BROKE INTO LODGEROOM.

Policeman Invades a Meeting of the Ladies of the Maccabees.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Several indignants women appeared in the Maxwell street police court yesterday to prefer charges against Police Officer James H. Sullivan, who forcibly entered a house where they were holding a meeting and carried off Mrs. Mary L. Lambert of 722 Congress street and locked her up in a cell.

BURGLAR AS A HAMMER.

Muscular Woman Dents Walls With Her Body.

New York, Sept. 27.—As soon as A. Cohen, burglar, gets out of jail he is going to bustle to a police shop and play all the combinations he can make with No. 110 West One Hundred and Tenth street. It was in this house that A. Cohen met a Waterloo and Bull Run combined, and at the hands of a woman, Mrs. A. V. Berry discovered him in her apartments, and after mopping the floor and putting dents in the wall with his person, she took his left ear in her right hand and dragged him to the police station.

Mrs. Berry is in the heavy-weight class. She practices with Indian clubs, and never asks any assistance in carrying a stove. Taking her little baby, she went shopping yesterday. On her return she found A. Cohen busily engaged in trying to make her flat look like a vacant house.

The woman was somewhat astonished, but she asked no time calling for help. She placed her baby on the bed, rolled up her sleeves and started in the direction of A. Cohen, who fled. He tried to get out by way of the fire escape, but Mrs. Berry caught him and yanked him toward her. Then she clasped her fingers around his throat with such force that he will live ingrowing worms for the rest of his life.

When his face was black and his tongue was hanging out, Mrs. Berry heaved him into a corner and took a survey of the house.

She found that A. Cohen had packed up her husband's overcoat and a suit of his clothes, a camera, silverware, jewelry and various other articles—almost enough to make a wagon load. After satisfying herself that the entire booty was spread out on the floor she resumed her attentions to A. Cohen, who was showing signs of life.

He so touched the law in respect to the flat, catching Mrs. Berry's Indian clubs in his flight. Armed with these he stood in a corner and threatened to bend every one she brought against him right up to him, took the Indian clubs out of his hands and threw them away. Getting a good grasp on the neckband of his shirt, he would have thrown it across the kitchen, describing a graceful parabola in his flight.

"I'll give you $4 if you'll let me go," gasped the man.

In reply, Mrs. Berry picked him up, carried him out in the hall and threw him downstairs. She ran down after him and threw him down another flight to the basement, where she turned him over to the janitor, who locked him in a coal bin.

Mrs. Berry went up to her flat and attended to her baby, who was crying. When the little one was quiet she donned her cap, took the show on her left arm and went down after A. Cohen, whom she persuaded forcibly to visit the police station.

It might have been a house numbered 110 on the hundred and Tenth street was hoodooed," said A. Cohen to the sergeant, "but say, there's a great bunch of numbers to figger gigs outta."
