THE TIMES AND THE CRESCENT.

We defended the CRESCENT's exclusive right to the city printing, and when we stated that curious whispers were abroad concerning arrangements between Radical and Democratic partisans, we said nothing which the CRESCENT, save under the promptings of a super-sensitive or guilty conscience, could torture into an insinuation against itself.

The above retraction of the insinuated charges against the CRESCENT, contained in a recent issue of the Times, we extract from an article published in that paper yesterday morning. It is neither an honest withdrawal of the charge nor a manly acceptance of responsibility, but as neither honesty nor manliness is to be anticipated from such a source we accept the disclaimer without wasting further criticism on its manner.

The people in the submerged districts, back of the city, extending to the lake, including Milneburg, where there are five or six hundred inhabitants, are despoiled of all sorts of provisions. They have been driven from their homes by the terrible storm which has forced up the waters from the gulf of Mexico, and the good will and Christian charity of our population are asked in their behalf. The people at Milneburg and all along the coast are excellent people, and we sincerely trust the appeal in their favor will be answered. The water is in their houses. It has destroyed all their stores. Relieve them fellow citizens.

The Tribune calls Gen. Buchanan and Gen. Gillen stragglers. Why stragglers? These gentlemen have obeyed the law—the reconstruction law which they were appointed to administer and enforce. But they have refused to ally themselves with the Radicals; they have declined to falsify election returns; they have protected, instead of oppressing, the people among whom they were sent. Gen. Buchanan's course, in every instance of disagreement with the Radicals here, has been approved by Grant himself. Even that laconic candidate was not shameless enough to break his silence by a censure of Gen. Buchanan for doing his duty. If these officers are stragglers, what were Gen. Sheridan and Gen. Pope and Gen. Meade, who openly violated the reconstruction law themselves—who disfranchised nearly half of the white population of their respective districts, and who trample on law and justice as if law and justice were rebels against "loilly"?

ROUGH AND READY.—The members of the Sixth Ward Rough and Ready club, and all other Democrats of the Sixth Ward, are invited to attend at the wigwag, corner Chartres and Barracks streets, on Monday morning at eight o'clock, in order to proceed to the registry office and registering their names. Let every good citizen of the Sixth Ward respond to the call of the gallant Scott.

The New York Tribune says that the election of Grant will determine that, for at least four years, "loyal men" shall govern America. This anticipated "loyal" rule is made especially applicable to the South, in which, according to the Tribune, "loyalists" are at present very uncertain as to the tenure of their power. What the Tribune means is that the election of Grant will assure the permanency of the carpet-bag and scalawag governments by keeping the white majority in subjection. In those halcyon days carpet-bags will be plethoric with plunder, every "trooly loil" adventurer will find a place for the exercise of his prehensile talents; "loil" legislatures will eject white men ad libitum, and the farce of fair voting at elections will be abolished. Let us have peace by all means—the peace of loil carpet-baggery and scalawagery.

DEMOCRATS OF THE SIXTH WARD.—Read the call of your leaders to rally at eight o'clock to-morrow morning, in order to register in phalanx.

The Tribune denounces President Johnson for pardoning "rebels" convicted by military commissions. The gentle Horace's appetite for blood is unappeasable.

LIVING OFF THE ENEMY.—That is a neat dodge in the Radicals here to have five thousand copies of the report of the committee on the condition of peace and order in the State printed. As these precious documents are to be circulated at the North, and as the taxpayers of the State foot the printing bill, it will be at once perceived how sublime is that ingenuity which can make a people pay for the dissemination of slanders upon themselves.

POLITICS.

"The gods are hard to reconcile, 'Tis hard to settle order once again. There is confusion worse than death, Trouble on trouble, pain on pain, Long labor unto aged breath; More task to hearts worn out with many wars, And eyes grown with gazing on the pilot stars."

In times of comparative smoothness and of apparent security, there is a class of very reputable citizens who are disposed to shrug their shoulders and raise their brows in supercilious complacency at the mention of politics, as though it were something quite caviare to persons of their position, pursuits, tastes and habits. They are usually such as are well to do in life, or such as are diligently working to make themselves so. They shun political excitements and distractions in the persuasion that they are shunning extremely vicious and dangerous modes of gambling and dissipation. They are dreadfully respectable, and dreadfully well meaning people; for they labor under the terrible delusion that respectability is illustrated by scrupulous abstention and serene indifference with regard to politics, and that it is a positive virtue to withdraw from political bustle and clamor into terrapin shells of exclusiveness, and to surrender public affairs to men whom they do not concede to be intellectually superior to themselves and whom they believe to be selfish, corrupt and reckless. The longer they behaved in this way, the more repulsive became the political arena to men of their notions and inclinations. They saw it crowded more and more with trading and jobbing politicians, and made more and more hideous with the cries of mountebanks and the shrieks of fanatics. They then either would not, or could not, gain entrance there to bring affairs under better counsel and control. And thus their ostracism, voluntary at first, was perpetuated.

What wonder that the country at length became a prey to all manner of corrupt schemes and all manner of revolutionary passions! If the class of men referred to as cultivating a respectable aversion to politics, are largely responsible for this result, it is also true that they are suffering an awful penalty for their delinquency. The shocks of discord and change have touched no other interests so sadly as theirs. They perceive at last that, even in the smoothest time, politics was no trivial matter. With the sad wisdom of a disastrous experience they know that politics logically extended then, as it practically comes home now, to everything needful, desirable, precious and dear in life—to peaceful industry, to commercial enterprise, to personal freedom, to household affections, ties and duties, to child and wife, to land and life, to all, in fact, that lies at the basis of material well being, domestic happiness, social order, and of civilization itself.

The lesson to be deduced is plain. Scorn of politics, under any circumstances, is of the nature of that pride which, according to the scriptural proverb, cometh before destruction. The respectable, the honest, the substantial, the thrifty must either master politics for their own and the common good, or politics will assuredly master them in some form pregnant with disaster to them and ruin to the country. They can no more afford to despise politics than a merchant or a banker can afford to despise arithmetic and book-keeping. Indifference to political fallacy may prove as fatal to a country, as indifference to an error in calculating latitude and longitude may prove to a ship. If the country is to be finally wrecked, the event may unquestionably be traced to the existence of this species of indifference, long years back, when such political sentinels as John C. Calhoun uttered their solemn warnings.

It was once beautifully said of this most luminous and prophetic of American statesmen that "he claims our confidence by his very fears, and like the needle, trembles into place." But, alas, the confidence was not enough to prevent the bitter fulfillment of his fears. The class of well-meaning men who turned disdainfully from politics and fancied that no great harm would ensue from the abandonment of public affairs to knaves and fanatics, was fatally numerous. Let us hope that there is no such class now in the country. In the South we know there is not. But if the country is to be saved, this must be the case hereafter in both sections.

We understand that in some wards of this city the supervisors are still acting under Baker's instructions. It is time that such nonsense were given up. Perseverance in this audaciously illegal and unjust course will only make trouble. The people of New Orleans want nothing but their rights under the Constitution and the laws, but those rights they are resolved to have; and they do not intend that British Guard Baker, or facile supervisors shall stand in the way. We repeat that the qualified voters of New Orleans want to vote at this election, and they will vote. In order to vote they must first register, and they will register. This point may as well be understood now as later. If the supervisors are discreet they will act on it at once.

TO THE LADIES OF NEW ORLEANS.—The children at the Camp street Orphan Asylum are absolutely in want of food. A large number of the charitable matrons of New Orleans have been called upon to aid them by some of the first men in the city; and they are doing their utmost in the cause of the little children who are fatherless as well as motherless.

Theod. Von La Hache, the celebrated composer, solicits the assistance of amateurs of either sex for the performance, at a given time, of the grand chorus (Power of Song) and Schiller's famous "Lay of the Bell," with grand orchestral accompaniment, in the charitable cause.

The concert will take place on the evening of the 14th inst., at the Opera House. A rehearsal will be held at La Hache's piano rooms, 17 Baronne street, Tuesday evening.

We hope the accomplished ladies of New Orleans will not be backward in no noble charity; but that all those who feel competent to be judged and admired by a numerous and critical audience, and who wish to display their musical powers will apply to Mr. La Hache.

Isabelle informs us that in our reference to him Friday as having been connected, bootblackly, with the cotton trade, we should also have mentioned that prior to the war he was regularly employed as a clerk in a well-known cotton house in this city. We had been entirely ignorant of this, and therefore give him the benefit of his assertion, merely adding that he refused to answer our very natural question as to the name of the house in which he was employed.

"A DAILY OCCURRENCE."

According to the Radical report on the condition of peace and order in this State, "it is in evidence that the murder of negroes is a daily occurrence" in the parish of Morehouse. This is a small parish and thinly populated. The whole number of negroes in it could not have exceeded a thousand at any time. The period referred to by the report extends over about twelve months. Consequently, not less than 300 negroes have been murdered in that time. As Morehouse is not set down as an exception, and as the tenor of the report is to show that the same murderous ferocity, with corresponding results, pervades all the parishes of the State, it follows, by an arithmetical calculation upon Radical data, that the aggregate for the State at large of this daily and unnatural mortality must be close to twenty thousand in the course of a year. It is to be presumed that the victims are all loyal voters, since the venacious Campbell and his colleagues allege that the motives for this slaughter are "founded solely on political differences."

Hence about 20,000 loyal voters have perished in this State within the past year. No wonder the Radical prospect here in the November election looks gloomy. Allowing the registered Radical voters to have been 80,000, this reduces it to 60,000. In another year it will dwindle to 40,000; and in two more years it will be annihilated. Such are some of the deductions from the statistics and arithmetic promulgated by the Radical Legislature. Let the colored people remember this. It is plain, if the report referred to speaks truly, that all colored voters who side with the Radicals are doomed to extinction in four years.

HON. W. L. THOMPSON NOT A RADICAL. It is unfortunate for Mr. Thompson, of the State Senate, that he did not formally protest against the character of the investigation and the matter of the report made by the joint committee "on the conduct of the elections," etc. By neglecting to avail himself of this parliamentary right, he left readers of the report no means of distinguishing him politically from the partisan majority of the committee. His name is appended to the circular calling for information from the various parishes, a fact that would naturally suggest that he participated in the investigation. And though his name is not signed to the body of the report, there is nothing to explain the omission.

We regret much that, by a not unreasonable mistake, we mentioned Mr. Thompson, a sound and thorough Democrat, as one of the Radical associates of Campbell and Harper in getting up an infamous document to disseminate slanders against the State at the expense of the people of the State. We append a letter from Mr. Thompson which speaks for itself:

SENATE CHAMBER, October 3, 1868. Editor of the New Orleans Crescent: In your paper of this date, I find that you do me great injustice by stating that I am a Radical. This occurs (I hope unintentionally) in your just criticisms upon the report of the joint committee "on the conduct of the late elections and the condition of peace and order of the State." You stated that this committee consisted entirely of Radicals, and named: Hon. J. Campbell, W. L. Thompson, of the Senate, and Peter Harper, Wm. Merrill and E. S. Wilson, of the House. I beg leave to inform you that I am a Democrat and had nothing to do with that committee, my name being taken up with more important business. The evidence received by that committee was of that flimsy character that would not make any impression upon an unbiased mind. I voted against the appointment of that committee and when I found the character of the testimony to be illegal and worthless and the object was for a political purpose, I withdrew and had nothing further to do with the investigation, and as yet have not read the report, and I think your patience must have been taxed if you read it through. But I am satisfied that you have not read it or would not have done so had the gross injustice to me associated my name therewith. I hope you will make the amend necessary. W. L. THOMPSON.

The editor in chief of this paper tenders to the ex-Union Soldiers' and Sailors' club his hearty thanks for the compliment of an honorary membership of that body. It is an honor we highly appreciate and of which we shall endeavor to prove ourselves worthy.

MARRIED: At the residence of the bride's father, in St. Helena parish, on the evening of the 24th September, in the Rev. S. A. Hayden, Dr. CHAS. E. KENNON to Miss SUSAN, daughter of Ams Kent.

DIED: On Wednesday evening, 30th of September, CRIGTON NEVITT, aged 25 years, son of the late Arthur B. Nevitt. On Thursday evening, October 3d, at 7 1/2 o'clock, JOHN MCGOWAN, aged 29 years, a native of Philadelphia and for many years a resident of this city.

Prospectus OF THE PRONOGRAPHIC MAGAZINE.

PHONOGRAPHY is the system of writing by means of which speeches, lectures, sermons, debates, legal evidence, examinations, &c., are recorded for work. It is of great advantage in any kind of business, but is particularly useful to professional men. Many students have entirely sustained themselves at college by occasional reporting, and often find it more profitable than their regular school profession. It affords an easy means of subsistence, and there is a great and increasing demand by the Press, by Courts of Law and Legislative Bodies for the services of those who practice it. The compensation is usually from $10 to $25 per day.

On October 15th, 1868, will be published the first number of a Periodical to be devoted to the interests of American Phonographers, and of those who desire to learn the Art of Phonography (Phonetic Short-hand). Each number will contain a series of lessons in the common print, explanatory of the system and of the changes which have been introduced in the past few years, and which the experience of the best reporters has proved are worthy of adoption, and which tend to make it more simple and easy of acquisition. These will contain all the instructions necessary to acquire the art. The explanatory part will be accompanied by shorthand illustrations, Lithographed in the best style. Each number will also contain a number of pages of Lithographed Phonography, consisting of miscellaneous reading matter, with a key in the common print.

Speeches, sermons, &c., phonographically reported, will occasionally be lithographed from reporter's manuscript, allowing the exact style used in verbatim reporting. The first five numbers will be issued semi-monthly; viz: October 15th, November 1st and 15th, December 1st and 15th. From January 1st, 1869, the Magazine will be issued weekly.

TERMS: For the First Five Numbers..... $1 00 Single Copies..... 25 Communications and subscriptions should be addressed to the "Phonographic Magazine," 94 Camp street, New Orleans, La.

H. C. MANLY, J. O. NIXON, Jr., Proprietors.
