisers are reminded that the CAMPAIGN CRESCENT, many thousands of which will circulate, during the next three months, in the interior of this and neighboring States, will have a limited space to which advertisements will be admitted.

Persons who propose being absent from the city during the summer, can have the Daily or Weekly CRESCENT sent to them by leaving their address at this office.

A RADICAL MILITARY PROJECT.

The latest project for a State military domination in Louisiana is a bill to organize two regiments of infantry, two of cavalry, and one of artillery, "troop loil" stuff, of course, under the authority of the governor, and to be paid at the same rates as the United States army.

Our citizens will be pleased to learn that a distinguished visitor, the Hon. C. M. Donovan, of Pennsylvania, will address the Constitution Club this evening, at No. 106 Canal street.

The Crescent City Yacht Club met last evening at Hawkins' club room, Common street, and decided upon regattas to be run on the 19th and 20th of this month at Lake Pontchartrain.

Scott Gordon, a friend of Willis Rollins, and president of a colored Democratic club in Baton Rouge, reached here yesterday morning, having set out on that place upon receipt of intelligence informing him of the dangers to which his comrade was exposed.

"WE SHOULD LIKE TO KNOW."

"We should like to know"—thus chants, or chants, the New York Times—"if Gen Hancock approves of the late speeches of Gen. Wade Hampton? We should like to know if Mr. Chase approves of the late speeches of Mr. Tombs? We should like to know if Gen. Franklin admires the late speech of Admiral Semmes? We should like to know if Gen. Custer joins in the lately-uttered sentiments of Gen. Forrest? For are they not all shining lights of the one, united, coherent, homogeneous Democratic party?"

Perhaps Gens. Hancock, Franklin, and Custer, and Mr. Chase would like to know what business the Times' editor has to demand their private opinions of what is said by Gens. Hampton and Forrest, Admiral Semmes and Mr. Tombs. The gentlemen addressed are not candidates, and are not canvassing for any ticket. Because they are known or presumed to support Seymour and Blair, gives an editor no right to put such interrogatories to them. It would be about as proper and pertinent for a paragraph whippersnapper of a radical sheet to break unceremoniously into the private parlors of any other gentlemen of supposed adherence to the Democratic nominees and platform, and to insist upon knowing if they agreed with all the political sentiments uttered by Jones, or Smith, or Rogers, or Podgers, or whoever should profess adherence to the same nominees and platform.

The platform speaks for itself. The nominees have spoken for themselves. Gen. Hancock and the rest know well enough what these exponents of Democratic principles and policy mean, without looking for interpretation to rambling commentaries which have no binding force on the candidates or the party. They cannot mistake the grand object at which the Democracy, as the party of the people, now aim—the rescue of the central government, of the Federal Union, of the several States, from the blindest and most pernicious set of political charlatans and usurpers who ever spurned honest and statesmanlike counsel, and organized universal misrule, and hurried a country to perdition under the ruins of constitutional liberty and of national honor and prosperity.

But there are some interrogatories touching utterances of distinguished and representative radicals which it would be eminently pertinent to propound to the New York Times and other radical papers which are giving to the Chicago platform—a juggling contrivance which palters with the people in a double sense—a verbalistic embroidery, as many colored as Joseph's coat, and which improves the original production about as much as the indorsement of one swindler and bankrupt improves the check of another swindler and bankrupt. For example, we should like to know if the New York Times approves now of the sentiment uttered by Mr. Raymond in 1866, that the late Confederate combatants at the South would be unworthy of restoration to the Union, and unworthy of the blessings of free government, if they should consent to come back shorn of any of their constitutional rights and on conditions which would degrade them or their States to inequality. We should like to know if the New York Tribune approves now of these memorable words of Mr. Greeley in 1860: "We hope never to live in a republic whereof one section is pinned to the other by bayonets."

Is Mr. Greeley or the Tribune, or both, prepared to stick manfully to the solemn promise contained in the foregoing utterance by emigration or self-destruction? We should like to know what the radical press in general think of the opinion officially given by Gen. Grant less than three years ago, that the Southern people universally acquiesced in the authority of the general government, and that it would be just and wise to admit them to self-government as soon as possible, and free from requirements humiliating to them as citizens. And we should like to know what they think of the conviction which he expressed to Senator Doolittle, according to the uncontradicted testimony of this senator, that the radical project of negro suffrage in the South would bring on a war of races. If these views were sound, then the whole theory and scheme of radical reconstruction must rest on a rotten foundation, which is essentially antagonistic to the interests of peace and order, of Union and national welfare.

On the other hand, if they are held to have been unsound, what confidence can the radical politicians who so regard them have in the political intelligence of the man who deliberately uttered them; and what confidence can the public have either in these politicians who are running this man for president, or in him who, as the radical candidate, stands self-convicted of having been grossly and inexcessively wrong yesterday, or of being grossly and inexcessively wrong to-day, on one of the most vital political questions of the time? One of the most sensible and least partisan speeches we have yet heard from any Republican member of the House was that delivered yesterday by Burrell of St. John, a colored man, in defense of his minority report from the committee on elections and qualifications in the case of Heidenbach and Hall vs. Zacharie and Stringer. The extreme radical wing of the committee had urged upon the House the immediate giving of their seats to the radical candidates, but Burrell averred that his investigations had revealed to him radical frauds as great as any charged upon the Democrats, and therefore he, in conjunction with the chairman of the committee, Yorke, also a Republican, deemed it better to instruct the governor to order a new election. He said that intimations of ostracism from the party had been thrown out to him, for his refusal to coincide with extreme radical views, but that he would in the sight of God faithfully discharge the duties which he had sworn to fulfill.

It was exceedingly refreshing to hear such a speech in the present House, and all the more pleasant to hear it from a colored man. A radical member of the House tried yesterday to obtain the official indorsement of the General Assembly on the sentiments expressed on Monday by Governor Warmoth in his speech to the crowd on Canal street. Other radicals however could not see it, so the resolution in which the sentiments were embodied was quietly (or rather very noisily) referred to a special committee, where after being killed in the House, it will, we suppose, be decently interred.

There was yesterday more confusion in the House of Representatives, both in the lobby and on the floor than there has been at any time before.

TOO EXPENSIVE.

It may be a fine thing, but the abstract, to turn government and all its operations into an organized crusade against "copperheads," "traitors," the "disloyal." It may be a sublime sight, from the standpoint of radical ethics and aesthetics, to expose the throat of every Southern dissident from the party of "moral ideas" and of "good will" to the knife of barbaric atrocity, while the salutes of that party, lifted high above the vulgar level, beam in the glories of an apotheosis whose brightness is as night from the flames which lay waste the habitations of misbeliever and prober. But, really, for the common run of people who have physical wants and personal responsibilities to look after these refined enjoyments and resplendent sublimities are rather too expensive, and it is not strange that from this unfortunate class complaints begin to appear, such as the following which "a laboring man" writes to the Bangor, Maine, Democrat:

For four days' work in 1859 I could buy a barrel of excellent flour. For an equally good barrel now I have to work eight days.

For one day's work in 1859 I could buy five pounds of tea. The same day's work I can now buy but two pounds.

For one day's work in 1859 I could buy thirty pounds of sugar. For a day's work now I can get but fifteen pounds.

For one day's work in 1859 I could buy eight pounds of tobacco. For a day's work now I can buy but three pounds.

For a day's work in 1859 I could buy five pounds of coffee. For a day's work now I can buy but two pounds.

For one month's work in 1859 I could clothe myself and family for one year. To do the same now I am obliged to work two months and a half.

I might just go through the whole list of articles that a laboring man and his family consume. It is not time for me and my fellow-laborers to look around us, ascertain the cause of this robbery of labor, and apply the remedy?

The cause of this simple man calls the "robbery," is only too plain. So is the remedy—namely, for the people at large to resolve that they can't afford the luxury, and to act accordingly.

THE MOBILE REGATTAS.

We have been favored with the perusal of a letter recently received by one of our citizens from a Mobile yachtsman, as well known for his fair and honorable career in that capacity, as for his skill and judgment as a sailor. The letter, however, does injustice to the yachtsmen of the Crescent City. It is a mistake to imagine for an instant, that the New Orleans boats are afraid to compete with the Gladiola, Harlequin and Julia Lake. The boats hauling from this city have already met those just enumerated at the lake ports of New Orleans as well as in the waters of the Sound, and have suffered no dishonor or defeat. Give them a fair and timely notice, Messrs. Yachtsmen of Mobile, by advertising in our papers. And above all, before you speak of substituting the Ida, Mollie Preston and Nettie Chandler for your crack vessels, let us have your views more plainly and expressly upon the challenge already thrown down to you by the friends and backers of the Xiphias.

The letter we allude to contains a banter to send on yachts from Lakeport for the regatta at Hollywood, in Mobile bay, which is to come off to-day. That letter was received only yesterday, rendering it utterly impossible for the challenge to be accepted in time.

We shall give ample notice of our regatta at Port Pontchartrain, which is to come off on the 19th and 20th of this month. The fact shall be notified from day to day in our papers and advertised in the Mobile journals, and no excuse of the kind offered by the Orleansians shall be allowed to hold good for the Mobilians.

LOCAL POLITICS.

Draymen's Democratic Club. At a meeting held last night it was decided to postpone further action in regard to the arrangements for the flag presentation and torch light procession, to take place on Saturday, until this afternoon. At 5 o'clock, at the Commercial Pavilion, on the levee, foot of Poydras street, will be held a meeting to make all preparations. Members had best be on hand promptly.

Seymour Knights. A meeting of the Seymour Knights was held at their club room over the Gem, on Royal street, last night. It was decided by a unanimous vote, that the Knights parade next Saturday night for the purpose of receiving a set of colors which are to be presented to the club on that evening. A resolution was offered and carried unanimously authorizing a committee of three to be appointed. Said committee being instructed to invite members of the press, marshals of the Democratic ward and independent clubs, also to tender an invitation to the Blair Knights to parade with them. Messrs. G. M. Sheldon, J. F. Dick and E. J. Byrd constitute the committee of invitation. The president, Mr. J. S. Tully, in a few remarks which he addressed to the club, took occasion to pay a compliment to the CRESCENT.

Mr. Jules Zarni, proprietor of the Gem, tendered the use of a room to the club for the use of special committee. The club adjourned to meet by order of Major Robert J. Duffy, grand marshal, at Wood's Cotton Press, corner of Canal and Claiborne streets, at 6 p. m. Saturday.

The route to be taken by the Knights will be published in the CRESCENT to-morrow morning. We look forward to the turnout with eager expectations, as, from our knowledge of the material of which this club is composed, we anticipate that it will be a brilliant affair.

Eighth Ward. One of the largest meetings ever held in the Third District assembled last evening at Carroll Hall, and was presided over by Col. Louis Power. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Over five hundred good and true voters were present and took part in the proceedings.

Appropriate addresses were made by Messrs. N. A. Llanibias and John Delany, both delegates elect to the Parish Executive Committee.

The locality is perfectly wide awake, having already four numerous and hard-working clubs, to-wit: Hibernia, Spirit of '68, Eighth Ward and the Wide Awakes. All honor to the brave Old Third and to her gallant sons.

Minute Men of 1868. This new club of Democrats was organized last evening at their rooms, No. 10 New Levee street. Seventy-two members were enrolled, comprising for the most part our most prominent merchants. C. H. Branglin was elected president; J. P. Stagg, M. Hinman and Leake, vice-presidents; and a secretary and treasurer whose names we were unable to obtain. The club was addressed by E. L. Jewell and A. Sambola in their usual eloquent and impressive manner.

The regular meetings of this club will be held every Friday evening as above.

Another Colored Club.

At a meeting of the Third Ward Club last night a communication was received from some twenty-five colored residents of the ward asking the assistance of the club in forming a colored club for the campaign. On Friday next, at the Third Ward headquarters, 103 St. Charles street, these colored men and their friends will meet to organize. We understand that the room has been placed at their disposal for every Friday night henceforth until the election.

The Hancock Club held their usual weekly meeting last night over Hawkins' saloon, corner of Common street and Theater Alley. They had a very agreeable meeting, full of vim and enthusiasm.

Clubs Meeting To-Night. The colored club of the Draymen's association, at the Wabash warehouse on Falton street, between Poydras and Lafayette, at half-past seven o'clock.

The gallant "Seymour Southrons" organize to-night, at 8 o'clock, at 109 St. Charles street. This organization is composed of young men of the first respectability. Many of them will poll their maiden vote in November, and we have no doubt the bare announcement will bring them a hearty welcome from all other Democratic clubs in the city. Mr. McNamara, Esq., is president pro tempore.

The Washington Ninth Ward Club, at Miller's hall, on Delery street, near the Jackson Barracks. Important business to be transacted.

The Frank Blair Cadets, on Claiborne street, near Common, at half-past seven o'clock.

The Blair Knights, in the club room over Hawkins' saloon, on Common street, at half-past seven o'clock.

The Stone Cadets, corner Canal and Claiborne street, at half-past seven o'clock.

The Central Committee in their rooms, No. 205 Canal street.

The Democratic Spirit of '68 at Carroll hall, corner Elysian Fields and Greatmen streets.

The Seymour Legion, at St. Louis Hotel, entrance on Royal street, at half-past seven o'clock.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS, ETC.

Mrs. Yelverton is in Columbus, Georgia. Well "posted" "The telegraph."—[E. Eugene's waist measures seventeen inches. Menken is married again.]

Thaddeus Stevens is seriously ill again. Strauss is coming. Coffee's amolent tendencies are thought to disqualify him for the duties of a night watchman. The monogram collection fever has succeeded the carte de visite.

It costs $8000 per annum to sweep and dust the British House of Commons. Those who drink wine and tea show they can stand an attack of grape and canister.—[E.]

The remains of Mr. Surratt were lately exposed and found in a perfect state of preservation. The presence of Gen. Geo. H. Thomas at Nashville is regarded as ominous of trouble. If "everybody uses" a thing, as some advertisements declare, isn't that enough?

Great rejoicing in Georgia over the defeat of Joe Brown. A Mississippi editor talks of "our eye" and "our mouth." The Galveston papers report a tremendous shoal of red snappers forty miles out. Overhead and ears in debt—Wearing an unpaid for hat.—[E.]

The liveries made for Maximilian's servants now bedeck the "supers" of a theater. The Prince of Wales accompanied his brother Alfred in his visit to Farragut's frigate Franklin. Mr. Belmont drives about Newport in his English four-in-hand stage coach.

We steal many gossipy items from the New York Mail. John B. Gough's new lecture is entitled "Circumstances." An engineer named Kelley, on the Hudson River Railroad, has invented an attachment to a locomotive which catches the sparks as they emerge from the smoke-stack, and conducts them to the ground beneath the locomotive. It is in use on the Hudson River Railroad.

Thomas McCarthy, brother of Charles McCarthy, of the Washington House, Urbana, Ohio, while on his way East, on the 22d ult., to be treated for insanity in the New York Asylum, jumped through the car window, near Meadville, Penn., and was instantly killed.

Robert Beckley, living in Wyandotte, Kansas, took his step-son, two years old, out to the suburbs of the town, last Sunday and deliberately killed him. Beckley was arrested and it was feared that the people in that vicinity would take the law in their own hands and lynch him.

Measures have been taken in Chicago to ascertain the facts in relation to the Texas cattle disease alleged to be raging at various places in the interior. It is believed by many of our reports are exaggerated, and that they are circulated by stock-growers, in order to discourage the new competition in their business.

An engineer named Kelly, a fire occurred in a large marble front building, No. 42 Sumner street, which destroyed property to the value of about $50,000. The sufferers are Lewis Brown & Co., lessees; Levy, Foster & Bowman, $30,000; Porter Brothers, $20,000; Lewis & Cohen, $25,000. All are believed to be fully insured.

Capt. Plummer, of Switzerland, has purchased forty thousand acres of land in the vicinity of Tallahoma and McMinnville, in Tennessee. The first shipment of cotton from the plantation reports themselves upon the tract, passed through Louisville, Friday, en route for their new homes. They are men of means, and will make excellent citizens. They will engage in the planting of vineyards and in stock raising on an extensive scale.

A prisoner named Allen attempted to escape from jail in Manchester, N. H., on Wednesday, by knocking down Mrs. Fairbanks, who was temporarily acting as turnkey. The lady grappled with him, however, and he was taken down when he got up again he belabored her with a umbrella and otherwise impeded his flight, that he arrived in time to recapture him before he got far from the prison.

Hon. Francis Rodman, secretary of state, Missouri, has brought suit against Messrs. Knapp & Co., proprietors of the St. Louis Republican, for libel. He claims $50,000 damages for a statement made in that paper—that on Sunday Mr. Rodman and others went into a drug store in Jefferson City, and there had a burlesque imitation of the Lord's Supper.

A letter from Jonesboro, Tennessee, dated July 28th, says: "Yesterday morning Mrs. Colonel Jones of Millwood, Washington county, Tennessee, was seriously burned by attempting to kindle a fire with kerosene oil. In the evening she gave birth to a child. At 9 p. m. she died from the effects of the burn. The infant also died, and a little daughter three years old died in a few hours from whooping cough."

At Memphis on the 3d while constable Day, with a guard of three men, was bringing two horse-thieves, named Christopher A. Beed-er and Benjamin Whitfield, from Raleigh to the city, for commitment to jail—they having been found riding stolen horses—when within two miles of the city the guard was suddenly surrounded by about forty masked horsemen, who took the prisoners, and ordered the guard not to follow, and left in the direction of Raleigh. Next morning the men were found near McCallum's mill hanging to a tree, with a paper pinned on them inscribed: "Horse thieves—hang by an outraged community."

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE COLORED CLERG.

The colored people of New Orleans are fast awaking to the reality of their position, and falling away from the radicals and joining the party of their true friends—the Democratic party. In order to encourage them, and to give them assistance in their laudable efforts, it is suggested by some of our first citizens that lists of subscription be opened in different parts of the city, in order to supply them with lights, rooms and transparencies. We trust the suggestion will be acted upon promptly and liberally.

TO READ THEM, AND INDUCES LONGERS FOR THE PASTORAL BASTIDES OF WEST LOUISIANA.

Mons. Aube, the French tenor, who sings the part of Auberard at Niblo's Garden, was taken suddenly ill on the stage by the poison of the ver-gigis which composed the coloring of his blue beard, some of which he had swallowed.

There are two graves in the Savannah, Ga., old cemetery, on South Broad street, each of which is marked by a tomb-stone. One bears the inscription: "Mrs. Caroline Lloyd, aged one hundred and seventy-one years and eight months; died December 5th, 1836; wife of Wm. R. Lloyd." The other is inscribed as follows: "Wm. Richard, Senior; died October 16th, 1827; aged one hundred and fifty-five years."

Memphis laments the want of a workhouse for its criminals. To effectually demonstrate this need the occupants of the lock up were turned out in motley procession the other day. In the procession, held aloft on poles, were several placards with printed inscriptions like the following: "City Fathers, take care of your children;" "Lost children in search of a workhouse;" "Memphis chalm-gang;" "Workhouse committee;" "Furnish us with a home;" "Children of the City Fathers;" "We want work—in a horn."

ITEMS BY LAST NIGHT'S MAIL. Twelve hundred emigrants arrived at New York on Tuesday, in a single steamer, from Havana. Fifty dollar counterfeit Treasury notes are in circulation in New York.

Italians are emigrating to South America by the thousands. Burglars stole $5000 worth of hair from a New York barber the other day. Five men have gone over the Niagara Falls this season.

The late fire at Oil city beat all its predecessors. Nearly one thousand clerks have been dismissed at Washington within the last two months. It is reported that large fires are raging on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Mr. Rhind, manager of the Quebec bank, has been arrested on the charge of perjury. The Opal glass works of East Cambridge, Mass., have been totally destroyed by fire.

Ground was to be broken for the Moshoed lake railroad at Belfast, Me., on the 4th of August. The receipts of the Chicago Passenger fleet were $27,422, and the expenses $24,173.

Five spans of the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge at Harrisburg, destroyed by fire on the 17th, have been rebuilt and trains are again running. The shoe business at Lynn for the past year is estimated at $17,000,000, and the prospect is good for an excellent fall trade.

Mr. Edward Church, aged one hundred years, walked two miles to church in Erie county, Pennsylvania, last Sunday week. It is said Juarez has defeated the insurgents against his government, at Queretaro, but his situation at the city of Mexico is precarious.

Judge Ristichoff has decided, in New York, that a mortgage upon a distillery, given prior to a seizure of the premises for violation of the revenue laws, did not exempt them from seizure. A Washington dispatch says the commissioner of internal revenue has decided in favor of the adoption of the five meter for the prevention of frauds in liquor distilleries.

A New York gas company has discovered that one from destroys the odor of gas much more effectually than lime, and are consequently using it in their works. A ten-acre field of wheat, near Platte City, Mo., recently harvested, yielded five hundred and eighty-three bushels and twenty-two pounds of wheat.

There is a lodging-house in Bleeker street, New York, where homeless young girls are furnished with meals for five cents, and lodging for five cents. Great preparations are making for the annual cruise of the New York Yacht Squadron, which will rendezvous at Glen Cove on the 8th of August. Seventeen yachts are already entered.

Six Normandy stallions were received at New York on Tuesday, from France, on the steamer St. Laurent. They were imported by Duck & Stewart, of Crawford county, Ohio. About $800 has thus far been contributed for the sufferers of the recent flood in Baltimore. The loss of property from the flood, at Frederick City and the surrounding country, is $1,000,000.

At Richmond, Ind., United States Detective Quinan arrested W. H. Rogers and James Walker, also the mother and sister of Walker—all for counterfeiting. The press, dye and paper of 5/16 fractional currency were found in their possession and captured.
