

WOMEN.

Females, owing to the peculiar and important relations which they sustain, their peculiar organization, and the office they perform, are subject to many ailments. Freedom from these contribute in no small degree to their happiness and welfare, for none can be happy who are ill. Not only so, but none of these various Female Complaints can long be suffered from on without involving the general health of the individual, and ere long producing PERMANENT SICKNESS AND PREMATURE DECLINE.

Now is it pleasant to consult a physician for the relief of these various delicate affections, and only upon the most urgent necessity will a true woman so far sacrifice her greatest charm as to do this. The sex will then thank us for placing in their hands simple specifics, which will be found efficacious in relieving and curing almost every one of those troublesome complaints peculiar to the sex.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU. Hundreds suffer on in Africa, and hundreds of others apply vainly to druggists and doctors, who either merely tantalize them with the hope of a cure, or apply remedies which make them worse. I would not wish to assert anything that would do injustice to the afflicted, but I am obliged to say that although it may be produced from excessive exhaustion of the powers of life, by laborious employment, unwholesome air and food, profuse menstruation, the use of tea and coffee, and frequent childbearing, it is far oftener caused by direct irritation, applied to the mucous membrane of the vagina itself.

When reviewing the causes of these distressing complaints, his most painful to contemplate the attendant evils consequent upon them. It is but simple justice to the subject to enumerate a few of the many additional causes which so largely affect her.

LIFE, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS OF WOMAN. In all classes of society, and which, consequently, affect more or less directly the welfare of the entire human family. The mania that exists to precede education and marriage, causes years that nature designed for corporeal development to be wasted and perverted in the restraints of dress, the early confinement of school, and especially in the unhealthy excitement of the ball room. Thus, with the body half clothed and the mind unduly excited by pleasure, perverting in midnight revel the hours destined by nature for sleep and rest, the weak of destruction is half accomplished. In consequence of this early strain upon her system, an necessary effort is required by the delicate virgin to retain her situation in school at a later day, thus aggravating the evil. When an excitement is over, another in prospective keeps the mind morbidly sensitive to impression, while the most constant restraint of fashionable dress, absolutely forbidding the exercise indispensable to the attainment and retention of organic health and strength, the exposure to slight air, the sudden change of temperature, the complete prostration produced by excessive dancing, and, of necessity, produces their legitimate effect. At least, in early marriage elapsing the climax of misery, and the sympathies, hitherto so entirely regardless of the plain dictates and remonstrances of her delicate nature, becomes an unwilling subject of medical treatment. This is but a truthful picture of the experience of thousands of our young women.

Long before the ability to exercise the functions of the generative organs they require an education of their peculiar nervous system, composed of what is called the tissue, which is, in common with the female breast and lip, evidently under the control of mental emotions and associations at an early period of life; and, as we shall subsequently see, these emotions, when excessive, lead, long before puberty, to habits which sap the very life of the individual, and which have not completed their development.

The Fair of the Ladies' Benevolent Association.

To those of our readers who have large hearts and something—be it never so little—in their pockets to give away to further a good cause, we have a word to say. At the close of the war the party upon whose banners victory had perched, determined, as they expressed it, that the nation's dead should never be dishonored, constructed vast cemeteries, and in them interred the remains of all who had fallen under the stars and stripes; and now the traveler cannot go to any great field but he is pointed out some large burial ground where lie the remains of federal soldiers. But how is it with the men who struggled for Dixie? They lie just as they fell, wrapped in their gray jackets, with no monument above them to tell of their deeds; no inclosure around them to protect their graves from the sacrilege of wandering footsteps.

So it is in too many places made glorious by fights fought under the starry cross. But here in New Orleans an effort has been made to rescue from oblivion and possible desecration, all that is mortal of the brave souls who died here in captivity during the black years of '62, '63 and '64. An association—the Ladies' Benevolent Society—originally formed to aid the widows and orphans of these men, have now determined themselves to the task of erecting a manseum in which shall repose their honored dust.

The tomb has been commenced, but it cannot be completed because the means are lacking. In this straight the association appeals to the people of New Orleans to give them that aid which they have certainly a right to demand at their hands. In order to make the giving as pleasant as possible, the ladies have gotten up a fair, which is now going on at Odd Fellows' Hall. It commenced last night, and what we then saw of it we can confidently recommend it to the public. There is everything there to attract without any of the usual disagreeable adjuncts of a fair, such as ceaseless importunities to buy, eternal grab bags and lotteries, etc., while a fine military band, which is in attendance, plays good dancing music all the evening. It will be a delightful place whereat to spend this evening, and we hope that many of our readers will so find it.

Remember this is an affair which, in itself a pleasant one, calls loudly upon every one for support, because of its object. Let us see Odd Fellows' Hall thronged to night with those who, willing enough to trust their fortunes to the swords of the soldiers of the Confederacy, are not willing, now that the cause is lost, and the men dead, to let their ashes, dishonored and forgotten, slumber in obscurity.

General Orders No. 2.

The following order from military headquarters will be read by our citizens with a great deal of sympathetic interest:

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF LOUISIANA, NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA, January 9, 1869.

General Orders No. 2.

It comes the painful duty of the brevet major general commanding to announce to the officers and soldiers serving in this command the death of the distinguished patriot and soldier, Lovell H. Rousseau, brevet major general and brigadier general in the Confederate army.

General Ross was born in Lincoln county, Kentucky, August 24, 1818. He studied law in the office of his brother, Richard L. Rousseau—now United States minister to Honduras, Central America, and began to practice in 1841, in Green county, Indiana, entering into partnership with James Dozier, a distinguished member of the Kentucky bar.

During the war with Mexico he commanded a company of the second regiment Indiana volunteers, and was highly complimented by Colonel Humphrey Marshall for his gallantry in the repulse of an attack of Mexican cavalry at the battle of Buena Vista.

Upon his return from Mexico, he was elected to the lower house of the State Legislature; and at the expiration of his term was elected to the upper house. His readiness in debate, and the accuracy of his judgment, won for him golden opinions from his legislators.

General Rousseau was appointed brigadier general, United States volunteers, October 6th, 1861, and was promoted major general, United States volunteers, October 8th, 1862, for gallant and distinguished services in the field. He served with great distinction in the battles of Shiloh, Perryville, Stone river, Tallahoma, Chickamauga and Chattanooga, and commanded a very successful raid through Alabama in 1864.

He was elected a member of the thirty-ninth Congress, and was serving in that capacity when appointed a brigadier general in the regular army on the 28th of March, 1867.

Immediately after his appointment he was assigned to the command of the Department of Columbia, on the Pacific coast, consisting of the States of Oregon and the Territories of Idaho and Washington. Whilst exercising this command he was selected by the President of the United States, as commissioner on the part of the United States to receive the Territory of Alaska from the Emperor of Russia.

This duty performed, he returned to the command of his department, whence he was subsequently summoned to Washington. On the 25th of July, 1868, he was assigned to the command of the Department of Louisiana, comprising the States of Louisiana and Arkansas, with headquarters at New Orleans, where, during the peculiarly exciting circumstances attending the late presidential election, affairs in this State, both civil and military, were so judiciously and ably administered as to prevent almost entirely the loss of life and property, which would have resulted had the anticipated collision taken place. During the exercise of this last important command, he has suddenly passed from among us.

It is difficult in a military order to properly express our appreciation of the civic and military virtues which adorned this illustrious man. He was frank, open and generous in the extreme. He endeavored himself to all enjoyed the pleasure of his acquaintance. Highly respected and beloved, he loved his country with an ardor and devotion rarely equaled, and never excelled. A proud defender of the Union, and staunch supporter of the Constitution, his example is to be emulated by all who succeed him.

As a proper token of respect in memory of the deceased, the officers of the army on duty in this department will wear the usual badge of mourning for a period of thirty days.

By command of Brevet Major Gen. E. C. Buchanan: THOS. H. NEILL, Major, 20th Infantry, Brev. Brig. Gen. U. S. A., A. G. A.

Official: NATHANIEL BUCKLAND, Second Lieut. 37th Infantry, Brev. First Lieut. U. S. A., Acting Assistant Adjutant General.

From what we heard yesterday, we think our cotton merchants had better wet a portion of their receipts, as over 200 bales damaged was sold at auction by Chas. T. Nash at remarkable prices, averaging over $10 per bale; some even selling as high as $18 50, being near its full value sound! Bully for our friend Charley!

To-Morrow NIGHT the pleasure-seekers are to have a double opportunity to enjoy the exhilarating dance. Above Canal street the Washington Benevolent Association will entertain their friends at a grand ball, wherever there is a good Pelican No. 4 will hold high carnival at the Opera House. Both these events have been the all-absorbing theme among the salubrious youth for weeks past. It is a mooted point which of the two will carry the day, whether there is a goodly number of the Pelican No. 4, or whether the palm will be won by the Washington Benevolent Association, or whether it will be yielded to the pugnant creoles of the Old Third. From the experience of the past, no less than present indications, it is thought that the judgment will be "Let both divide the crown."

THE STOCKHOLDERS of the Pontchartrain Railroad Company held an election for directors on the 4th instant. The following gentlemen were elected to serve during the ensuing year: J. M. Lapeyre, Chas. Bradford, Ar. Miltenberger, F. J. Lullus, W. A. Bradford, Geo. W. P. Pandy. At a meeting of the above directors held yesterday, Mr. J. M. Lapeyre was unanimously elected president, George Pandy, Esq., secretary, and Wm. J. Carter, Esq., secretary.

WASHINGTON BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.—The Crescent acknowledges the compliment of tickets of admission to the ball to be given by this association. The Crescent will be there, for the purpose of doing good, wherever there is a good time. Thanks, gentlemen, for the compliment.

THE CRESCENT writers tender their hearty thanks to the Ladies' Benevolent Association of Louisiana, now being held at Odd Fellows' Hall for charitable purposes, for a slice of delicious cake and a little of krusch, which were brought to the sanctum under the conduct of our excellent fellow-citizen, John Ben.

THE LAKE WATER was very high yesterday morning in the rear of the city. Even back of Louisiana Avenue, in the Fourth District, the water rose three squares of the St. Charles Street Canal. The water rose in the canal because of the severe southerly wind which had been prevalent during the past week or ten days.

GEN. PORTER and BARBOCK, of the staff of Gen. Grant, who recently passed through this city from Arkansas to Texas, and who returned here on Sunday evening, in season to act as pall bearers to the remains of Gen. Rosecrank, left for Atlanta, Georgia, by rail, on Sunday evening, whence, after a brief visit to Gen. Meade, they will, it is said, go direct to Washington.

THE FOLLOWING IS A COPY of a letter addressed by Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines to the General Assembly, generally calling to the State a site for a State House:

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11, 1869.

To the Hon. President, Officers and Members of the Senate:

I beg to tender, through you, as a donation to the State of Louisiana, for the erection of a State House, that eighty situated lot of ground in this city, bounded by Orleans, St. Anne, Fourth and Fifth streets.

This parcel of ground is deemed exceedingly valuable for its dryness and for its salubrity of climate, being some five feet in elevation above the ground upon which the St. Charles Hotel stands, and is situated in the rear of the eminent physician here, the most healthy locality in the city. It is also in the vicinity of a square of ground which I propose to donate to the French Orphan Asylum, and only one square from the best site in the city for the purpose named. Very respectfully yours,

MYRA CLARK GAINES.

A BREAK OCCURRED in the embankment of the New Basin, near the bridge, on Sunday afternoon, being caused by the rise of the late waters under the influence of the heavy north wind blowing. The wounded girl's name is Laura Johnson, and she was sent to the Charity Hospital.
